PAY UP !- As I wish to leave town as soon as possible, but cannot, until all the books and accounts of the late firm of M'Crum & Allison. which have been transferred to me, are settled debted on said books, (and the number is by no means small) will make it convenient to settle up immediately I can always be found at the WM. NEEDED IMPROVEMENTS .- The present lean state of the finances of this place, we presume. prevents the furtherance of many improvements which are greatly needed, and indeed, which are almost indispensable. We indulge the hope. however, that the treasury will be sufficiently replenished, or that some means will be adopted whereby these important ends may soon be gained, so that our town, in point of beauty, cleanliness and conveniences may rank with, if it can not excel, others of no greater pretentions.

In the first place we need a Town Hall. It has been talked of from time to time, but seems now to be entirely forgotten. It is certainly a disgrace that a town the size of Altoons, should not have a public hall for public purposes. The interests of the town and its citizens alike demand it, and we hope that means may be adopted at an early day to consummate this much desired object. If it can not be built by the town, we think it would prove a lucrative investment for some of the loose capital of our private citizens.

Next in order comes a Market House. The interests of all demand a building of this kind. We have heretofore said considerable on this purposes. subject, and the hope of securing a building for this purpose has been almost abandoned, yet we do not give it up, nor will we cease to urge its importance until we wake up the right feeling on the subject on the part of our citizens. or it shall have been hopelessly given up.

The streets need considerable attention, and we are pleased to notice that the Burgess is now engaged in repairing them, and will do the best he can with the means at his command.-Virginia street, especially, requires filling up and pebbling, and this must be done before it will ever be fit for use in soft weather. This being the principal thoroughfare of the town. we think it should receive first attention.

Now that warm weather is approaching, every lot-owner should see that there be no stagnant pools of water standing thereon. We notice several of these in different parts of the town, vhich, if permitted to remain as they are, mus become nauseating and extremely unhealthy

MONEY STOLEN. -On Thursday night last, one in this place, was perpetrated in East Altoona. lodged against him. After a time, however. On the night in question, the house of Mr. Jacob Szink, was entered, in a manner unknown business. Quite a number of cellars were robto any of the family, and over one hundred dollars abstracted from Mr. S.'s pocket book, which was in his pantaloons pocket, in his bedthe money was taken, there is no suspicion.-Mr. S was out until a late hour on Thursday | ber of pies carried off. This was considered a house when he went to bed. Money alone, apon the bureau in the same room, which were not disturbed. There was also a considerable sum of money in one of the drawers of the bureau, but there was no attempt made to get at it. The person or persons who perpetrated the robbery, evidently knew that Mr. S. had the money on his person and were acquainted with the premises. This case, we think, should induce those who are in the habit of carrying money on their persons to be careful not to exhibit it in public places, and also to see that everything is right about their premises before retiring. There may be persons in our community who would be guilty of such actions, although we could not point them out. Hard times will make men run almost any risk to get money.

Curious Afrain.—On the same night that the house of Mr. Szink was entered and his money taken, a small sum of money disappeared mysteriously from the pocket-book of our old friend, Mr. George Hawkesworth, and also from that of his son. Mr. H. had placed six dollars in his pocket-book on Thursday, for the lage thereon, further proceedings should be purpose of purchasing a barrel of flour. On Friday he went to purchase the flour, and on taking out his pocket-book, he was astonished mark, made for the sole purpose of attracting to find that he had no money. On the same day his son had placed five dollars in his pocket-book, to defray his expenses on a visit down the country, but when he came to purchase his ticket at the depot, on Friday, he discovered that he was minus the V. How, when, or by whom the money was taken is a mystery. Both Mr. H. and his son, had their money in their pantaloons pockets, in their bed-rooms. Nothing about the house indicated the presence of burglars during the night. The doors and windows were all as they had been left in the evening; nevertherless, it is evident that there was some one about and very likely the same purson who relieved Mr. Szink of his change, had a finger in the pocket-books of Mr. H. and son. If this game is to be followed up in this place, n connection with that of robbing cellars, a night police will be necessary. We hope some olue may yet be obtained, whereby the guilty parties may be discovered.

MALICIOUS MISCHIEF .- On Thursday night ast a man named Shadrack Rees, broke into the school house in the vicinity of Esquire Calvert's, in consequence of which he was brought up before Esquire Good, of this place, on the above charge. It appears that Shadrack had night in question, which produced a slight aberstion of mind. On being questioned by the Squire as to whether he was guilty of the offence, he stated that he did not think he was as he had no recollection of having broken the door, although he acknowledged that he had found himself in the school house in the morn.

Mour Bongranges. On Tuesday night last the American House, in this place, kept by Wm. Barr, was entered through one of the windows in the basement kitchen, and the pocket-book a number of papers, abstracted from the pocket of his pantaloons which he had placed beneath his pillow on retiring. After securing his booty, the burglar departed by the front door of the next morning

On the same night, the house of Mr. C. J. bed-room, in the second story of the house, and his pocket-book, containing about $10 in money and a few papers, taken out of a pocket of his pantaloons, which were hanging on a chair at the head of his bed. The pantaloons had been carried across the room toward the window at which the burglar entered.

That the person or persons who are engaged in this business, are expert, there can be no mistake. We do not remember to have ever read or heard of more bold or daring burglaries at any time or in any place. They would do credit to any finished city burglar, and we have reason to believe that they are individuals who have practiced the game before they arrived in this place. The two cases above, taken in connection with those mentioned in another part of our paper, should induce our citizens to be on the look-out for these sly, lightfingered gentry, and endeavor, if possible, to find out who they are, or give them a reception that will cure them of their propensity to appropriate other people's money to their own

ARREST OF A PANTRY THIEF. -Our readers will remember that on several occasions during the last fall and winter, we noticed the robbing of a number of pantry's and cellars, by an individual who evidently knew who lived well, and also the time at which their larders were filled with fresh bread, cakes, pies, mest, &c., and would make a descent upon them accordingly, on the following night. At one time last winter, suspicion fastened itself upon a young man named Jesse Cogan, who boarded with Mrs. Melov, in East Altoons, during last summer, but who had taken up his residence in a deserted cabin in the vicinity of this place. A number of persons visited his cabin one day, and found a few cooking utensils, which were identified as the property of some of our citizens. and also found Jesse lying on a miserable ex- ing with their friends in the old country. cuse for a bed which he had made in one corner of the room. From the fact that he was not considered altogether saue, he was brought to town and tuken in by the family with whom he of the boldest robberies we have yet heard of had previously bourded, but no complaint was Jesse returned to his cabin again and resumed bed, and from the amount and variety of articles carried off, he evidently lived high. A short time since, the cellar of Mr. Michael Claroom. By whom, or at what time in the night | baugh was entered and some four or five loaves of bread, a couple of pans of cakes and a numevening, but observed nothing wrong about the little too heavy a haul to be passed without notice, and accordingly our new constable Mr. J. pears to have been the object of the thief or K. Ely was requested to visit Jesse, which he thieves, as there were two gold watches lying | did, and found a number of plates which were identified as the property of Mr Clabaugh. Jesse was accordingly arrested and had a hearing on Thursday last before Esquire Good, who committed him in default of bail.

> WRITING ON NEWSPAPERS. -A custom prevails to a very great extent of writing the name of the person sending, or some other communication, upon the margin of a newspaper, intending that it shall be subject to newspaper postage alone. The Post Office Department directs, whenever this is done and discovered, that letter postage shall be charged upon such paper. Subjoined are the instructions to postmasters issued as late as May 5, 1855:

> "Any word or communication, whether by printing, writing, marks or signs, upon a newspaper, pamphlet, magazine, or other printed matter, or upon the cover or wrapper thereof, other than the name and address of the person to whom it is to be sent, subjects the package to letter postage; and such postage should be, like all other letter postage, prepaid, or the matter should not be mailed. If, however, it reaches the office of delivery unpaid, and the party addressed shall refuse to pay letter postwaived, there being no concealment or attempt at fraud, and the package placed with the other refused matter in the office. A pen or pencil the eye to a particular portion or article of printed matter, does not subject such matter to letter postage."

PROBABLE MURDER BY A HOLLIDAYSBURGER. -From the Erie Dispatch of Saturday last, we learn that a man named Jake Foust, hailing from Hollidaysburg, stabbed Mathew Dinsmore with a knife, inflicting three wounds on the left side and fore part of the chest, penetrating the lungs, from the effects of which it is presumed Dinsmore cannot recover. Foust was engaged as driver and Dinsmore as steersman on the canal boat Urilda. While on the boat they lived harmoniquely, but at the time of the altercation they were on a spree, in company with the son of the captain of the boat, named Wm. Walters. Foust and Walters were both arrested and committed to jail to await the result which may be brought about by the wounds nflicted. Dinsmore exhonerated Walters from all blame in the matter.

> DIBAPPOINTMENT .- The scoundrel who entered the room of Mr. Chas J. Mann. and carried off his pocket-book, on Tuesday night last, deprived us, thereby, of a sight of the new cent which is about to be issued. A sample of the coin had been sent to Mr. Mann, by a friend n Philadelphia, and he had intended giving it to us for inspection on Wednesday morning, but unfortunately when he came to look for it, it had disappeared, and with it his pocket-book, as stated in another article. The design of the coin is very pretty. We hope this unforeseen circumstance which has prevented our examipation and approval of the article, will not debar the mint from issuing a good supply of the new coin, to supplant the place of the ugly, old, black concerns lately sent out.

The note is evidently genuine. The person to whom it belongs can have the note by calling at this office, and producing satisfactory evidence that she is the legal owner. The note is not endorsed.

> DEPARTED.—On Friday evening last, Messrs. James and George Kearney, bid good-bye to their relations and friends in this place, and started for the "Green Isle." We were sorry to bid adieu to two such gentlemanly and obliging men and good citizens, but consoled ourselves with the assurance that they intend to return again in the course of six or nine months. We wish them a safe journey and a happy meetious and troublesome complaints are almost seen to pave the way for more formidable lung disease, which, if treated in time, could be easily cured by a few spoonsful of that now popular and useful medicine, called "Pectoral Syrup," prepared by Dr. Geo. H. Keyser, Wholesale Druggist, of 140 Wood Street. Pittsburgh. Pa. You can buy it at G. W. Kessler's.

On Thursday last, Charles Pierson was arrested on oath of C. B. Szink, and brought up before Esquire Good, on a charge of breaking open a chest in Geo. Buck's house, and stealing therefrom over one hundred dollars Pierson denied the charge and said that he could prove that the money he had in his possession did not belong to Buck. His case was continued for a further hearing, which will be had

The weather is still unsettled, and, for the season, rather cool. Rain falls or is threatened almost every hour, and the wind has a little too much affection for the North-east to be agreeable. Quite a number of severe thunder showers, some of them accompanied with hail, have passed over this place. There is no appearance yet of a clear up.

CLOSE OF THE UNION PRAYER MEETINGS .-We are sorry to announce that these meetings were brought to a close on Friday evening last. That much good has been done by them we think will be manifested hereafter. It can not be possible that so much interest as was manifested by many during their continuance, should fail in accomplishing the desired result.

The election of Delegates to the Repubican County Convention comes off on Saturday next. The Convention will be held on the Thursday following.

For the Altoona Tribune. To the Young Men of Altoona. LETTER NO. 7.

The large number of Young Men in our place a just cause of My Young Friends :- In my last, after breaking away from the storm, I commenced au enumeration of the unfavorable peculiarities of your position here. By the time I had got through with the first, my time and paper had both run out. It was necessary, therefore, to reserve the rest for this communication. Another among the unfavorable circumstances here surrounding you, is the undue proportion of your own number compared with the whole population. This fact grows out of the peculiar character of the place. It is emphatically a Railroad town. Being the point from which the P. R. R. Company work their road, and the location of their principal machine shops, the demand for labor is great, and the attraction for young men seeking employment as apprentices, machinists, engineers, car-builders, clerks, &c., is very considerable; and hence the proportion of this class and age is larger than is natural, or than is found in older and ordinary towns. And wherever the just equilibrium of of any particular class, there will almost necessarily exist some hindrance to the healthy progress of things, growing out of that fact. An All-wise Creator has so ordered things in preponderance of either of these classes would destroy the equilibrium of the society where that disproportion exists. For example, where the disproportion was with the aged, conservatism would soon degenerate into ennui, and everything wear the appearance of decay. Or if the disproportion was in favor of the centler sex, the result to follow would be a generation of old maids, by whom a straight-jacket would be prepared for every one whose mouth, when he laughed, did not wear a particular twist -And wouldn't that be a wholesome state of things! And I have no doubt but that some of the older, and more finished towns, are suffering in this way just now, for the unnatural draught made upon them for business men and young men, by Altoona, and similar towns.— And now, the danger is, that we may suffer impetuosity and ardor of youth, without enough of the conservatism of age, and the restraints of female society. This, young friends, is one of the unfavorable circumstances with which you have here to contend. The disproportion n your favor, here, makes your present situation on that account unfavorable and dangerous. The fear is that the natural impetuosity and arder of youth, for the want of sufficient restraints, will so strengthen as to carry you beyond proper bounds, and your only safety is knowing the danger, and being always on your guard.

Another unfavorable aspect of the case and onsequent danger very nearly allied to the last. and to some extent growing out of it, is the want of proper sources of amusement and improvement. The mind of man is essentially active. Solitude, too, is unuatural to man, and especially to the young. If, therefore, this ac-tivity can not find useful employment, and this desire for society be innocently gratified, the great danger is that vice will supply the place of the one, and wicked polluting society the other. The special danger to which under such circumstances young men are exposed, are these to us a note, drawn by Geo. D. Spencher (or two, viz., gaming and drinking. These are nearly connected with each other; they re like twin sisters, almost inseparable. latter follows in the wake of the former. He who gambles will naturally and almost necessarily form habits of intemperance. Indeed the beginning of gaming is where the loser has, according to common parlance, " to treat the company." The wager being paid by a glass of stimulating drink all round, the company is thereby inspired afresh for a new trial of their skill in the game, the loser again treating, and so the drink encourages gaming, and gaming drinking, until a double habit is formed in vices. either of which, if continued, will ruin any man, and both of which must bring speedy and double ruin. No man has ever yet escaped.— And if we would escape the rock upon which others have split, we must avoid their errors.

Young friends, your only safety is in total stinence from both. Make it a law-and let that law be like the laws of the Medes and Persians, unalterable—that you will never indulge in games of chance, nor in games of any kind for a wager, and particularly when and where intoxicating drinks are in reach. Do not commence a course of this kind with the thought that it is only for amusement, and therefore there is no harm in it; or that you will stop it when you discover its danger. Be not deceived. The danger never appears until it is too late to avoid it. All games are excessively fascinating, especially those of chance; and once absorbed in them, and the habit formed, the judgment has generally lost its control. And in order to avoid all danger let it be your unalterable deermination never to enter a "Drinking Saloon." They are the "high ways" to ruin. It is there you will meet those who indulge in these vices, and where the suares are laid for entrapping the unwary. Shun them as you would the threshold of perdition. They have destroyed thousands multiplied by thousands of the oride and hope of our country, and they will these are the counsels of a true friend. Yours most respectfully, For the Altoona Tribune.

Whiskey Distiller. DEAR SIE:-When I last addressed you in my imperfect way. I did not think that I should do so again; but, upon this bright hay-day morning, seeing all Nature clothed in her rich attire-a feast for useful contemplation-hearing the little songsters warbling their notes of pleasing melody, and beholding everything around me, whether animate or inanimate. designed for some purpose and subserving the object of their being-I was naturally led to think of you, the object for which you were created. your aim, and end, and by some mysterious power I was compelled to speak to you. The object of your being, your present aim and your final destiny, afford too much material for me to discuss in the limits of this epistle; besides.

cations as you see fit. You are convinced that, in making the poisonous beverage, you are doing no good. are doing nothing to meliorate the condition of your fellow-men; but on the contrary, you perceive your course is only tending to evil and your actions to sink your fellow-mortals be-the task would be too herculean for me to attempt; you can follow it through all its ramifi-

neath the brute. Now if you were doing all this ignorantly, or f you had been reared in the abode of crime or in a heathen clime, and if you had never been taught the truths of religion and were a scoffer of its pure precepts; then, and only then, could I look upon your actions with the least degree of allowance. But when I consider that just the reverse of this is the case, and when I know that you are not only a professor of religion. but as before stated, a Deacon too, I am astonished and led to exclaim, "can such things be? Can you, O man, act thus with impunity?-Tell it not in Gath!"

Not only are you violating your better nature and indement and causing many ills in life, but you are bringing a reproach upon christianity: you are proving a stumbling block unto others you are regarding the blood of the covenant of none effect! You may trifle with the property and lives of your fellow-men and go unpunished, but beware how you trifle with the God of Heaven! You are rearing a family of children about you: how, I cannot say; perhaps to startle the world with their virtues or their vices. Perhaps like some of the brilliant constellations that bespangle the azure arch above us, either to cheer and vivify the world by the mildness and benignity of their light, or like the blazing meteors that startle only by the irregularity their course, to shed a flood of light upon the society is disturbed by the unnatural proportion world only to be succeeded by a still greater darkness! However this may be, present appearances are anything but favorable. The daily influences in and about a Distillery—the fountain head of misery, whence issue brawlthis world, that when the ordinary laws are ings, oaths, fighting and death-are lamentably averse to the proper training of children. Now, it is not difficult to see that a whose eyes are too pure to look upon such conduct as yours with any allowance. The cries of all who have been injured by the crimes that have " gushed from the fiery fountain of the still." admonish you in thunder tones to cease. If you are dead to these entreaties, may the God of the Universe have mercy upon you!-"Farewell! and if forever, still forever, fare-STANS.
