THE CELL OF SOLITUDE.

DIM as the fleeting visions of the night, A dark tower tott'ring clos'd th' extended view; While round its spires, illum'd with seeble light, The flitting bat, and boding raven flew.

Rent was the hanging arch-the domes o'erthrown; Nor tread was heard along the distant pile, Save when the troubled ghost with hollow moan, Strode flowly o'er the long refounding ifle.

One only cell withflood the waste of time, 'Twas where a turiet rear'd its moss clad brow ; Gloomy it stood in falling pomp sublime, And show'd the mould'ring wrecks around below.

Here on her hand her drooping head reclin'd; Wrapt in fweet mufing fat the lonely power; Pensive she sat and heard the howling wind Die, faintly murm'ring round her ivy'd bower.

In graceful ringlets fell her amber hatt! Black as the raven's plumes her mantle flow'd; No cupids round her fan'd the fullen air; No festive echo cheer'd her lone abode.

But the wild harp that to the blaft complains, Sooth'd with melodious plaint her raptur'd ear; Deep, folemn, awful roll'd the varying strains, Such strains the seraphims with transport hear.

FROM THE COLUMBIAN CENTINEL.

MR. RUSSELL,
T is faid to be in agitation, immediately on the arrival of official accounts of open hostilithe arrival of official accounts of open hostilities between the Patriots of France, and their Enemies, to set on foot a plan for railing a body of American Volunteers, to embark as soon as possible for France. The idea was not suggested from a doubt that the French Freemen are not able to cope with their slavish enemies—or that they wanted any thing to stimulate them to glorious conquest: but merely to evince the contract. rious conquest; but merely to evince the gratitude of Americans—and once more no mingle their blood with those of their allies, in defence of the rights of human nature. Should the idea be carried into effect, there is not a coubt that the government of the United States, and the individual states, will make ample provision for the support and transportation of these Patriot Volunteers. The Legislature of Massachusetts, now in session, would do themselves immortal honor, by being the first to provide, on their part, in case the project succeeded, for those who would go from this state. To this subject their attention is requested, by AN AMERICAN. June 1792.

Extract from the address of M. Maranthon, at the civic Festival in Bourdeaux, in December last. Apostrophe to STANISLAUS King of Poland.

VITIZENS; the Lithuanian Eagle now attracts your regard. From the banks of the Vistula to the Borischenes, it bears towards immortality, the name of Stanislaus.—Stanislaus, who kindled by the torch of philosophy, enflamed by the generofity of his nature, guided by experience and perhaps by the folemn example which this scene exhibited, delivered a great People from the yoke of the nobles of his Empire. May the benign genius of this monarch prepare for his nation and for himself, a new source of glory; by sweeping from his states the remains of seudal tyranny. Pardon, O! Stanislaus, if we point out this great benefit to thy noble foul.-Pardon if we do not render to thy labours that plenitude of praise, which thy generosity has doubtless a right to demand. But the friends of liberty are aukward in flattering Kings: And while they cannot refuse to thy virtues the tribute of their esteem -- a falutary distrust permits them not to lavish on it too much praise."
