THE PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD.

The Fifth Day's Proceedings of the Presbyterian Reformed General Synod-The Business of the Morning Session. The sessions of the Presbyterian Synod were continued this morning, in the Fourth Reformed Presbyterian Church, northwest corner of Eighteenth and Filbert streets. A half hour was spent in devotional exercises, the Moderator, Rev. Dr. Thompson, presiding. The subject for discussion was announced as "The Advantages of Covenanting," which was discussed by Rev. Dr. McLeod and other members of the synod. When business was resumed the minutes of the previous day's sessions were read and ap-

The Committee on Presbyterial Reports made a report which stated there was much cause for thankfulness shown by the reports from the presby-teries. But one organization had been lost to the connection during the year. The committee re-quested the presbyteries to send statistical tables with their reports in future.

The report was received and approved.

An invitation from the Union League, inviting the

An invitation from the Union League, inviting the synod to visit the League House, was presented and received with thanks.

The Moderator announced the following names, one from each presbytery, to be added to the Committee on Church Property which is endangered by the late secession:—Peter Gibson, O.; Moses Shirra, C.; James Robb, W.; James Imbrie, P.; James S. Martin, Philadelphia; Alexander Woods, N. Y.; Rev. Alexander Clarke, D. D., E.

Mr. Rentoul, the publisher of the authorized poetical church verson of the Psalms of David, made an address concerning the proposed revision of the Psalm Book.

Psaim Book.

The Committee on the Records of Presbyteries made a report, which was received and adopted.

The Committee on the Signs of the Times made a report, expressing great thankfulness for the completion of various acts of justice which have lately taken place in Europe. Some of these were in the downfall of the head of the Roman Church and the overthrow of the French empire. The committee recommend that the Church observe as a day of thanksgiving the last Thursday of November next, in addition to the day set apart by the civil authorithes. The committee also recommend that the first day of January next be observed as a day of fasting and prayer for the sins of the Church.

The hour of half-past two o'clock P. M., was fixed as the time for the meeting of the Board of Foreign

THE DEMOCRATIC CITY EXECUTIVE COMMIT-TEE.—Last night an interesting meeting of this influential body, which rules the destinies of our local Democracy, was held, with Alderman McMullin in the President's chair. A protracted debate sprung up on the question to postpone the convention to nominate Mayor until September, and by this delay gain any advantages that might be developed by the weakness of the opposition. Without coming to a conclusion on this point, the selection of persons to organize the various city and county conventions was made. Squire McMullin was selected to see the Mayor's Convention fully launched into the sea of noisy discussion, and the meeting was then adjourned.

TRIFLING FIRES,—An imperfect flue occasioned a small fire at five o'clock this morning at the bakery of H. Gengenbach, No. 28 North Fifteenth street. A couple of police officers extingnished it. Wainwright's new mill on the Delaware, at the foot of Columbia avenue, was damaged to a small extent by fire at six o'clock this morning. The house of Mrs. Cleff, No. 4512 Leiper street, Frankford, was set fire to at nine o'clock this morning by children who were playing with matches. The loss is about $100.

The saw-mill of James W. Cooper, No. 1235 Pine street, was slightly damaged by fire at 8 o'clock this morning.

A TREASURER KNOCKED DOWN AND ROBBED. -Mr. James Morrow is the treasurer of a building association, and he lives on South street, below Broad. Last night, shortly after 10 o'clock, he was returning home from a meeting of the association, when he was met on the east side of Broad street, below South, by five men. who, observing the tin box under his arm, and knowing his business, knocked him down, stole the box, and then jumped into a cab and drove rapidly off. We are happy to state that the scoundrels secured nothing of any great value, for all the box contained was a few books and

A SERIOUS STABBING AFFRAY .- There was a fight at Thirteenth and Callowhill streets last night, between two colored men named Frank Thornton and John Taylor. The result of this melee was the reception by Taylor of two very bad wounds in the left breast, inflicted by a knife in the hands of Thornton. Taylor was taken to his home, at No. 1316 Pearl street, and so serious are his wounds that it is feared he will not recover. Thornton was arrested, and has been sent to jail by Alderman Massey to await the results of the injuries of the stabbed

DARING HIGHWAY ROBBERY .- A couple of thleves did a daring piece of business in the highway robbery line, at Twenty-second and Walnut streets, at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon. They met a workman standing there, and one of them deliberately throttled, him while the other stole a small quantity of cash from his pocket. They made their escape, but a police officer arrested on the charge one Edward Ragan, who is now locked up in the Central Station awaiting a hearing.

REVENGEFUL SOCIALISTS .- Two members of a social club, named John McGinnis and Charles McGregan, were arrested yesterday, on two charges, viz., for corner lounging and larceny. The accused were charged with having, some time ago, entered the rooms of the club at Thirteenth and Poplar streets, and stole a numbe of pictures and a few other trifles. They did this, it seems, out of revenge for their expulsion from the association. Alderman Massey has held each in $1000 bail to answer.

ALCOHOLIC BELLIGERENCY .- Officer Dighan attempted to arrest one Charles McCully, who was drunk, last night, at Tenth and Fitzwater The drunken man resisted, and planted a bunch of fives between the optics of the policeman. This availed McCully nothing, for the officers lauded him in the station house, and Alderman Bonsall has bound him over for SHOE BLACKING .- A case containing small boxes of shoe blacking was stolen from the front of a grocery store at Sixteenth and South streets, last night, by a man named William Elliot. A friend of Elilot, named May, when the former was arrested, attempted to whip the police officer, and for this he was also taken in custody. Alderman Morrow sent both to prison.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT.-At Horticultural Hall, this evening, the Sunday-schools of the Church of the Evangelist will repeat their vocal and instrumental concert. Notwith-standing the inclemency of the weather, the last concert was a pariect success, the hall being filled, and the entertainment giving such satisfaction that a repetition was demanded.

THE GAS TRUST .- With great secreey the Gas Trustees and a committee of councils have been preparing for a trip to Michigan—perhaps to investigate into the workings of some rural gas manufactory. They will probably leave on Thursday evening. The only interesting question to the tax-payers connected with this jaunt is. "Will the city foot the bill?"

UNBOXED CIGARS,-Frederick Sappingto was vesterday arrested at Eighth and streets, by Deputy United States Marshal Beale, on the charge of selling cigars unboxed and un stamped. The prisoner is reputed to be an old offender. This morning he was brought before United States Commissioner Clark and bound over for his appearance at court.

FALL FROM A WINDOW, -G. A. Sturmfelder, living at No. 202 Girard avenue, fell this morn-ing at 2 o'clock from the second-story window of the house, and was badly injured.

THE "UNTERRIFIED."

They Prepare to Carry the State Convention by Storm.

This morning there assembled at the Pennsylvan)a Railroad a distinguished coterie of Philadelphians, in the novelty of white shirt-fronts, spruce-looking coats, and faultless gloves. It was none other than the Moyamensing Association, marshalled by the astute William McMullin, ex-President of the late "Moya" Hose Company, and referee in the Mace-Coburn mill that proved such a ridiculous fiasco. They were all delegates to the State Democratic Convention, which meets to-morrow in Harrisburg, wherein the rustle politicians will have an opportunity to discern some of those "ways that are dark" so common to Democratic engineering in this city. McClurg's band headed the distinguished body, which was thus composed: -SENATORIAL DELEGATES.

LEGAL INTELLIGENCE.

Prison Cases.

Court of Quarter Sessi Bernard Shannon, a tall, ungainly youth, was tried upon the charge of stealing two coats belonging to Patrick Smith, at whose house he The testimony went to show that Shannon was seen leaving the house one even ing with a bundle under his vest, and that night Smith's coats were missed. When accused. Shannon said the coats he took out were his, and he subsequently produced a pawn ticket, by which the coats were recovered. Mr. Hagert said be hardly thought this evidence sufficient to warrant a conviction, and a verdict of not guilty was rendered. Thomas Applegate was tried upon the charge of assault and battery upon Lina Ziegler, and carrying a concealed deadly weapon. It was testified that he and some frolicsome friends went to the lady's house in the afternoon, and, unbidden, went in, helped themselves to water, and then impudently took a shovel away with them. Shortly afterwards they returned and stormed the house with bricks, and when Miss Ziegler went out to return the fire, Applegate hit her on the face with a steel knuckle The defense offered a speech of counsel denying the facts, and urging that there could be no conviction on the second count, because the weapon, instead of being concealed, was used

Jury out. James Logue and John Jenkins, allas Walker. were put on trial for entering the house of Conrad Hopf, No. 1880 Girard avenue, with intent to steal. It was testified that one day last winter the prisoners went to Mr. Hopf's shoe store and were measured for shoes. They stayed a good while, looking about and talking, and observing a new fire-proof safe in one corper, they examined it and thought it very much like one they had, and Jenkins remarked, "It is right to keep money in the house, much safer than in bank." Several nights after that the house was forcibly entered through the kitchen window, but nothing was stolen. There were tracks of feet in the mud which corresponded in size to the prisoners' feet. N. Y. MONEY MARKET YESTERDAY.

From the N. Y. Herald. "The week opened on continued ease in the money market, with a general pressure to lend-balances Some loans were standing over at five per cent, unaltered, and some small amounts were forced in a hurry and brought only two per cent. On stocks the general rate was four per cent., and on governments three to four. Prime commercial paper is in request, and, doubtless, could be placed without much bargaining at as little as five per cent discount.

"The Government during the week will buy, on Wednesday, two millions of five-twenties, and sell, on Thursday, two millions of gold The suggestion is again made that the Secretary of the Treasury should direct the offers of bonds to be made in gold prices. It is also intimated that Mr. Boutwell will shortly begin to draft the five-twenties for cancellation, but why he should do so until he can no longer buy them at less than par in gold in the open marcet is not readily seen.

"The sympathy established between the gold and Government markets was quite perceptible in the downward tendency of both to-day, although the falling off in the latter was less marked—a very natural result when money is so easy. The changes were not important. Otherwise the list-wasesteady. The gold market was dull, and in the absence of the support of the operators, whose interests ceased last week, became heavy, the price eventually going off from 112 to 111%. The temper of the room is temporarily bearish, now that the market has turned and that the foreign exchanges have lost their firm ness. The question of peace at Paris is almost too new as yet to have any effect, whatever result may be produced in the future by the re-storation of financial intercourse between London and the French capital. The same problem is now presented for solution which was offered when Paris presented for solution which was observed when Paris originally capitulated to the German army. Will the rehabilitation of her numerous industries by France be so rapid as to occasion such a drain of specie out of London as to render the money market in that centre active? And, if so, active enough to depress American and other securities enough to mark up the price of gold in this market?"

The Indians were at the Interior Department again this morning, and indulged in another talk with the Commissioner. Vincent Colyer was present and took part in the conference. The chiefs related substantially the same stories that were told vesterday. Little Raven presented the Commissioner with a pipe and a finely worked buffalo robe, which he drew from his own shoulders and threw around the Commissioner. Several of them to-day were in their savage costume, and had their faces painted, Indian etiquette requiring it, as they proposed visiting the President. After a short council they were taken to the Executive Mansion, after which they took a stroll through the town, and returned to the Indian Office to hear the Commissioner's response to their request. They will probably leave Washington this evening for Philadelphia.

The President gives permission to Little Raven to visit the Northern Cheyennes and Arrapahoes for the purpose of bringing them south, and will also allow limited quantities of ammunition to be supplied to their people. He will ask Congress to define the boundaries of their reser-

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 23 .- About 11 o'clock last night, as the Lockport train on the Central Railroad was passing Tonawanda, two men half intoxicated stepped aboard the train. When the conductor, Mr. Winn, called for their fare, abusive language was used. The train was stopped, and with the aid of the brakemen both men were put off. As the train started, one of the men, named John Cotter, of Brockport, attempted to jump aboard, but missed his hold and fell under the wheels, cutting off both legs and arms. The train was stopped and the injured party taken to the hospital in this city, where he died this morning. Conductor Winn was arrested for manslaughter, and will have an examination to-day.

Franklin county was passed.

Mr. Allen moved to discharge the General Judiciary Committee from the consideration of the local option bill. Lost by a party vote. On motion of Mr. Davis, the vote on the resolution fixing May 23 for adjournment was reconsidered and the matter was postponed. Mr. Dill offered the following: -

Mr. Din offered the following:

Resolved, That the House of Representatives be requested to take such action upon said bill now in their custody as to prevent its failure, either by concurring in the Senate amendments thereto or returning the said bill to the Senate for action. Mr. Brooke moved to substitute so as to in-another committee of conference.

Mr. Dill raised a point of order that it was not germane, and it was so ruled. Mr. Dill said the position of the majority in the Senate was very plain. The resolution of Saturday was made necessary so that the public business could be proceeded with.

The action had been called revolutionary, but it had no such design, and was only made necessary by the House refusing to appoint a committee of conference on the bills. The House has exclusive charge of the Appropriation bill, and can return it.

Mr. Billingfelt thought this resolution might be proper if the House had been officially notified of Saturday's proceedings. Mr. Brooke and Mr. Delameter thought the resolution was offered as a means of getting out ot a muddle.

The House met at 10 A. M. THE DUNGEON.

A Description of the Horrible Dungeon in Which the Correspondents with Double Salaries are Detained-Senatorial Bru-

From the Washington Sunday Herald.

On Thursday last, after the adjournment of he Senate, Messrs. White and Ramsdell, the "contumacious" correspondents, were formally handed over to the custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms. They were escorted from the Chamber to an ante-room by Vice-President Colfax, who took one on each arm. Here they held ouite a levee, and were called on not only by their friends, but by many sympathizing strangers and Senators.

Later they were conducted to the quarters assigned to them in the room of the Senate Committee on Pacific Railroads. They were afterwards released for a short time on parole to visit their families and arrange their business affairs. They then returned to their dungeon where Sergeant-at-Arms French had meantime provided sleeping accommodations. This dungeon is a large and pleasant room on the west front of the Senate wing, and on the same floor with the galleries. The two windows look down upon the beautiful grounds of the Capitol, and out upon the city, with the Potomac and the Virginia shore in the distance.

In a smaller room, opening out of the larger one, are two comfortable[single beds and toilet conveniences, with hot and cold water at command. The furniture and fixtures of both rooms are elegant and comfortable, and sympathizing friends have contributed flowers to add to the attractiveness of the surroundings. The prisoners are furnished their meals from the Senate restaurant in the basement, and breakfast, dine, and sup a la carte. They are permitted to see their families and friends, and are simply guarded from unwelcome intruders. This, however, is the bright side of the picture. It has its darker aspect :. It is unpleasant, at best, to be taken from a happy home and separated from the bosom of your family, but when, as is the case with one of these gentlemen, there is the additional sorrow of being taken from the bedside of a sick child, who cannot understand why papa does not come home, it may readily be imagined that the gilded surroundings are of very little moment. It is thought the imprisonvery little moment. It is thought the imprison-ment of Messrs. White and Ramsdell may not extend beyond the end of the present session; but should it be protracted, and the health of either suffer thereby, there will be a fearful re-sponsibility resting upon their jailers, for which they will have to suffer.

The Discoverer of Modern Angesthesia. To the editor of the Tribune: -Sir-I notice with regret an editorial paragraph in your paper of Friday, May 12, speaking of the appropriation for a monument to the late Dr. Horace Wells, by the City Council of Hartford, in which you suggest some doubt as to whether Dr. Wells was the discoverer of modern anasthesia. The popular verdict on this matter puts Dr. Wells' position as the discoverer of anæsthesia beyond question, and as representative of that opinion permit me to name Valentine Mott, Isaac Taylor, M. D., President of Bellevue Hospital College, Professor Frank Hamil ton, Professor Doremus, Fordyce Barker, M.D. and, I may add, nearly every member of the medical profession in this city and throughout the The following scientific and other bodies have, without hesitation, most emphatically indorsed the claims of Dr. Wells, viz.:- The General Assembly of Connecticut, by resolutions of thanks in 1847, and again in 1870 by an appropriation of $5000 towards a monument: the City Council of Hartford, by the resolutions referred to, appropriating $10,000 towards a monument; the Connecticut State Medical and Dental Societies: the Hartford County Medical and Dental Societies; the New York State Medi cal and Dental Societies; the American (National) Dental Association; and last, but not least, the American (National) Medical Association, the highest medical authority in the country. The decision of America is accepted as final in Europe; and I think that I am safe in saying that to-day the world recognizes Dr. Horace Wells as the author of this greatest dis-New York, May 17, 1871.

Incidents of the Paris Revolt. —The decree doing away with night-work has deprived the Paristans of fresh bread for break-fast, but it enables bakeries in the suburbs to send in their bread in time to compete with the Paris establishments.

—When Prince Bismarck, at Ferrieres, pointed out the danger to which the French Govern-ment was exposing itself by leaving arms in the hands of the populace, M. Favre proudly and indignantly answered, "Count, we have no populace." The French Minister must now admit his mistake.

-Rossel, who, apart from his official posi-tion, is regarded as the leading spirit of the Paris revolt, acquired literary celebrity by arti-cles which he wrote for a Paris journal, proving that the works on strategy attributed to Napoleon I by the commission named to complete his correspondence were not and could not be his work. Ambition is Rossel's ruling passion. —The grand total of the National Guard on whom the Commune can count stands at 190,425 men, of whom, on the day when the muster-roll was made up, 162,561 answered to the call. Of the entire number, 96,325 belonged to the marching legion—that is, those who are prepared to go out of Paris to fight; and 94,100 to Sedentary Guards, who are mainly employed at garrison duty.

—Certain noblemen and wealthy persons in England, says a London journal, have received the following letter from some one signing himself a Delegate of the Paris Commune: Lord—By order of the Committee of Public Safety, I have come from Paris to sell the pictures of the Louvre at once, and for cash only. Should your lordship like to buy any of them, your grace would do well to grant me an interview. This note is strictly confidential, and I rely on your lordship's honor to keep my mission a secret. -Among the captives taken at Moulin Saquet, outside Paris, was an interesting-looking young woman, in the uniform of a cantiniere. Her story is that some months ago she became the wife of a young man who, after the breaking out of the civil war, was forced to serve in the ranks of the insurgents. For eight days she was without any tidings of him, and in her despair she adopted the uniform in which she was wounded and captured, in order that she might visit all the outposts in search of her husband. She had not succeeded in finding him, and she does not know whether he is living. Had she been successful she would have died by his side rather than have been separated from him again. The wound this heroine received is only slight, and everything is being done to promote her recovery. -One little incident of the destruction of the Column of the Place Vendome may be mentioned as charmingly illustrative of the reason-able patience of the Parisian mob. 'The column at first stood firm; the windlass broke; M. Abadle, who superintended the work, demanded two hours in which to repair the tackle, whereupon there was great popular disapprobation; M. Abadie was charged with treacherous complicity with the Versallies Government, and there was a loud demand that he should be guillotined. Fortunately, for the poor man's head, at the next stretch cable the column came down. But could there be anything more Frenchy than the sagacious suspicion that, because M. Abadie's windlass was too weak for the work, he must of neces-sity have been plotting with M. Thiers. There's French revolutionary logic for you!

-The King of Bavaria is reported to enter-tain a serious idea of turning Protestant, just to spite the ultramontane party.
