SOUTHERN OUTRAGES.

Terrible Condition of Affairs in South Caroling.—The Governor and Other State Officers Ordered to Leave the State—One County Left Without Officers—United States Troops Called for to Restore Order. A Washington despatch to the N. Y. Tribune says:-Prominent Republicans who have arrived here within a day or two from South Carolina, and letters received here from the capital of that State to-day, report that Gov. Scott, at the ad-vice of many leading men of both parties, held a conference last Tuesday with representative Democrats from about twenty-five counties of the State, for the purpose of consulting as to the best means of restoring order. The only Republicans present were the Governer, Attorney-General Chamberlain, and Mr. L. C. Attorney-General Chamberlain, and air. L. C. Carpenter, editor of the Columbia Daily Union. Many very fair speeches were made by Demo-crats present, and the only complaint which they made was of the insolence of the colored militia. This was admitted to some extent, and means will be taken to remedy the evil. General theorem between made a very bitter speech in Kershaw, however, made a very bitter speech, in which he announced that, in his opinion, and that which he announced that, in his opinion, and that of many of his friends, the only way to restore peace, and prevent what the Governor termed "outrages," but which he (Kershaw) regarded as but the just indignation of a plundered people, was for the scoundrelly "carpet-baggers" from the North, and the rascally "scalawags" of the South, to resign the offices they had usurned, and leave those States in the bands of usurped, and leave those States in the hands of Southern "gentlemen." He added that he heard

ATTEMPTED BANK ROBBERY. The Rebbers Bent, Gag, and Reb a Man in the Building. The success of the Kensington Bank robbery seems to have given the cue to rogues in other parts of the country. The following outrage has been briefly reported by telegraph, but details found in the Pittsburg Chronicle of last evening will be read with interest:-Last night, at about 11 o'clock, a most villain-ous and fortunately unsuccessful attempt was made to rob the bank at Indiana, Pa. The par-ticulars of the affair, as we have been able to obtain them, are as follows:--Mr. W. R. Allison, obtain them, are as follows:-Mr. W. R. Allison, the operator of the Western Union Telegraph line at Indiana, has his office in the same build-ing with the bank, and sleeps in the office. Last night he had been out spending the evening at a friend's house, and returned to the building at about 11 o'clock. As he approached the door of the building, he found four men standing there, one of whom said something about wish-ing to send a telegraphic despatch. Mr. Allison opened the door and the men passed inside with him. As soon as they entered the building, one of the men knocked Mr. A. down with a mallet, striking him on the head and inwith a mallet, striking him on the head and in-juring him seriously. They then bound and gagged him, one of them holding a revolver at his head while the operation was being per-formed. This accomplished, they dragged him into the bank and commenced operations on the safe. Before they had effected an entrance to the safe something occurred to frighten them, and they fied; but not until they had robbed Mr. Allison of $80 in money. The wounded man remained undiscovered until five o'clock this morning, when some person employed about the building discovered him. He was found so se-verely injured that he had to be carried to his home, being unable to walk. The robbers are unknown. No word of the affair has been received by the authorities here; so it is probable that the Indiana officers think the villains took some other direction than this.

well started off in the mining race as that of Utah, and rever did one so badly need to enter Utah, and rever did one so badly need to enter upon and make the most of it, for in it is wrapped up the question of the peaceful regeneration of Utah. It is probably the only remedy that would reach her disease. Agri-culture and manufactures are well estab-lished in Utah. There are 300 to 400 miles of railroads and more projected. There are thou-sands of hardy and needy laborers waiting for work. The men who are taking hold of mining have had twenty years of costly experience. The mines are very accessible. They are com-paratively low in altitude, insuring a favorable climate. They are uniformly contiguous to paratively low in altitude, insuring a favorable climate. They are uniformly contiguous to fertile valleys settled by a sober and industrious people, which, with the railroads completed, guarantee supplies, tools, provisions, and labor at very reasonable rates, perhaps at less than 50 per cent. of the cost heretofore. The country is well enough supplied with wood and water for all needful purposes. There is plenty of good combustible coal, which can be used in the blast furnace (for smelting iron), and in the smith's force, as well as otherwise, on and in the smith's forge, as well as otherwise, on the route of the Pacific Railraad, and far South, on the route of future railroads. There is iron ore, in the varieties, and accompanied by the fluxes necessary to successful smelting. Everything is favorable. Still it is no place for mere adventurers. Prospectors of experience, to hunt up the mineral treasures concealed by the soil, capital and skill to extract them from the earth and from their gangue, are all we need or want.

HEART-RENDING DISASTER.

that General Butler had a bill before Congress in which it was proposed to send a Ku-klux commissioner into every Southern county. He did not know that there was a single Ku-klux in Kershaw county, but, if such a commissioner should be sent there, a Ku-klux would be provided for his especial benefit, and that only one such commissioner would ever go there. The day after this conference, the following notice was posted on the bulletin board of the court house in Union county. The original is exhibited in this city this evening: -

AMERICA AND AUSTRALIA.

What We Send to the Great Island. The value of American goods used in Australia amounts to several millions of dollars annually. In what may be called the domestic department American manufactures reign almost supreme. The flour from which the bread is made, the oven in which it is baked, and the broom with which the industrious housewife clears away dust and cobwebs (says an exchange) all ball from America. Enter the house of an artisan, his own property in most cases, and you will find that it is built with American lumber; the doors and window sashes are American; ber; the doors and window sashes are Americau; the chair in which you sit is American; the table on which he takes his frugal meal, and the wooden bedsteads where he sleeps, are American. If he has bacon for dinner, the chances are that it once ran free in the woods of Ohio; if he has fish, they have come from Newfoundland; his coffee is from Jamaica, and his rice from Carolina. If he has bables about the house, they are fed on maizena from New York. No humberer will use any other than an York. No lumberer will use any other than an American axe, and the traveller arms himself with a revolver from America. Tubs, pails, and wooden ware in general are all American. Yet very little of the trade is carried on in American ships or from American ports. It passes through the hands of some English house, whose owners make sure of their percentage before it reaches the merchants in Melbourne, Sydney, Auckland, Adelajde, Hobart Town, or Brisbane.

SINGULAR SUICIDE.

A Man Jumps from a Bridge and Batts His Head Against a Pier.

The Lancaster Express of last evening says: -A singular suicide was committed yesterday afternoon, at 1 o'clock, at Witner's bridge, on the Philadelphia turnpike. A man apparently about fifty years of age was seen walking backward and forward on the bridge, seemingly in a spirit of unrest, which finally culminated in his mounting on the side walls, where he continued his perilous walk-at times balancing as though to recover his equilibrium. The ladies of the neighborhood noticed his peril and requested a gentleman and a boy to remove him. These persons started towards him, but before they reached him he stepped back on the bridge, removed his hat, coat, and vest, tearing the latter in half and tying a portion of it around his neck and mouth and then deliberately jumped from the bridge to the stream below, plunging down headforemost. After he reached the bottom of the creek he rose up erect (the water being shallow), and then butted his head against one of the plers, falling back and floating away with the current. His body then floated down the stream a distance of two hundred and fifty yards, where it was recovered and brought to

At about 1 o'clock on Sunday morning a disastrous collision occurred on the Morris and Essex Railroad just east of the Bergen tunnel. The down freight train, headed by the engine Sam Schock, had just passed through the tunnel on its way to Hoboken when it ran into a line of freight cars standing on a side-track. The switchman at the place had neglected to adjust the switch for the passage of the train upon its proper track, and hence the collision. The engi-neer of the freight train was thrown headlong into the swamp and badly injured. The fire-man was so badly scalded that but slight hope of his recovery is entertained. The damage to property was considerable. Four coal cars and one freight car were wrecked, and the engine was damaged almost beyond repair. The loss on property is estimated at $20,000.

IRON SHIPS.

Views of a Prominent English Builder. A prominent English shipbuilder, and the founder of a large iron shipbuilding company, on the river Tyne, at a recent meeting of the Iron and Steel Institute, in England, read an in-Interesting paper upon the relative merits of iron and wood in the construction of vessels. Among other things, he satisfactorily demonstrated that other things, he satisfactorily demonstrated that, in case of vessels of one thousand tons burden, a ship built of iron will weigh thirty-five per cent. less than a wooden vessel of the same measurement, the displacement being the same. The former will not only carry more weight, but as its walls are only half the thickness of the wooden ones, will be enabled to accommodate a greater bulk of carry. In the iron shuft is nos greater bulk of cargo. In the iron ship it is pos sible to reach a far greater degree of strength, and to build with longer and finer lines, so that bigher sailing qualities, greater speed and larger carrying power are attained as the great commercial results. The gentleman contended that a ship constructed of iron is not liable to strain in a heavy sea, while wooden ones in this way alone frequently cause the destruction of valuaalone frequently cause the destruction of valua-ble cargoes. By the use of iron masts, steel yards and wire rigging he demonstrated that a greater saving of weight may be effected, and larger facilities offered for the application of improved reefing sails and other labor-saving appliances. In fact, he insisted that such a ves-sel could carry freight at least twenty-five per cent, cheaper than a wooden one of the same measurement. His views mon the subject an measurement. His views upon the subject ap-pear to have been received with much favor by the members of the association.

What is most wanted now is order in liberty and by liberty."

Philadelphia Methodist Conference—Sixth Day —The Closing Services and Appointments. Special Despatable The Evening Telegraph.

READING, March 21 .- The fiftleth anniversary of the Missionary Society was held last evening in the spacious Presbyterian Church, which was kindly offered for the purpose. Colonel Wright occupied the chair. Addresses were delivered by Revs. Carrow and Paxson, and Rev. N. B. Baldwin, of China. The receipts of the society are a little less than last year.

The conference reopened this (Tuesday) morning, Bishop Scott in the chair. After the reading of the journal, the Commit-tee on Temperance presented their report, strongly affirming former action and pledging the most earnest efforts for the suppression of the evil of intemperance.

The Committee on Freedmen's Aid Society presented a report.

The Committee on Preachers' Lot in Mount Moriah Cemetery reported. The Committee on the Formation and Reading of Sermons presented a report, which was, after some discussion, laid on the table. The Committee on Missions appropriated five thousand dollars to feeble points within its bounds.

The Committee on Tract Cause reported. Rev. Jacob Todd was requested by vote to publish the missionary sermon he preached yesterday. By the Managers of the Missionary Society a resolution was offered in favor of the formation of a Conference Domestic Missionary Society.

A committee of three was appointed to draft a plan and submit it at the next session.

The following was submitted and passed: -

Resolved, That we most respectfully and earnestly petition the General Assembly of the Common wealth of Pennsylvania to pass the bill now pending, which contemplates the abrogation of the law that imposes a collateral inheritance tax, so far as that law applies to bequests for charitable, religious or educa-tional purposes; that the secretary of the conference be hereby instructed to place in the hands of the Speakers a copy of the foregoing resolution.

The report on education was presented, and after some discussion passed. The strongest grounds were taken in favor of greatly advanced education on the part of young men who purpose entering the ministry, and the duty of the Church to supply poor young men with the means. An offering was made towards the object. A paper was adopted requesting the Church to properly choose the lay delegates according to the plan adopted to serve in the next General Conference.

On Tuesday night, 7th instant, a young man named William Hopkins, Jr., son of William Hopkins, residing in East Mahoning township, in this county, returned home to his father house some time after the family had retired to bed. Upon entering the door young Hopkins remarked that there was an odor as of something burning in the house. His mother, who with the father slept on the lower floor, there-upon arose from bed, and she and ber son made search for the suspected fire. Finding no cause for alarm they retired to bed, the young man to the upper story. On the upper floor, in another bed, were sleeping two daughters of Mr. Hopkins, aged respectively eighteen and twenty years, and a little nephew, also named Hopkins, aged between three and four years, who had been adopted into the family.

Late in the night the elder Mr. Hopkins was awakened by the crackling of fire. Instantly perceiving that the house was ablaze, he gave the alarm, and his son up stairs sprang from his bed and rushed to the stairway, which being enveloped in flames and partly consumed, gave way under his weight, but he fortunately came off with his life. The other unconscious sleepers up stairs were called to with agonizing energy, but from whom came no response, save that the little boy was once heard to scream. A ladder was hastily procured and raised to the upper window, and an attempt made to rescue the unfortunates, but loud calls could not rouse them, and to reach them through the wall of flame enveloping them was impossible. The elder Mr. Hopkins in the attempt to do so, and to save his children's lives, was so seriously injured by inhaling the flames that his own life was well-nigh sacrificed, and he is yet in a pre-carious condition. A number of the neighbors who had now caught up the alarm arrived, but who had now caught up the and the aread, the sickening catastrophe. Help was unavailing. The flames leaped and swelled with a cruel in-tensity, and soon the upper floor fell, and with it the shreds and remains of the bed in which the three hed short the three had slept. When at last it became possible to recover the remains of the unfortunates who had so fearfully perished, a truly dreadful sight was revealed. The two young ladies and child had been burned to literal cinders and ashes, except that a portion of the chest of one of the ladies yet retained some of its form, though blackened and charred to a crisp. Never before has so heart-rending an occurrence happened in In-diana county. The remains of the three were gathered together, placed in the same coffin, and afterwards interred. Various theories are suggested as to the cause of the fire, the most probable one being that it originated from a spark that had fallen into the wood-box and there smouldered at last into flame.

OBITUARY.

Hanson Robinson. Hanson Robinson, Esq., died yesterday, at his residence, Woolton Hall, in Brandywine Hunresidence, Woolton Hall, in Brandywine Hun-dred, near this city, in the fifty-seventh year of his age. Mr. Robinson was born in this city, of Quaker parentage, his father, William Robin-son, having been engaged here in the wool and sheep-skin business for many years. Hanson succeeded him, and afterwards, on the retirement of Mr. Houston, a large wool dealer of Philadelphia, he and Mr. Houston's son, under the firm name of Houston & Robinson, succeeded to the business in that city. They pros-pered greatly in business, and, assisted by pro-minent men of wealth in this city, passed brilliantly through the crisis of 1857, and thereby established for their commission house a reputation which immensely increased its already large trade. Some years ago both partners retired with large fortunes, though Mr. Robin-son's has been somewhat lessened since by some unfortunate investments.

Deceased was a man of great force of char-acter, a remarkably successful merchant, and a genial gentleman. Mr. Robinson was liberal in his political and religious opinions, a friend of reform and reformers, and was at the time of his death one of the managers of the Delaware Association for the Improvement and Education of the Colored People, in the objects of which he always felt a warm interest.-Wilmington Commercial, March 20.

- A crazy Italian monk recently made a desperate attempt to destroy the monument over the remains of Count Cavour. It took four strong men to take the madman into custody. *
