LITERATURE.

OF NEW BOOKS.

-The following new books have just been issued by Harper & Brothers, and are for sale in this city by Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger:-

"The History of Rome," by Titus Livius, in two volumes, literally translated, with notes and illustrations by D. Spillan and Cyrus Edmonds, is a reprint of Bohn's edition of Livy, the merits of which have long been acknowledged by classical scholars. In this translation the effort has been to present the work of the Roman historian in as literal a manner as is possible, consistent with the different idioms of the Latin and English languages, with a view of making it useful both to Latin students and general readers. Livy is frequently inaccurate, and his prejudices often induce him to do injustice, especially to Hannibal, but the elegance of his style, and the undoubted facts which he so picturesquely records, render his work indispensable to every student of Roman history. The present edition is neat and inexpensive, and it will be acceptable to readers of all classes.

"Olive" is the latest issue of the uniform edition of Miss Mulock's novels now in course of publication by Harper & Brothers. It is a quiet story of commonplace people, such as this author knows so well how to write, and it is at once more attractive and more profitable reading than many of the more highly-spiced fictions of the day.

"Sophocles," reprinted from the text of Dindorff, is an attractive addition to the list of "Harper's Greek and Latin Texts." The work is beautifully printed and is neatly -"Ina," by Katharine Valerio, published by James R. Osgood & Co., is the story of a governess who contracts a secret marriage with a man of higher station than herself, and who, when he finds her an impediment to his preferment, repudiates her on the ground of the illegality of the marriage. The plot is elaborated with considerable skill, and some of the scenes described are highly exciting, and the story, despite some crudities of style, is more than commonly interesting. For sale by Claxton, Remsen & Haffelfinger.

-"Italy, and the War for Independence," by John S. C. Abbott, is a compact review of the events of Italian history from the earliest period down to the occupation of Rome by the present Italian Government. Mr. Abbott's merits as a popular historical writer are too well known to render it necessary that we should dwell upon them at the present time. He is generally reliable enough in his statement of facts, although he has a fashion of giving his facts the color of his peculiar individual notions in such a way as to detract considerably from their value. He is superficial, and his speculations and opinions have absolutely no value whatever; on the other 4000 or 5000 tons coal. Office, scale, stable, and hand, he has command of an entertaining style, and knows how to hit the popular taste. The work before us is marked by all his peculiar merits as well as by his defects, and although it will scarcely be accepted as the History of Italy, it will be read with interest by many, and will be worthy of a place upon the library shelf as a convenient work for occasional reference. Published by the Quaker City Publishing House.

-"The Unseen World in the Light of the Cross," by T. Stork, D. D., is an argument to prove that the phrase "He descended into Hell," in the Apostles' Creed, is an interpretation of the corrupt ages of the Church, that it is unscriptural, and that it cannot mean "He went into the place of departed spirits," as it is sometimes interpreted. Dr. Stork writes evidently with a thorough knowledge of his subject, and his opinions with regard to the Scripture teachings on the subject of the unseen world are stated in such a manner as cannot fail to command respectful atten-

-"Little Men: Life at Plumfield with Jo.'s Boys," is a book that hundreds of juvenile readers, and some who can scarcely be any longer classed among the juveniles, have been awaiting for some time past with pleasant expectations that will certainly be gratified when they get possession of this volume. In this story "Jo.," who, in the opinion of the most judicious of the nursery critics, was the real heroine of "Little Women," reappears as the mistress of a boys' school, and the adventures and misadventures of the "Little Men" under "Jo.'s" watchful eye are narrated in the same charming style that has made Miss Alcott's previous writings so popular. "Little Men" is a very delightful book, that is sure to be eagerly perused by a multitude of little women as well as little men. For sale by J. B. Lippincott & Co.

-"Poems," by Jessie Glenn, published by Bannan & Ramsey, Pottsville, Pennsy vania, is a collection of verses, principally on religious and domestic subjects. The poems are such as address themselves to the sensibilities rather than to the imagination, and their easy versification and grace of expression will commend them to those who would perhaps be indifferent to the utterances of the great masters of the art of song. The volume is an elegant specimen of typography, and the binding is rich and tasteful. Its get-up generally is highly creditable to the Pottsville publishers.

-T. B. Peterson & Brothers have just published "Hans Breitmann in Europe, with other New Ballads," by Charles G. Leland, in which the famous "bummer" is represented as deporting himself with some edat amid the historic scenes of the Continent, It must be confessed that "Breitmann" does not appear to the same advantage as a travelling gentleman as he did when he marched through Georgia "mit Sherman." In fact, his lauguage is getting to be more than ever unintelligible, and the hero himself more than ever uninteresting. Is it not nearly time for the apotheosis of Breitmann?

Mesers. Peterson have also issued a cheap edition of Charles Lever's brilliant novel of 'Davenport Dunn,'

-"Good for Nothing," by Whyte Melville, and "Nigel Bartram's Ideal," by Florence Milford, are a couple of clever and entertaining novels that have just been issued by D. Appleton & Co. as Nos. 27 and 28 of their "Library of Choice Novels." These stories are interesting without being very elaborate in plot or style, and they will be found pleasant reading for the hot weather.

I had previously used the "Wheeler & Wilson," "Grover & Baker," and "Singer." I think that the "American" makes the most perfect stitch of all sewing machines, and decidedly prefer it to any other machine that I am familiar with. It requires hardly any effort to run it, and its entire operation is exceedingly simple and easy.

I am now (after four weeks' practice) making 120 holes per day, in a superior manner and with perfect ease. Am very much pleased with the machine, and can heartily recommend it to all those wanting
