SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1871.

THE EVENING TELEGRAPH, from its original establishment, has been in the receipt of telegraphic news from the New York Associated Press, which consists of the Tribune, Times, Herald, World, Sun, Journal of Commerce, Evening Post, Commercial Advertiser, and Evening Express. The success which has attended our enterprise is, in itself, a sufficient evidence of the freshness, fullness, and reliability of the news which we have received from this source.

The earliest regular edition of THE EVENING TELEGRAPH goes to press at 1 1/2 o'clock, and the subsequent regular editions at 2 1/2, 3 1/2, and 4 1/2. Whenever there is important news of the progress of the European war, extra editions will be issued after this hour, and before the regular time for the early edition.

THE AMERICAN STEAMSHIP COMPANY.

The State House of Representatives yesterday, after considerable palaver that amounted to nothing, finally passed the bill incorporating the American Steamship Company in the shape that it came from the Senate. We sincerely hope the virtuous Josephs and the other immaculate legislators who objected to the passage of this bill until it had received the mature consideration of a committee are now satisfied that it is entirely unobjectionable, and that their consciences will not in the future accuse them for having aided in making it a law. If at virtuous gentlemen who represent us in the Harrisburg were always as careful as they were in this instance to keep a sharp look-out for "snakes," they would give far greater satisfaction than they do now. But it is certainly suspicious, when hundreds of special enactments to give legislative sanction to schemes of every description for robbing the public are put through the Legislature without the slightest difficulty at every session, that there should have been a persistent effort made to delay the passage of this particular act, especially as there was good reason to believe, from the characters of the men who offered it, that the steamship company would receive a broad hint to "come down" handsomely in order to get it out of committee if it ever went there.

ANOTHER PENSION LAW was under consideration in the Senate yesterday. Something more is to be done for all soldiers of the war of 1812 who served their country for the protracted term of fourteen days, and also for the widows of these veterans. It was estimated that this bill would take $5,000,000 annually from the Treasury; and, from the nature of the proposed pension claims, there can be little doubt that a large portion of this money will go into the pockets of the pension agents. Congress seems disposed to run the pension business in the ground. The home guards and State militia who served thirty days in the late war are not generally considered as particularly deserving objects of annual pensions, and we can scarcely see that justice demands, in the present state of the national finances, that men who sixty years ago gave two weeks' time to their country should now be made recipients of liberal pensions. Before tax-payers display too much gratitude for this new imposition, they should be careful to inquire how much of it is intended for the benefit of greedy agents and how much for the fourteen-day veterans.

NO APPROPRIATION for work on League Island is contained in the naval appropriation bill, and it seems that the only chance of having money devoted to that purpose, at the present session of Congress, is to have a clause inserted in the miscellaneous appropriation bill. It is astonishing how uniformly Congress draws the purse-strings tightly when any appropriation which would benefit Philadelphia comes up for consideration. The standard maxim seems to be, Millions for New England, New York, or the West, but not a penny for the metropolis of Pennsylvania.

IF THE CADETS at West Point do not speedily grow circumspect and less refractory, they will acquire as bad a reputation as the office-holders. No sooner is the row raised by their young colored associate hushed up than new troubles arise, and this time Cadet Grant (the son of the President), together with the sons of several distinguished army officers, is involved in trouble. Poor Uncle Sam has a sad time with the objects of his bounty. Whether he puts them in office or sends them to school, they are perpetually doing things which they ought not to do, and leaving undone things which they should do.

THE NEW complications in Europe arising from the sudden increase of the power of Germany, the annihilation of French prestige, and the bold demands of Russia, have inspired England with a more amiable spirit towards the United States than she has ever before manifested. As matters are progressing now, John Bull will not only soon be ready to do us tardy justice in a very mild way, but be willing to postpone stabbing us again in the back until he gets another particularly good chance.

OBITUARY.

Charles H. Woodwell, a well-known New England journalist, died at Worcester, Massachusetts, a few days ago. Mr. Woodwell was a native of Newburyport, Massachusetts, and at the time of his death was about forty-three years of age. He was bred a printer, and for a considerable time worked at the case in the offices of several Boston newspapers. He afterwards became a reporter on the Boston Freeman, and subsequently he was attached to the editorial staff of the Post and Advertiser. During the war for the suppression of the Rebellion he was one of the most active and intelligent among the newspaper correspondents, and his letters to the Boston Advertiser excited much attention. About two years ago Mr. Woodwell purchased an interest in the Worcester Evening Gazette, and was making a valuable property of it when he was suddenly removed by death.

Rev. Alonzo Hill, D. D., a prominent Unitarian clergyman, died at his residence, Worcester, Massachusetts, on Wednesday, at the age of seventy-one. Mr. Hill was born at Harvard on the 19th of June, 1800, and graduated at Harvard College in 1822. He was ordained in 1827, and was called to the First Unitarian Church of Worcester, and remained in charge of it up to the time of his death. Mr. Hill was for a number of years one of the overseers of Harvard College and Secretary of the American Antiquarian Society. He always took the highest interest in the cause of education, and was universally respected and beloved by all who knew him.

Feodor Dietz, the celebrated German battle painter, Feodor Dietz, died recently at Gray, in France, of heart disease, while he was acting as one of the managers of the Baden Sanitary Corps. He was born at Karlsruhe in 1815, and was court painter to the Grand Duke of Baden. His principal works were "The Death of Max Piccolomini," "The Night Review," "Destruction of Heidelberg by the French," "Bucher Crossing the Rhine," "Bucher's March to Paris," and "Vienna Besieged by the Turks," an immense wall painting which he had just completed.

Sir George Hayer, painter in ordinary to the Queen, died recently in London at the age of seventy-eight. He was born in 1792, and received his first art training from his father, Mr. Charles Hayer, who was drawing teacher to the Princess Charlotte. At an early age George Hayer obtained two gold medals at the Royal Academy, and was otherwise distinguished. In 1815 he was appointed painter of miniatures and portraits to the Princess Charlotte and his Royal Highness Prince Leopold of Saxe-Coburg (the late King of the Belgians). He studied in Rome from 1816 to 1819, and became a member of the Academy of St. Luke in that city. Afterwards he took up his residence in Rome, where he painted historical pictures and portraits for a number of years.

NOTICES.

INDEPENDENCE FOR WOMEN.—From Democrat's Monitor.—With a Grover & Baker Machine, a woman can not only support herself comfortably, but a family, its capacity for executing all kinds of work, its rapidity, its perfect reliability, adapt it particularly to the demands of family sewing, and a clever operator is never at a loss for the employment of herself and machine, at remunerative prices.

The value of the Grover & Baker Machine has been demonstrated by its steady advance in public estimation, until it now stands at the head of all its competitors. It has all the advantages of an elastic stitch, without the serious objections to a single thread, which is so liable to rip, or the lock stitch, which is so liable to break.

This elasticity renders it invaluable for woollens, muslins, gowns, and all that class of goods for children's wear which are used so much in the family, and which are so useless when disfigured by soiling or signs of shrinkage. The Grover & Baker Machine has become an established favorite in all large dress-making, furnishing, and outfitting establishments, because it does the work better, and ladies prefer it.

SOMETIMES A COLD WILL NOT YIELD TO ORDINARY REMEDIES, because of the severe inflammation of the delicate lining of the tubes through which the air we breathe is distributed to the lungs. This obstruction produces pain and soreness, hoarseness, cough, difficulty of breathing, hectic fever, and a spitting of blood, matter or phlegm, finally exhausting the strength of the patient, and developing very serious disease. Dr. Jayne's Expectorant seldom fails to remove these symptoms by relieving the lungs of all obstructing matter, and healing all soreness, Pleurisy, Asthma, and Bronchitis, and is likewise cured by this standard remedy, and the reputation it has maintained for over thirty years, affords the best guarantee of its merit. Sold everywhere.
