WHO HOLDS TICKET 28,889?

Fun at the Drawing of the Hamilton Opera House-Brass Band and Washtub-Lucky Numbers and Indescribable Excitement. A Hamilton despatch to the Cincinnatf Comnercial says: -

The Hamilton Opera House drawing took place in the Opera House to-night, in the pre-sence of a crowd soaked with rain and reeking with tobacco. The drawing was given under The Hamilton Opera House Lottery cover of a concert, but turned out to be a few tunes by a brass band, stationed at one end of the hall. A wheel and a washtub appeared among the furniture on the stage. The Japanese in New York.

A committee appeared on the stage and busied itself in inspecting eight or nine envelope boxes laid in a row on a table. The inspection lasted a few minutes, after which one of the committee announced that it was satisfied that all was right. The envelope boxes were then emptied by David Gibson into the washtub, and Louis Rollie, a young gentleman of lottery-dealing experience, scooped the tickets out of the tub into the wheel and gave it a preliminary revolution. A venerable gentleman on the stage stepped forward and said:-"We are now ready to draw. We are strangers here and want to do what is honest and right. We want a boy from among the audiened to draw the tickets. An urchin soon appeared, and climbing over the footlights, displayed a flag of truce, which set the whole house in a roar. He was stripped of cap and jacket, and his shirt-sleeve turned up to the shoulder. Mr. Bollie manipulated the wheel again, and the boy was blindfolded and placed beside it.

James E. Campbell announced clearly that the first ticket would draw the opera house, the second $20,000, the third $5000, the next five $1000 each, the next eight $500 each, and the next sixty $100 each, in all $40,000 cash, in addition to the opera house. The boy dived his hand into the wheel and drew out a ticket, which was promptly trans-ferred to the hand of David Gibson. Mr. Gibson turned before the gaslight and distinctly announced 28,889.

The cash prizes were then regularly drawn, the wheel being well revolved between each drawing until the seventy-five numbers had been drawn

No one pretended to hold a lucky number during the drawing, and it was not stated when or where the prizes were to be distributed.

The drawing was regarded with doubt and suspicion by a great many citizens of Hamil-ton, and many of the audience, while acknow-ledging that the drawing in the hall was done on the square, pronounced the whole scheme a swindle

VERSAILLES, Feb. 27 .- To-night, at a banquet, the Emperor showed his guests the preliminary treaty of peace, signed an hour before, and accepted the felicitations of the august personages present. Fury, on last Christmas-day. The alle-gation made by the Commonwealth is as fol-lows:--On Christmas-day the prisoner came to the open lois at the Dickerson street river-front, where two gangs of boys, calling themselves the "Rollers" and the "Rangers," were amusing themselves by having a stone battle, and he took part in it. Becoming weary of the fun, he retired themselves by having a stone battle, and he took part in it. Becoming weary of the fun, he retired into a lane leading to a coal-yard, and drawing a large navy pistol, he deliberately fired six shots into the crowd of boys. When he fired the sixth shot, he rested the pistol on his left arm and coolly took aim, and George Fury, who was leaning against a fence a square and a half away, and who had taken no patt whatever in the stone-throwing, fell to the ground with a bullet in his head. He was taken to his home, where for a week he lay in a delirious state, and at the end of that he lay in a delivious state, and at the end of that time died. Gaughran was immediately arrested, and upon being told that he had killed a boy he said, "Let him be killed; bring him to me and I will shoot him again; I would shoot sll of them for a penny spicce." He was taken to the station-house, and there before the Graner who executively house. and thence before the Coroner, who committed him for trial. The Commonwealth will press for murder of the first degree.

At noon on Saturday, the 4th inst., the term of the Forty-first Congress expires, and that of the Forty-second begins. Previous to the war, the first session of each Congress was held regularly on the first Monday in December after the beginning of the term for which the members were elected, but the exigencies of the struggle to uphold the Union demanded that there should be a session in the spring, and the law providing for it has not been repealed. An effort has been made during the present session to repeal this act, but it has failed, and there will consequently be a session of considerable duration of the Fortysecond Congress immediately on the heels of the Forty-first. It is thought that several of the appropriation bills will be forced over to this session by the stress of time, in which event, as everything will have to be commenced anew, the session may be prolonged far into the summer. The probable return of the San Domingo Commission before an adjournment can be effected will tend greatly to lengthen the session, unless the enemies of annexation should succeed in throwing the whole subject over to next winter.

THE SENATE.

At the Beginuing and at the End of the Fortyfirst Congress-The Members at the Opening of the Forty-second Congress-The Changes that Take Place.

When the Forty-first Congress assembled on March 4, 1869, there were four States-Georgia, Mississippi, Texas, and Virginia-without representation. This made the number of Senators 66, of whom 56 were Republicans and 10 Democrats. During the fall of 1869 Hon. James W. Grimes, of Iowa, resigned, and on January 26, 1870. James B. Howell, who had been elected his successor, took his seat. On January 24, 1870, the two Virginia Senators, John F. Lewis, Republican, and John W. Johnston, Conservative, took the oath of office and assumed their seats. On February 25, 1870, Hiram R. Revels, the first colored man who ever sat in the Senate, was sworn as a Senator from Mississippi; his colleague, General Adelbert Ames, Republican, being kept out of his seat until April 1 by an attempt at declaring him ineligible. On March 31, 1870, the two Texas Senators, Morgan C. Hamilton and J. W. Flanagan, both Republicans, were sworn in, and every State was then fully represented except Georgia. During the summer of 1870 Hon. Daniel S. Norton, Democrat, of Minnesota, died, his temporary successor being Hon. William Windom, Republican, who was succeeded permanently on January 23, 1871, by Colonel O. P. Stearns, Republican. This Republican gain of one member was compensated for by the resignation, in December, 1870, of Charles D. Drake, Republican, of Missouri, who was succeeded temporarily by D. T. Jewett, Republican, but permanently, in January, 1871, by Frank P. Blair, Jr., Democrat. And Congress having disposed finally of the case of Georgia, Hon. Joshua Hill, Republican, was admitted to a seat from that State on February 1. being followed on February 24 by Dr. H.V. M. Miller, Democrat, his colleague, whose admission was delayed for the passage of a bill prescribing an oath of office suited to the circumstances of his participation in the Rebellion as a surgeon. The admission of Senator Hill saw every State represented in both branches of Congress for the first time in more than ten years, and the admission of Senator Miller, one week only before the end of the term for which he was elected, saw every State fully represented in the Senate for the first time since December, 1860. The changes noted above, and the filling o all the vacancies, increased the Republican strength to 62, and that of the Democrats to 12. The Senate of the Forty-second Congress. The elections for Senators to fill the vacancies created by the expiration of full terms on the 4th of March have been held in all the States except Georgia and Virginia, and we give below a correct list of the Senate as it will stand at the opening of the next Congress. The names of Republican members are printed in Roman, those of Democrats in Italics, and those who are new members are marked thus (*). The dates indicate the time at which each Senator's term expires:-

ere respectively th Assistant Engineers. They found the river to have an average width of half a mile, and a depth of channel from 42 to 129 feet. With the exception of a small bar at the mouth of the Atrato, their surveys show that the ship canal connecting the Atlantic with the Pacific Ocean is already made from the Gulf of Darien to La Loma, a small hill about two miles up the Cacarica River from its junction with the Atroto. Up to this point vessels of the very largest size may safely be carried. We already know that navigation is open on the Pacific side from the ocean through the Gulf of San Miguel and the River Tuyna to Chipogana, a small town about 22 miles from its mouth.

To sum up what has been and what is to be done by the expedition, it may be stated that there have been found on the Atlantic and Pacific slopes two points to which ships may be That on the Atlantic side is 45 miles carried. from the Gulf of Darien, at the junction of the Atrato and Cacarica rivers; while that on the Pacific side is about 40 miles from the ocean Between these two points, which are distant about 50 miles from each other, there is a dividing ridge of low hills, not exceeding in any place 400 feet in height, and ot little width. The problem to be solved by the engineers is:-"Where is the lowest point of the divide, and through what part of the intervening country will it be most feasible to construct a canal. Commander Selfridge has already found a feasible route, but it is believed that a much better one may be found, and for that reason the corps of engineers will continue the explo of the country until the rainy season ration begins: this will probably be about the middle of April, so they still have over two months in which to continue their labors.

THE CONTEMPLATED EXPLORATIONS.

On January 13, the United States steamer Nipsic, Lieutenant-Commander Byron Wilson, arrived at the Gulf of Darien. She had been anxiously looked for during the preceding two weeks, and brought our mail with the first news from the outside world that we had had for two months. Commander Selfridge has entirely recovered from his late illness, and will sail in her to-morrow for Aspinwall, accompanied by Surgeon Linnæus Fus-Astronomer F. Blake, Bngineers A. L. Duvall and B. Jr. From Aspinwall they will cross by Stokes. railroad to Panama, where they will embark on board the United States steamer Resaca, now waiting their arrival. In her they will run dows the Gulf of San Miguel, and up the river Tuyna as far as the town of Chipogana There the enginee: s will begin a line of levels to run in a southeasterly direction across the divide. Their route will probably be some-where between the Paya and Tuyna rivers.

THE SCIENTIFIC OBSERVATIONS.

Dr. Mack, the distinguished naturalist and geologist of the expedition, has recently returned from an eight days' stay at the village of Turio or Pisini. Being thoroughly conversant with the Spanish language, he was able to obtain the confidence and good will of the natives, who assisted him grealy in making his collections, and he now has a rich store for the Zoological Museum at Cambridge, Mass. His geological researches have not yet been extended, but already coal, petroleum, and amber have been discovered. The discovery of coal is looked upon as one of the most important events of the expedition, when considered in connection with the canal project.

Botanically considered, the country is an exceedingly rich one. The celebrated balsam trees of Tolo, with sarsaparilla and a great variety of dye-woods, are found in abundance on the ranges of mountains to the eastward of the Gulf of Darlen. Besides these there are several varieties of cedars and "wool trees," and a very curious plant used by the natives as a substitute for coffee. The kernels are very small and totally different in appearance the real coffee berry; but when burnt and ground they are very similar to it in taste and smell.

EXPEDITION TO SUZIA.

This morning at daylight Lieutenant-Commander Schulze left the ship in the steam launch on a diplomatic mission to the natives of Suzia-the principal Indian village in this section of the country. He bears despatches

THE JAPANESE.

An Uncle of the Tycoon and Thirty-eight Genu-Ine Asiatics in New York, and More Coming-How They Look and Behave.

The Japanese are making a grand sortie from their native country. Considerable numbers of their most prominent young men, usually representing noble families, are dispersing themselves among the enlightened nations of the old world and the new, with the object of acquiring valuable information. The enclosing barriers have been broken through, and this year not less than one thousand young men will leave Japan, to enter upon a course of professional study in Europe and the United States.

THE NEW JAPANESE MINISTER.

Prince Ito Fugari Hisofumi, uncle of the reigning Emperor of Japan; also, Mr. Mori, the newly appointed Minister to the United States. are making a brief sojourn at the St. Nicholas Hotel, New York, en route for Washington. These, with their servants and a number of young students, make up a group of thirty-eight genuine Asiatics, who are highly enjoying the elegant suits of rooms provided for them, and the sights of the town. Yesterday, after a ride in Central Park, and a visit to a clothing establishment, they sought further recreation at one of the theatres. Only a day or two can be allowed in New York before the departure for Washington, making a deliberate examination of local attractions impossible at this time.

HOW THE JAPANESE LOOK AND BEHAVE.

At the hotels the Japanese appear much like common mortals, aside from their mild olive complexions. Their garb conforms to the prevalent style, as does the cut of their hair, peculiarities of this sort having been dropped on leaving home; and they consent to seat their bodies on four-legged chairs as gracefully as circumstances permit. Several of them converse freely in English. None could be more good-natured or unassuming. High blood and two swords, for the nonce, are of no account. But the punctilio of mutual intercourse is observed without relaxation. To go through the forms of salutation, in the presence of a high officer, is truly a laborious process, attended with an amount of grunting, bowing, and shuf-fling of hands over the knee-pan which an ordinary observer might consider quite superfluous. Should the Prince withdraw only temporarily from the room, his return would give occasion for a renewal of all the enthusiasm natural after protracted absence.

Judge Rapallo's Decision-Writ of Error Allowed and Stay of Proceedings Granted-Another Chance.

The Court of Appeals having referred the ap-plication of Rulloff's counsel for a writ of error and stay of proceedings to Judge Rapallo, he yesterday made a decision, of which the following is the important point -----I have concluded to

ALLOW THE WRIT AND STAY,

on condition that the coupsel for the prisoner stipulate forthwith to file the writ and enter an appearance for the prisoner, and to accept notice of argument for the 15th day of March, 1871, and to cause the return to the writ of error to be filed with the clerk of the Court of Appeals on or before the 18th day of March, 1871, and to furnish the printed cases to the Court and District Attorney, and proceed with the argument at the opening of court on the 15th of March, 1871, or as soon thereafter as the court shall be ready to proceed with the case. The cause to be placed at the head of the day calendar for the 15th of March.

The 11th Corps will have the honor of being the first Prussian force to occupy the capital. At 10 o'clock precisely they will enter with colors flying and bands playing, in fall war strength-30,000 strong, with ninety-six field guns. At the end of three days they will be Relieved by Another Corps, probably the Guards. The process of relief will probably involve the presence of sixty thousand German soldiers within the enceinte at one time. Each corps will remain three days and be succeeded by another, until all have had a turn.

The Whole Period of Occupation

has not yet been defined. The Parisians seem to suppose the occupation will last only a few days. This is not unlikely, but it may prove a delusive hope, for the occupation May Last Many Months, which seems not improbable from certain indications. At present the Germans may be requested by the authorities of France to occupy the city until anarchy and riot are subdued, and respect to law insured. The Government, of which M. Thiers is at the head, is not to break up the convention, and thus entail frightful misfortunes upon France. An Order of the Day, Issued by Gen.
