Perhaps there is no science more entertaining Perhaps there is no science more entertaining and useful than geography. It reveals the discoveries of travellers—the remarkable curiofities of all countries, in nature and art—the fituation of provinces, eities towns with the utmost fidelity and provinces, eities towns with the utmost fidelity and all countries, in nature and art the provinces, cities, fowns, villages, rivers, & mounains-in fine, the history, manners, customs, laws, forces, revenues, and government of different na

It is an old observation, that "there is not a fon or daughter of Adam, but has some concern with geography;" and that a knowledge of this science is indispensable towards the fludy of his tory with advantage or fatisfaction. Indeed a man unacquainted with it, cannot discourse on the most common new spaper topics of the day without betraying his ignorance.

So much for geography generally. With refpect to the present plan, let it suffice to remark, that Guthrie's Geography has been long acknowledged to be the best in the English language; however, the account of America in it has, from obvious reasons, been very erroneous and defec-tive. The errors of former editions will be corrected, and the defects supplied, by gentlemen o abilities, who have engaged to superintend this undertaking, and to avail themselves of all the information that can be procured, to render it the most complete edition extant.

The Printer earnestly folicits the support of his fellow-citizens throughout the United States; and as no deposit is required, and every subscriber will be at liberty to withdraw his name, if, on trial, he should disapprove of the work, he hopes the friends of science, and of American arts and manufactures, will cheerfully and early patronize this useful work, the greatest and most expensive, probably, ever yet attempted in America, in the typographical line, the Encyclopædia excepted.
