

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

THE MILITIA TAX.

The Report of the Military Board of the First Division—The Receipts and Expenditures... The Military Board of the First Division has published a statement concerning the operations of the Militia Tax law...

As to the receipt of the Militia Tax, its many imperfections are freely admitted, and repeated efforts have been made to change its cardinal principle of supporting the militia by a commutation tax...

The following is the report of the Receiver of the Militia Board: OFFICE OF THE RECEIVER OF THE MILITARY BOARD, No. 721 SANSON STREET, PHILADELPHIA, May 2, 1871.

OF THE RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES OF THE MILITIA TAX FOR THE YEAR ENDING APRIL 30, 1871... The following is a summary of the receipts and expenditures...

Cannot be found (supposed removed)... The large number of removals is due entirely to that portion of the present law which virtually provides for the enrollment one year and a half before the expiration of the year for which the tax is due...

AN EXPERT FORGER. How his Pal Went Back on Him—Domestic Infelicity—The Wife of Two Hoaxes... At the corner of Eleventh and Market streets yesterday morning a very important arrest was made by Lieutenant C. E. Roberts, of the United States Detective force.

CRICKET.—The match between the Philadelphia and Young America Clubs, began on Friday last, at Germantown, was concluded on Tuesday in favor of the latter club. The attendance was very large and the game well contested throughout.

BIG MONITORS.

The Fleet of Iron-clads That Are Coming to League Island.

Commander Henry Erben, Jr., and Lieutenant Commanders Charles S. Norton, Robert Boyd, Jr., Charles H. Davis, Jr., and W. W. Rhodes, Jr., Masters R. E. Carnody and Henry B. Marshall, with a detachment of one hundred and fifty seamen, are now on their way in the steamer Arcton to Key West from which place they are bringing the monitors that have been lying there for some time to League Island, where they are to be laid up in ordinary. These iron-clads are:

The Dictator, second rate, of 1750 tons burden, and carrying two 15-inch guns. This single-turreted monitor is one of the largest in the service. Her length over all is 314 feet, and between perpendiculars 370 feet. Extreme breadth 59 feet, and depth 20 feet. The plating on her turret, which weighs 500 tons, is 15 inches in thickness. Her ram is 22 feet in length, of solid oak and wrought iron. Her machinery is of remarkable strength, capable of attaining 3000 horse power. The cylinders are each 100 inches in diameter, and the boilers, each of which weighs 70 tons, have an aggregate of 56 furnaces, and a grate surface of 1100 square feet. The propeller shaft alone weighs 30 tons. She was the first monitor sent to the West India "to protect American interests," and was very Department said, but to "overawe the Haytiens" while the commissioners were journeying through Dominica. If we rely upon what Senator Sumner said:

The Manhattan, fourth rate, of 550 tons burden, and carrying two 15-inch guns, was foremost in the famous battle in Mobile Bay on the 5th of August, 1864. She was then commanded by J. W. A. Nicholson. When Farragut's fleet of wooden vessels passed into the bay, the Dictator, emerging from an inlet some distance off, the famous Rebel ram Tennessee, even more formidable though similar in shape to its predecessor the Merrimac, whose success it attempted to emulate. The Manhattan carried the only 100-ton gun of the fleet, and it was her duty to send the only shot through the iron sides of the Tennessee, and eventually disabling her, when her commander ran up the white flag. Buchanan afterwards wrote: "The only vessel I had reason to fear in your Admiral Farragut's fleet was the monitor Manhattan; for she carries 15-inch guns, while the other vessels had 9-inch."

The Terror, third rate, has two turrets, and is of 1055 tons burden, carrying four 15-inch guns. She was the first of the Atlantic Squadron. She was fitted out at Boston, when her companion, the Miantonomah, was being rejuvenated here, both being ordered to join the North Atlantic Squadron in the West Indies. The latter, however, went into New York and was laid up, and the Terror continued on her voyage to the Indies. The Sanguis, fourth rate, is of 550 tons burden, and carries two 15-inch guns. She did splendid work at the capture of Fort Fisher, on the 15th of January, 1865, and was concerned in the naval operations in James and York rivers. The Wyandotte, fourth rate, of 550 tons, and carrying two 15-inch guns, has not yet tasted of war. These six iron-clads will be conveyed to League Island by a fleet of 4 vessels, viz.:—The Severn, a second-rate screw, 3000 tons burden, and carrying 14 9-inch Dahlgren and 1 60-pounder rifle. She was the flag-ship of Rear Admiral Porter, commanding the North Atlantic Squadron. The Congress, a second-rate screw of 2000 tons burthen, carrying 14 9-inch guns and 2 60-pound rifles. This vessel was built at our Navy Yard and christened the Pushmataha, but her name was changed to the Congress by Secretary Robeson. She is one of the handiest, as well as the fleetest, frigates in service. The Kansas is a fourth-rate screw of 450 tons and carries 3 guns, and the Yantic is a sloop ship. The latter saw good service at Fort Fisher.

All these vessels were comprised in Admiral Poor's squadron. There are now lying at League Island eighteen iron-clads, and when these arrive the total will be twenty-six. Besides these, we have the old ship of the line, the St. Louis, now used as a receiving ship. The concentration of these iron-clads at League Island is an indication that the Government, so long dilatory, is at last to utilize that unequalled fresh water rendezvous.

THE COAL TONNAGE OF THE PHILADELPHIA AND READING RAILROAD FOR THE WEEK ENDING SATURDAY, MAY 13, 1871, WAS AS FOLLOWS:

Table with 4 columns: Total for Week, Same week last year, Increase and Decrease. Rows include items like Passing over Main Line, Freight for Philadelphia, etc.

THE TEMPERANCE ADVOCATES IN COUNCIL.

Yesterday afternoon the seventeenth quarterly convention of the Independent Order of Hibernians of the county of Philadelphia was held in the hall of the Germantown Lodge, No. 101, Germantown. 312 delegates were present, representing 36 lodges. Alex. R. Cutler, W. Chief Templar, occupied the chair. The other officers were A. Virginia Stilla, W. Vice Templar; Theo. M. Canva, W. Secretary; Louis Wagner, W. Treasurer; Rev. Charles Schoeb, W. Chaplain; J. J. Weichman, Past Worthy Templar.

The Committee on Erection of Fountains reported as pledged nearly enough funds to commence the erection of a Good Templar's fountain. The report was received and the committee continued. Resolutions were passed commendatory of the Philadelphia Fountain Society, as follows:—Resolved, That while we affirm the action of the last convention approving of the efforts of the Philadelphia Fountain Society, which is doing a noble work by supplying man and beast with water—bright water—free to all the thirsty, and will do all we can to encourage the operations of the same we do not intend to contribute to the same.

THE PEACE PAGANT.—In the grand procession of the Germans on Monday last, the establishment of Max & Kuehn, manufacturers of sporting rifles, presented very fine appearance. There were two wagons and a barouche, each drawn by four spirited horses. The first wagon held a mammoth pipe, with thousands of minute ones dangling about it. The second wagon contained another in which seven men were smoking, and the barouche contained some of the employees. A DISPLACED WORKMAN.—William Drucan is a blacksmith by trade, and was on a strike yesterday at the shop at Sixteenth and Vine streets. Another man came to the shop and went to work, which fact displeased William, who, with a "vow" that he wouldn't work any more, went to work with his fists at the new corner. The brawny blacksmith was held in $400 bail by Alderman Jones.

"HOOK MY MONEY."

Out of the Fryer-pans into the Fire. The young fellow in this city, now happily again in the clutches of the law, who is not unknown to fame. He is but 19 years of age, and yet so nimble as a cavalier d'industrie as to win the highest encomiums from his elder brothers in crime, and to merit the title of a "hook my money" man.

To vary the monotony which the constant repetition of this sobriquet would induce, he occasionally is called "Junk Thacker's Kid." "Hook my Money," about three weeks ago, dexterously lifted a well-packed bag from the pocket of a man who would not have discovered his loss in time to catch the expert thief, had not a bystander witnessed the ingenious operation and promptly "snatched" the offender. Yesterday the case was brought before Judge Finletter and a jury; the evidence, which was of the most conclusive character, was gone through; the counsel evolved their legal lore and his Honor charged, when he to the great concern of the prosecuting attorney, and the pleasure of the "Kid" and his surrounding auditors, it was discovered that our heavy Teuton, who sat profoundly silent throughout the entire proceeding, was as innocent of the slightest knowledge of the English language as a new-born babe.

LEGAL INTELLIGENCE.

Court of Common Pleas—Judge Passon. Thomas A. McClelland vs. Peter Weaver. An application for an injunction was filed by Oliver J. Harris, of New York, owned a patent right for a process of distilling and refining whisky; that he had a conversation with defendant in New York, and that defendant went to Philadelphia to New York, and on his return to this city stated that he had purchased the patent right for the State for the sum of $40,000, exhibiting what purported to be the transfer or assignment for this State; that he stated that certain persons were anxious to purchase the same, and that he was greatly excited, and exceeding the sum paid for the whole interest for $20,000, giving defendant $10,000 in cash and two notes for $10,000 each, payable at twelve and eighteen months out of the profits of the business; that a copy of the assignment of the right for this State, which was torn up and subsequently learned that defendant had not paid $40,000 for the same, and that he did not purchase it until several years ago, and that he had paid for it for less than $20,000; and that he did not purchase it until several years ago, and that he had paid for it for less than $20,000; and that he did not purchase it until several years ago, and that he had paid for it for less than $20,000.

Assault and Battery. Court of Quarter Sessions—Judge Finletter. Policeman Thomas Gleason and Mary, his wife, were charged with assault and battery on Frederick W. Moore. It appears that a difficulty arose between the two women about a quarrel between their children. The prosecution, on the part of Mrs. Gleason, and that defendant was arrested and a warrant was placed in the hands of Policeman Gleason, who was necessary to be taken to the police station to get ready to go, but that she refused to allow her name to be put on the charge, and that she was violently abused and carried along by the police. Gleason and Gleason were acquitted of a charge of assault and battery, but ordered to pay the costs.
