SIR STAFFORD NOBTHCOTE.

The New Member of the Joint High Commis-

The inability of Sir John Rose to act as a member of the Joint High Commission for the settlement of the Alabama claims and other matters in dispute between Great Britain and the United States, has led to the appointment of the Right Hon. Sir Stafford Northcote to the vacancy on the commission created by his resignation. Sir Stefford's appointment will give general satisfaction in this country, and in England likewise, the London Times declaring that he "is probably more intimately acquainted with all considerations arising out of the Alapama claims than any other person who could have been selected for the position."

The new commissioner was born in London, on the 27th of October, 1818, and was educated at Balliol College, Oxford, from which he graduated with high honors. He then studied law, and was called to the bar at the Inner Temple in 1847, and was made a C. B., civil division, in 1851, as a recognition of his services as one of the secretaries of the great industrial exhibition of that year. Belonging to a wealthy and aristocratic family, he was early destined for an official career, as a preparation for which he served Mr. Gladstone as private secretary during the latter's incumbency of the Presidency of the Board of Trade, In March, 1855, he entered Parliament as a Conservative member for Dudley, but was defeated in March, 1857, as a candidate for North Devonshire. In July, 1858, however, he was returned to the House of Commons for Stamford, and continued to represent that byrough until May, 1866, when he was finally successful in obtaining a seat for North Devonshire. He acted as Financial Secretary to the Treasury from January to June, 1859, and in-June, 1865, was appointed President of the Board of Trade, in the late Lord Derby's third administration. On March 8, 1867, he became Secretary of State for India, which position he vacated on the incoming of Mr. Gladstone's administration in 1868. During this period the Government of the vast British possessions in Iudia was practically in his hands. He gave general satisfaction in this extremely difficalt position. At the Parliamentary elections of 1868 he made a gallant fight for his seat in North Devoushire, and was returned at the head of the poll: but, although in politics he has been somewhat liberal, he was still too closely identified with the Conservative party and its fortunes to receive any official position at the hands of Mr. Gladstone. His appointment on the Joint High Com mission is doubtless intended to give the conservative interest a fair representation, and a voice in the settlement of questions at issue between the United States and Great Britain. In the spring of 1860, Sir Stafford was appointed chairman of the Hudson's Bay Company and Governor, ex officio, of the Northwest Territory in the British American Possessions. In this capacity his diligence and rare administrative ability soon became a subject of remark. In May, 1870, Sir Stafford came to America, landing at New York, and paid a visit to the Red River country, to attempt the adjustment of the difficulties between the insurgents and - the Canadian authorities.

Sir Stafford Northcote is one of the most promising public men of Great Britain. Although he cannot, as yet, claim to rank as a statesman of the first order, he is noted for his executive ability, and the industry and sagacity which he has invariably brought to the discharge of his public duties. As a speaker in the House of Commons, he is somewhat heavy and labored, but always commands a ready hearing. He has taken a great interest in art and educational matters, and is regarded as an able financier, his most important publication being "Twenty Years of Financial Policy, 1841-61."

 his farroos and ingovernable bursts of anger.
His attemptant suicide.
His varying moods, sometimes unduly slated, at other times unduly depressed.
His saying repeatedly that he would kill his father. 1000 father. Of the first, several instances are given by wit-nesses; the most marked was the attempt to shoot his wife, an act I can explain on no other theory than his insaulty. It has every appearance of being a madman's act. But the strongest proof of his mental disease were But the strongest proof of his mental disease were his attempts to commit suicide. When he took innianum, a smail vial fall, there was sufficient to kill a grown person, if it was of the usual strength. And that his parents and sister believed it would kill him is shown by their efforts to save him, and their great distress. On a subsequent occasion he said he would take two bottles, in all probability because one bottle failed to do the work. Ordinarily no stronger proof of insanity is required than an attempt of the person to take his own life. And had this of the person to take his own life. And had this defendant succeeded, is it not highly probable that those neighbors who on the trial pronounced him of sound mind would have said that he was insure?

Admitting that same persons d+ obcasionally do stroy themselves, would we expect one in the de-fendant's condition in life to do it 7. The more ignofendant's condition in life to do it 7 The more igno-rant and debased a person is, the less the probability of his doing such a deed, if not insane. The love of life is an instinctive feeling, and the lower we descend in the scale of intelligence the more blindly and strough is life adhered to. A writer (probably Dr. Forbes Winslow) in the Journal of Psychological Medicine says: - 'It is the prevalent opinion among persons ignorant of the sciences of participation and pathology that the desire of sail.

psychology and pathology that the desire of self-destruction is in the majority of cases a mental act unconnected with a disturbed condition of the boildy functions, and incurable by any process of me fical treatment; that the depression of mind which is so generally associated with the suicidal tendency is an affection of the mind per se, the obysical organiza-tion having no direct connection with what is terme t the spiritual impulse. This, we regret to say, is the generally received opinion. This metaphysical view of the matter is franght with much mischief, and, we have no doubt, has led to the neglect of cases of actual insaulty, and to the sacrifice of many valuable lives. It is a matter of the highest moment that the public mind should be done the source of the sourc undeceived upon this point, sight rises on this subject ought to be generally diffused. It is of con-sequence to establish the belief that the suicidal idea is almost generally connected with a morid condition of the mind, and is often the only semptom of such an allection; but it is, with a few ex-ceptions, universally associated with physical dis-order disturbing the healthy balance of the order distorting the heating durates of the understancing. One of the witnesses speaks of the prisoner's variable moods, at one time cull and tachurn, then hvely and takative, without any apparent cause. This is characteristic of some forms of insanily, and struck me as a strong symptom of his mental discuse. His feelings and actions were not alw aya, when he was calm, under his control, but were swayed by the morbid condition of his nervous system. What then should we expect when he was to a tempest of passion? Those who lived with him and knew him intimately looked upon him as dangerous, and to be avoided if possible when angered. His mother said, "When he gets mad he'll shoot apybody, it makes no difference who it is." His aster and brother-in-law fied from the house to escape from bim. At this moment bis father returns, and before his blood has time to cool an altercation ensues and the fatai shot is fired. Prior to this he had several times said to the witness Sands that he was going to kill his father, and I infer from this that he thought himself justified in doing it. Is it probable he would have told Sands had he believed it was a wrong deed for him to do? If, then, in his ordisary frame of nond he believed he would be doing no wrong should he kill his father, is it not highly probable that the deed would be performed should probable that the deed would be performed should be encounter him when in a rage? In the quarrets between his faither and mother, he, it seems always took his mother's part, and for this his father up-braided and threatened him. Did he look upon himself as his mothe's defender, and slay his father to protect her? Probably, if we could see more clearly into his mind and know more of its mysterious workings, the evidence of instality would be plain to every one.

I remain, yours, most respectfull", S. PRESTON JONES.

"I WAS AS WEAK AS A BABY," observed one of the young lady employes at Macy's dry goods store, "when I commenced taking PLANTATION BITTERS; and now I am on my feet from morning till night, without ever feeling over fatigued." This remark was made about six months ago to a pale, emaciated girl who was making some purchases at "The hint was taken." says the young woman in a letter to the pr prietors; "I begau taking your Bitters the next day, and am happy to tell you that they have completely restored my health, strength, and cheerfulness."

PERTIES OF TAR. The pine tree has long been known to possess valuable medical properties. For palmonary diseases it is doubtful whether any remedy has as yet been discovered equal to it. It seems to change and renew the very structure on which it acts, and to infuse into the system an indescribable power equal to the natural power before disease had even taken hold of the body, so as to make, as it were, an entirely new tissue, and to give a newness of life and energy which one who has been sick a long time knows the value of ut cannot fully describe. The great objection, however, to all tar preparations has been their unpleasant taste, and consequent liability to sickness and nauseate the stomach. We have before us, however, a preparation of the kind referred to, which obviates all these objections, and is as agreeable to the palate as it is valuable in the cure of disease. We mean "Dr. Wishart's Pine Tree Tar Cordial." a real, genuine, bona fide medicinal cordial. distilled from the pine tree by a process known only to the Doctor himself, the sale and popularity of which are only equalled by the amount of suffering it has relieved, and the number of diseases it is so well calculated to effectually cure. In the Pine Tree Tar Cordial the invalid may be sure he has a remedy of very extraordinary power for throat and lung affections, and when taken in conjunction with the "Great American Dyspepsia Pills," an infallible cure for dyspepsia, liver complaint, sick headache, and the many ailments arising from a disordered state of the liver and digestive organs.

This opportunity is offered by no other in stitution in the country.

Thousands of certificates of absolute cure (when all else failed to afford relief), as well as recommendatory letters without number, have been received by Dr. Wishart, the proprietor, attesting the uniform success with which they have been employed. Many of said letters are from the highest sources, including eminent statesmen, Governors, State judges, clergymen, etc.-men slow to be convinced, prejudiced perhaps at first, but feeling themselves under a sense of duty bound to tell the Doctor what they had done for them and to recommend them to others. The Great American Dyspepsia Pills and Pine Tree Tar Cordial are sold by all druggists throughout the world. They can also be obtained at Dr. WISHART'S GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE STORE, No. 232 North SECOND Street, Philadelphia, where a successful practising physician can be consulted each day, free of charge. Those in need of professional aid or counsel will do well to make a note of the above. Communications by mail, soliciting professional advice, will be considered strictly confidential and promptly answered, free of charge. The most complete stock of Family Medicines, Hair Preparations, Perfumery. etc., in the city. Give us a trial. Address all communications,
