ONTHE

AN ADDRESS

REVENUE LAW.

BY JOHN NEVILLE, INSPECTOR OF THE REVENUE, SURVEY No. 4, DISTRICT PENNSYLVANIA.

CONGEESS began with duties on goods imported from a-broad. The first fession they passed a law laying fuch duties, to an extent that was then supposed to be as high as was proper. In a second fession, they added to those duties considerably, and in the very act of which you complain, they made a further and a material addition to the duty on diffilled spirits brought from ONGRESS began with duties on goods imported from aabroad.

But as it appeared that the proceeds of all these duties would fall thort, leveral hundred thousand dollars, of the sum necessary for the payment of interest on the public debt and the support of government, it became necessary to provide some additional fund. The committee in the four weftern counties of this State, in-timate the policy of an increase of the duties on imported articles. But the two boufs of Congrefs, and the great body of the mer-chans in all the States, are of a different opinion. Who have the beft means of judging ? Who are moft likely to be in the right ? What reafons are given to fhew the policy of fuch an increase ? Long and multiplied experience has proved, that, if duties on importation are carried beyond their proper limit, they do not produce revenue, but funggling, fraud and perjury in abundance. Would it be wife in government to force the growth of fuch def-tructive weeds, or to hazard the ruin of trade by opprefive du-ties ? Is it the intereft of any part of the community that trade should be ruined; How will the merchant be able to purchafe and export the produce of the farmer, if he is prevented from hould be ruined; How will the merchant be able to purchafe and export the produce of the farmer, if he is prevented from carrying on his bufinefs with reafonable advantage. Should duties on the importation of goods be carried to an im-proper extent, the farmer would not be the perfon leaft injured by it. Among the evil confequences to him, a failure of revenue, from the prevalency of fungging, would oblige the government to lay upon houfes and lands what, by attempting too much in one way, it had failed to get from the other fource. Is it even certain, if the thing were in itfelf practicable and proper, that it would be the intereft of thofe who live at a dif-tance from the feat to prefer an increafe of the duty on immerted project, that it would be the interest of thole who live at a dif-tance from the fea, to prefer an increase of the duty on imported articles, to a duty on fpirits diffilled among themfelves : would they not be obliged to pay more in the enhanced price of the fo-reign manufactures, which they neceffarily confume, by the ad-vance which the feveral claffes of dealers fucceffively charge on the duty, than they would have to pay on the fpirits diffilled by and among themfelves?

and among themfelves? If Congrefs had not had good ground to think, that the duties on imported atticles were fufficiently high in the main, they would naturally have been led to increafe them, rather than have recourfe to an internal duty, which they could not but have fore-freen would meet with more objection. When this is duly con-fidered, when it is alfo confidered, that the perfors who have had the beft opportunities of information on the fubject, view it in the fame light, and, above all, when the high rates of the exifting duties are carefully examined, I perforade myfelf that you will be of opinion, that the additional revenue, which was neceffary, could not wifely have been attempted to be raifed by an increafe of the duties on imported articles.

of optimor, that the additional revenue, which was hereinary, could not wifely have been attempted to be railed by an increase of the duties on imported articles. But the committee fuggeft another refource for fupplying the deficiency. This is a reduction of the falaries and compenfations of the officers and members of the government. It is not my province, to enter into a difcultion, how far those falaries are or are not extravagant. I shall only observe, that no reduction of them, which the most economical could defire, would afford a faving that would bear any proportion to the fum required. The whole amount of the falaries and compenfations of the Prelident, Vice-Prefident, the two houses of Congress, the judicial and Ex-ecutive Departments, Officers of the government of the Western territory, Board of Commissions for fetting of accounts, foreign Minifers, and all other officers borne on the civil lift, exceeds but little, goo.coo dollars. The whole of this would be a very inadequate fubfitute for a deficiency of 600,000 dollars. The amount of any reduction which could be made, would be infig-mificant in the comparison. It is, therefore, a plain cafe, that this expedient would not fupercede the necessful of a further tax this expedient would not supercede the necessfity of a further tax of fome kind or other.

of fome kind or other. A tax on the certificates themfelves is propoled. This would be the fame as it, between individuals, a debtor being ftronger than the creditor, and there being no fuperior judge to controul him, fhould FORCE him to accept filteen fhillings for twenty which he owed : judge of the honefty of this expedient. The committee have not noticed, what is a faß, that the public cre-ditors in general have already voluntarily agreed to accept four in-flead of fix per cent, for ten years on the whole amount of their principal, for the accommodation of the government. Would it be jult to mul& them in the bargain ? As confumers and pro-prietors they pay their full fhare of the general taxes. Remem-ber, that a large proportion of the public creditors are ftill thofe, whole fervice and fupplies contributed to give you liberty and whole fervice and fupplies contributed to give you liberty and independence.

Remember, that on full examination a diferimination was found impracticable and inadmiffible. As Pennfylvanians we furely cannot complain of this, for we had but lately funded our full proportion of the debt HIGHER than Congress have done, full proportion of the debt HIGHER than Congress have done, and our LEGISLATURE made no DISCRIMINATION; and they have fince deemed it proper to ADD to the rate of intereft allowed by Congress, thereby preferving that body from the charge of ex-travegance on the part of their citizens. In giving this addition-al bencht to the public creditors, they made no DISCRIMINA-TION. It is well known to you, my fellow-citizens, that a con-fiderable majority of the State Reprefentatives, of thefe weftern counties voiced for both thefe laws of Pennfylvania. Will not crefure for not diferiminating and for extravagance on the terms offered by Congress, be deemed very inconfiftent from hence un-der fuch circumftances? But if a diferimination had been made, it would not, on any fair principle, have lightened the burthen of paying; for what was taken from the prefent holder, muft be of paying; for what was taken from the prefent holder, muft be given to the original creditor; indeed, had it been made there would have been lefs room for an accommodation, like that which have been lets room for an accommonation, the that which has been given to the public. Remember, that under the newly plighted faith of the govern-ment, by a folemu and most deliberate a@, the evidences of the debt have been purchaled by the prefent holders beyond their par, that is at more than twenty fullings in the pound. Shall the foregoing who relating on the faith of the government. par, that is at more than twenty thillings in the pound. Shall thefe ocopie, who, relying on the faith of the government, have paid full value, be arbitrarily firipped of their property. 'Tis impofible. Truth and juffice, religion and morality, would recoil at fo trighful an enormity.
