Day.

From Our Own Correspondent,

EASTON, Wednesday, June 21, 1871. The regular commencement exercises of Lafayette College were held here this week, the date, however, being somewhat earlier than that of the similar occasions of former years. The exercises have passed off, without exception, in the most satisfactory manner, the weather being the utmost that could be desired. The college graduated to-day a class of thirty-six members, which is the largest number that has ever belonged to any one graduating class since the formation of the college.

The entire undergraduate department of the college shows the most flourishtng state of affairs. The faculty is now complete in all departments, and the best men to be found in all cases fill the chairs. The attendance in all the classes is very large and an increasing number of students is looked forward to every year. The interest taken by all parties, the alumni, the trustees, the contributors and friends of the college, and the citizens of Easton, who take great pride in their institution, is of the most lively description. Under such auspicious circumstances the college cannot but prosper. Its star is certainly in the ascendant, and its numerous friends devoutly believe that it will so continue until the name of Layfayette shall become as well and as favorably known as the name of any one of her older sister institutions in either the old or the new world.

The Baccalaureate. The first official proceeding of the commencement was the delivery of the Baccalaureate sermon, which was preached on Sunday last to the graduating class by Professor Cattell, the President of the college.

The text was in Psalms lxxviii, 9, "The children of Ephraim being armed with bows turned back in the day of battle." The aim of the discourse was to show that all men had certain duties and responsibilities, but that some, like the "armed bowman" in ancient warfare had still greater responsibilities on account of the more important trusts committed to them. At the conclusion of the sermon the speaker addressed the members of the graduating class, reviewing their history and giving exprestion to the affectionate interest he felt in them all. He reminded them that their college course had fitted them for eminent service in this age of intellectual activity; like the men referred to in the text they were "armed and carrying bows," and God would then hold them responsible for great results. He concluded as follows:—

The saddest sights in this world are the moral wrecks which are floating all over Time's sea. Men led captive by their passions, slaves to the animal, dead to every noble impulse. In their plans for the future and in the occupations of their lives they have regard only to the physical. They never seem to dream, or if they do it is only a dream, that they are destined for an immortal existence, that they have untold capacities slumbering within, fires burning which eternity will not extinguish. They are big children, or human swine; they play their brief part here, and then disappear into nothing-

Class Day. The class-day exercises were held on Monday afternoon on the college campus. A tent had been erected in case of rain, and the preparations by the graduating class for their real farewell to "Alma Mater" were complete and successful. The character of the addresses was without exception of the very highest order. A prayer was made by Rev. Dr. Eckard, after which Mr. O. J. Harvey opened the proceedings and welcomed those present. The first oration was delivered by William Wiely, Jr., entitled "The Cultivation of the Beautiful."

Next was read the "History," by Mr. O. J. Harvey, beginning with the appropriate quota-

"And now I will unclasp the secret book, And to your quick conceiving discontent, I'll read you matter deep and dangerous." It consisted of a history of the class during its four years of college life and experience, and was remarkably true as to facts.

Mr. Bryan followed with the "Tree Oration. He speke of the past of the class of '71, their meeting as strangers, their parting as friends. Their happiest hours had fled while connected with Lafayette, and it was but natural that they should wish to leave on the old campus a parting token. They therefore planted a tree. sacred to the memory of the class. As typical of their common aspirations and friendship, they had chosen the tulip-tree.

Then came, by Mr. F. W. Edgar, "An Exposition of the Science of Physiognomic-Cranio-logy," together with "An examination of the Crania of the class," an attempt full of wit, and exciting responsive mirth. Next followed "Presentations" by J. S. Axtell.

Esq., consisting of a speech accompanied by some comic manipulations of a "Spree Horn," which was finally presented to Mr. David King, a prospective "tutor" in Lafayette College, with instructions to take it to the Faculty, and

"guard it tenderly."

The "Parting Song of '71" was then sung, written by Mr. Crawford, of the class. The last oration was a valedictory by W. B. Owen. The speaker spoke of college friend-ships and the power of love. "Lock up your money-bags if you will; get knowledge and keep it if you must: but woe to the man who hoards the wealth of his heart." The man is independent of his Alma Mater. However the college may fare, manhood is eternal. On the evening of Monday the class day concert was given in the Court House by Dodworth's band, of New York, which has been in attendance during the week, officiating at all the per-formances, including the commencement proper.

The Reunions of the Literary Societies. On Tuesday morning the annual reunions of the two literary societies connected with the college, the Washington and the Franklin, were held in the halls of the respective organizations. In Washington Hall, after the opening roll call, Rev Mr. McFetridge, of 64, led in prayer. The orator of the day, Hon, A. C. Trippe, of '64, was then introduced, who delivered an eloquent and stirring discourse, which had for its subject the "Triumphs of Oratory." James A. McKnight then arose to deliver the farewell address of '71 to the hall, having chosen for his subject the all important one of his discourse. Then followed remarks from several of the old members present. Rev. Mr. Tally spoke of the days when the college was on the other side of the Lehigh, when Washington Hall was yet in its infancy. Rev. Mr. Hudson exhorted the members of the hall to the utmost faithfulness in the discharge of their duties to it, assuring them that it was one of the most important of the college exercises. Mr. Stem referred to the days of 1832, when the initiation fee was twelve and a half cents, and the society had as yet no fixed abode. Hon. A. K. McClure expressed his appreciation of the value of literary societies, Bot only as a means of intellectual but of social culture. Ex-Governor Pollock declared himself pleased with the growth of the society, and desired to know whether his last year's prediction—that one-half of its members would be married in a year—had been fulfilled. Some doubt being expressed, Rev. S. A. Mutchmore urged the expediency of early assuming the conjugal yoke, and added a few words upon the necessity of firm principles to enable one to perform his part in life.

After some discussion upon the present and future of the hall, and promises of assistance, pecuniary and otherwise, from the members, the society finally adjourned.

In Franklin Hall, F. Gutellus, the special presiding officer, called the session at 9 o'clock, and Rev. C. R. Mills, of the class of '53, a missionary to China, led in prayer. Walter Q. Scott, of the class of '65, tutor of Greek, was then introduced and delivered an eloquent oration on "Revelation."

W. S. Fulton, of '71, in behalf of the graduation on "Revelation."

W. S. Fulton, of '71, in behalf of the graduating class, gave the valedictory address, taking for his subject "Development." The present was taken as the development from the past, and thus, by the examination of the past time, do we solve the problem of the present. Development, unlike other principles, has a universal application. All true systems of educa-tion are founded on it. There is, he continued, at least enough of truth in its theory in animal organization to cause the intelligent world to ring with combat for and against it. Revelation and Darwin seem at least to disagree; but if all other objections to his theory should be obviated, revelation would soon, by the power of modern criticism, be explained away. The speaker then gave the farewell to the hall and

In reply to the valedictory address, H. Rumer spoke on "The Reign of Peace." After the close of Mr. Rumer's address, the alumni strangers present were called on. Rev. Mr. Mills spoke on the missionary work; Gover-nor Pollock piedged his hearty co-operation for the success of college societies; Rev. Mr. Gaily and Rev. Mr. Burrows made short addresses Dr. Edgar urged upon the members to Edgar urged upon the members to take more interest in society affairs, and Rev. Mr. Mutchmore urged the need of a new hali. Mr. Walter Q. Scott spoke in the same strain. Rev. James Long, Dr. Junkin, H. B. Bunstein, and W. S. Kirkpatrick also made short speeches, after which the hall was adjourned with prayer

The Alumni Association.

This body assembled in Jenks Chemical Hall at 2 o'clock P. M., on Tuesday. The meeting was called to order by Rev. W. A. Jenks, President of the association, and prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Jones, Chaplain of the Sailors' Home, Snug Harbor, N. Y. Rev. W. A. Jenks, of class of 55, was re-elected President, who inducted himself into office by a very interesting speech. Rev. George G. Porter, of South Care. speech. Rev. George G. Porter, of South Caro-lina was elected Vice-President; Treasurer, Elisha W. Allis, Esq., of Easton; Secretary, Professor Seldon J. Coffin; Temporary Clerk, Rev. J. Burrows. The following gentlemen were ap-pointed the Business Committee:—Mr. H. L. Bunstein, Rev. D. S. Banks, and M. N. Applegate. The following necrological list for the year was then read:-

Daniel S. Dusenberre, died at Bedford, N. Y., June 29, 1871. Principal of Seminary. William Lewis Davis, died at Easton, October 3, 1870. Aged 43. Editor of the Easton Daily Express.

Edward P. Field, died at Easton, April, 1871. Rev. William Hunter, died at Clinton, Pa.

October 5, 1870. Aged 56. Rev. Oscar Parke, died at Chetsworth, Illinois January 25, 1871. Aged 54. For a time one of the Faculty of Carroll College, Wis.

Prof. Jacob Person, died at Belvidere, N. J., March 19, 1871. Professor in the Polytechnic College, Philadelphia. John M. Siegfried died at Easton, April 1, 1871. A numismatist and antiquarian.

The Committee on the Alumni Monument in honor of students of the college who had fallen in the late war reported that the delay in the erection of the monument had been occasioned by the inability of the committee to agree. Over thirty plans have been examined. work is now under contract by the builders of the Gettysburg Monument. The material will be white granite, en ivened with shields and stars, and with the form of a soldier standing thereon. The contract price is $4600. To this should be added $250 for other incidental expenses, and counting the cost of the foundation already erected, the total cost will be about $5450. The committee urged the alumni to be prompt in paying the subscription.

Rev. John E. Nassau, clerk of the General Assembly, and the orator, was introduced and delivered an address dwelling on the natural love graduates had to return to their Alma Mater, and renew the memory of by gone days and to enjoy again the charms of college life. A poem entitled "War" was then read by Nath. McFetridge, of Oil City, Pa., a member of the class of '64.

Presentations. After the adjournment of the Alumni Associa tion, the faculty, headed by President Cattell and Dr. Green, walked in procession to Professor J. H. Coffin's residence, to make him a very satisfactory visit. On entering the parlor, President Cattell addressed Dr. Coffin in a neat speech, saying that they-the faculty-had come to gratulate him on his silver college wedding. he having that day completed his twenty-fifth year of consecutive college work in connection with Lafayette. The President said that they were ever proud of his good works, and wished that he would live many years yet, and be able to celebrate his golden college_wedding. then presented the venerable Doctor with a silver pitcher, salver, and two goblets. Professor Coffin responded in a short address, thanking the faculty for its kind remembrances. Then, after pleasant congratulations, those present withdrew. Another but an informal presentation was, also made during the week by the students of the graduating class to the college. The class subscribed the sum of $175, to be used for a subscription to three valuable works for the use of the college library, namely, "The publications of the Early English Text Society," the "Publications of the Chaucer Society," and the "Publications of the Ballad Society." These works are very valuable to the English student, and with this addition, the libraries of Easton now contain the best and most complete apparatus for the study of the early English and the Anglo-Sexon languages that can be found in any library in the country. The Address Before the Combined Literary Societies. On Tuesday evening the annual address before the Washington and Franklin Societies was delivered in the Brainerd Church by Alexander McClure. This address has already appeared in full in the columns of THE EVENING TELE-GRAPH. Fine music enlivened the exercises, and a very large audience was in attendance.

Class and Society Reunious, etc. The various secret societies held their annual reunions on Monday and Tuesday evenings, in different localities. The class of 61 held its decentennial on Tuesday morning, when they partook of a breakfast together. The class secretary made the following report: - Deaths since graduation-F. M. Cruickshank, Luther Davis, Daniel S. Dusenberry, Ralph S. Parker, and Jacob Person. Of the surviving members of the class, seven are married, two are engaged. and one is unencumbered. The class, after an interchange of the experiences of the past ten years, adjourned to meet again in 1880, their quarter of a century meeting. F. A. R. Baldwin, Esq., was requested to act as secretary until the next meeting.

The present quarter century graduates held their reunion on Tuesday afternoon. Reunions of other classes were also held at different times during the week.

The Sophomore undergraduate class held its first annual "wrinkle" on Wednesday morning, at the very early hour of 1 o'clock A. M., on the college campus, in the presence of some of the faculty, members of the alumni, students, and The proceedings were of a very comical order.

The Commencement. This morning, Wednesday, the exercises pro-per of the Thirty-sixth Annual Commencement were held, the day being one of the finest and most comfortable that has greeted the occasion for many years. Headed by Dodworth's Band, the Senior Class proceeded in a body to the Brainerd Church to receive the Trustees and Faculty, after which they marched down Second street to the Commencement Church. Arriving at the church, the Trustees and Faculty ascended to the platform, and the class to seats assigned them immediately in front of it. The trustees present were Hon James Pallack, Faculty rustees present were Hon. James Pollock, Rev. Dr. Robert Hamill, W. C. Lawson, James McKeen, Matthew Hale Jones, Rev. Samuel F. Colt, James Ross Snowden, A. Pardee, Alfred Martien, Rev. Dr. James M. Knox, Barton H. Jenks, and Morris Patterson.

The prizes were awarded as follows;-The Fowler prize to W. Baxter Owen for the best essay on the subject of the life and writings of Burns. The prize was a set of Burns' works and a Scottish dictionary, all very handsomely bound.

The junior mathematical prize of $20 in gold was awarded to James J. Good. The prize of $30 for astronomy and the working of the observatory was awarded to James C. Crawford, of the graduating class. In conferring this prize the president stated that the recipient of the same prize last year, Mr. Richard W. Bryan, had just succeeded in passing the examination, had been admitted to the Coast Survey Department, and is now under appointment to sail with ment, and is now under appointment to sail with Captain Hall on the Polar expedition. From the valedictory address by Mr. Owen we select the following: — Gentlemen of the Board of Trustees: —We turn to address you, the keepers of the honor and prosperity of our Alma Mater, with feelings of profound respect and gratitude. The benefits which we have ourselves received from the course of instruction would be sufficient to prompt this; but we stand on broader ground. We think of the far-reaching results of work such as yours. Society, government and faith, as well as science and literature, depend, under God, upon those who devise the means and the plans of education. We are glad to see that to a work of such intensely vital consequence men of sterling attainments are called.

Mr. President:—To the poble work of which

Mr. President:-To the noble work of which I have just spoken you have brought strong hands and a willing heart. Of your success, men of two continents, who speak and write, have left us little to say. These say nothing of your personal relations to us—that you have stood over us as a teacher and pastor not only, but as an exemplar of Christian energy and zeal. We have reason to rejoice that upon us have been the influences of your life—a life whose strength is faith, leaping into the future, grasping unseen certainties, and from them drawing a might that is magnificent; a life whose beauty is a love that labors, a hope that waits. "Thou hast asked a hard thing," said that mighty old man of God, when Elisha would have a double portion of his spirit; but the mantle fell upon him. How large a portion of the spirit of your noble predecessor has fallen upon you, let the prosperity of our college bear witness. Gentlemen of the Faculty:—You are endeared to us by all the qualities of mind and heart that commend men to their fellows. Yet friendship alone is not our parting theme. You have been our instructors, but more than the facts of science and language, more than the laws of matter, are the principles of action you have labored to instil. Silent but mighty is the power of mind over mind, the strong strengthening the weak, the high lifting the low toward its own plane of thought and principle. From the teacher go out influences that mould character. That is an enduring work.

Students of Lafayette:-We come to you with a brotherly good-by. Our companionship as fellow-students ceases to-day. Our advice to you is stand up in the dignity of thought and reason, but stand higher in the greater dignity of faith. I need not tell you that life is short and uncertain. Four times in three years death has come to this little company and written this lesson on our sad hearts. From the unseen realms of another life-from Lewis, and Camp, and Smith, and Thompson-there comes to us the admonition, "Think, believe, and act for Classmates:-There are times when men pause. Seasons change, time flies on without ceasing: but human life is not spending time -it is the economy of action. And it seems to me there is nothing grander about a man than that he can stop; no period about which there gathers such intense interest as about that when, not in idleness, but in the co-ordination of thought and purpose, in the mastery of himself, a man stands still. We have come to such a time today. Our college course is run; life is before May this with us be a period characterized by the best of hopes, the noblest of aspirations. nut Hill, Phila. After the degrees were conferred, another sur-prise was found to await Professor Coffin. A delegation from all the undergraduate students, headed by Mr. J. Meigs, of the graduating class, stepped upon the platform and presented the Professor with a handsome gold watch in remembrance of his twenty-fifth anniversary of the professorable. the professorship. Professor Coffin was com-pletely taken by surprise, but returned his hearty thanks. The President thereupon handed him a letter containing a handsome testimonial of money from members of the Board of Trus-tees. Professor James H. Coffin is now, with the single exception of Prefessor Traill Green, the senior member of the faculty.

The Alumni Dinner. From the commencement church the members of the alumni and the officers of the college proceeded in a body to the lecture-room of the First Reformed Church, where the usual handsome dinner had been spread by the ladies of Easton. Ample justice was done to the substantials by the very large number present, after which ex-Governor Pollock, the President of the Board of Trustees, was called upon by President Cattell to preside. The customary Psalm, the 122d, "How did my heart rejoice to hear," was then sung by the entire assemblage standing. Governor Pollock on taking the chair spoke as Friends and Alumni of Lafayette College:—We have met here to-day under the most auspicious circumstances, to do aonor to our Aima Mater. The commencement exercises of to-day have been of the commencement exercises of to-day have been of the most gratifying character. Everything shows the greatly increased prosperity of our college. As I ascended the hill yesterday to the college building, at every step I saw something new to attract the attention, something that had not been there last year. Improvement everywhere seemed to be the order of the day. After due consideration, I have no hesitation in saying, as I have said before, that in everything that constitutes a first class college, in the number and efficiency of the faculty, and in everything pertaining to such an institution college, in the number and efficiency of the faculty, and in everything pertaining to such an institution, our college can to-day compare with any other college that we have in this land, and I firmly believe, further, with anything to be found in the old country also. Age is not measured by years, but by the strides that have been taken.

The Governor then offered the health of President Cattell, which was drunk in pure cold water.

The President responded in a few felicitous remarks. He noticed particularly several points connected with the history of the college. He said that this was the first commencement for many years at which there had been no an nouncement of the founding of a new professorship. The reason of its omission was that the curriculum is now complete, and no new professorships are needed. The institution now possesses all the appointments of a first-class college. He also noticed the size of the graduating class, which is double in numbers that of last year. A noticeable feature is that nearly all the class are professing Christians. He re-ferred to the appointment of Mr. Bryan, of the class of '70, to the Polar expedition; to the long term of service of Professor J. H. Coffin; and to the fact that the technological degrees were to-day conferred for the first time. The speaker remarked that, though the course of study was now complete and the college on a firm basis, he had not yet renounced his peculiar occupation of collect-ing funds for the college. The trustees have not stopped at anything to make a fine college course of training, and consequently have not always had the funds of the endowment in their hands when founding a new professorship. In concluding, President Cattell stated that he had lately received a letter from Minister Bancroft, of Berlin, speaking in high terms of the philo logical book of Professor March, of Easton. This announcement was received with much applause. He also stated that Mr. Jacobson, of the last graduating class, a former pupil of Professor had, during the year, been elected to fill the chair of English literature in Washington and

Jefferson College.
Mr. A. Pardee, of the Board of Trustees, was next called upon, but declined the honor of a seech. Colonel Barton H. Jenks was called upon and gave a few remarks, drawing some beautiful similes from the processes and appliances of machinery, and applying them to the affairs of The health of the Board of Trustees was then given, which was responded to by Colonel J.

Ross Snowden, who paid some merited compliments to the ladies of Easton. "The Faculty" was proposed by Governor Pollock, who called upon Professor J. H. Coffin to respond, which he did in a most happy manner, expressing thanks for all the honors which had been conferred upon him at the present

Professor March was called upon, but that gentleman declined to reply, which refusal the presiding officer attributed to modesty. Professor Porter was next in order, who reponded with several remarks relating to his peculiar branch of study-botany. The dean of the scientific department, Professor Traill Green, was next introduced by Governor Pollock, who stated that this gentleman was the one who had made such a bold and successful fight on the woman question at the Medical Convention in Williamsport.

Professor Green in reply gave a description of that occasion and of the hardness of the battle there fought, gallantly defending the ladies and his course in favor of the women medical pracutioners. Dr. William Henry Green, a graduate of Lafayette, who had at one time been elected President of Princeton College, which honor he however, declined, was called upon for a speech, Chaplain Jones, a twenty-five-year alumnis, was called upon to respond to the health of that association, but was found to be absent. Messrs. Pollock and Applegate, of the class of '61, were also called upon and responded. The health of the clergy was given, and Dr. S. A. Mutchmore, of Philadelphia, was asked to respond. That gentleman pleaded the weight of the domestic affliction, the D. D. that day conferred upon him, as an excuse for not speak-"The Clergy of Easton" was responded to by Rev. D. E. Belfour, and the "Secular and Religious Press" by Mr. Martien, of Philadelphia, of the Board of Trustees.

Mr. Owen, of the graduating class, was called upon to represent his classmates, which he did in an able manner. A resolution of thanks to the ladles of Easton, for their fine dinner and kind attention, was passed, after which the doxology was sung and the benediction pronounced by Rev. Mr. Squier, The President's Reception. On the evening of Wednesday, the exercises of commencement were brought to a close by the President's reception and levee. This, usually held at the President's house, was this year beld in a new reading-room which has just been opened in the east wing of the college, so e public might have a chance to inspect it. This room is 70 by 45 feet in size, is fitted up in the finest manner, and supplied with all the leading journals and periodicals of Europe and America. The levee was very well attended and formed a fitting close to the memorable exercises of the commencement of 1871. —A physician of Springfield was hurriedly called away from the dinner-table recently by a n-essenger, who made the following request:— There has a feller fell into a drain and got drownded, and we've got the water outen of him. and now want you to come and get the mud out what's into 'im." Raise the Standard High.

Next to the Minister of the Gospel stands a regular graduated Physician, in our estimation. But, while we hold in high esteem those who administer to the last wants of our loved ones, we are compelled to differ with many of them in treating THROAT and LUNG DIS-

First. Not by stopping cough, but by loossning and assisting nature to throw off the unhealthy matter collected about the throat and bronchial tubes, causing irritation and Second. Most Throat and Lung Remedies are composed of anodynes, which allay the cough for a while, but, by their constringing effects, the fibres become hardened, and the unhealthy fluids coagulate, and are retained in the system, causing disease beyond the control of our most eminent physicians.

Third. The Pine Tree Tar Cordial, with its assistants, are preferable, because they remove the cause of irritation of the mucous membrane and broncial tubes, assisting the lungs to act and throw off the unhealthy secretions and purify the blood, thus scientifically making the cure perfect.

A Voice from the People.

A Cure of Seventeen Years Standing of Painful Suffering.

I, HOOPER JOLLY, of Philadelphia, do certify. that for seventeen years I was afflicted with Dys-pepsia, and what I assert is well known by many respectacle persons of Dorchester county, Maryland. Having tried the best Physicians and every medi-cine I heard of, but of no effect, I was induced to call at Dr. WISHART'S Office, and, after examination, was pronounced to have Chronic Dyspepsia. I procured his Great American Dyspepsia Pills and Pine Tree Tar Cordial. I now can recommend it for the cure of Dyspepsia and Nervous Diseases.

HOOPER JOLLY.

You will be a Dead Man in Less than

Such was the judgment of my physician, after a careful examination. He said by continual preaching and exposure I had brought on bronchitis, and he advised me to stop preaching. I then put myself under medical freatment, which did me but little good. My throat was so swollen that breathing was very difficult. It frequently opened, and then I found relief for a time. I tried all kinds of patent medicines, none of which did me any good. Passing through Harrisburg, I called on a lady friend. I informed her of my affliction. She said, "I was affected in the same way, and none of the doctors could cure me, I tried Dr. L. Q. C. WISHART'S Pine Tree Tar Cordial; took a few bottles of itnow you see me as I am, cured! at the wash-tub twice a week. I would advise you to try it." I went immediately to the drug store and procured it, and I thank God I am now able to preach the Gospel. I now use it more as a preventive than a cure.

JOHN F. LEIB, Ex-Pastor Evangelical Church, Germantown, Pa.

I Had to Yield my Prejudice at Last.

I was prejudiced to any advice or medicine that did not come through my family physician. My boy, of three years old, had a fall, and a worm came from him. Fearing he might have worms, I went to our Druggist, and he gave me a box of Dr. L. Q. C. WISHART'S Worm Sugar Drops. When I gave them to my child I said "This is a humbug," but, to my surprise, in less than a day and a night he discharged forty worms, one fourteen inches long.

What the Doctor Said.

That the child might have died at any time, and no physician would have known the cause without a post-mortem examination.
