The New Bird and Game Law.

Perhaps it is not generally known that a new law for the better preservation of game and insectiverous birds was enacted at the last session of our Legislature. we therefore publish a synopsis of the law, as a matter of interest to all, and particularly to the sporting community. It is one of importance to every farmer and lover of nature, and we hope the good sense of our citizens will make it generally observed. The penalties are quite stringent—enough to make the law a terror to evil doers in that respect:

The first section provides that it shall not be lawful for any person within this Commonwealth to shoot, kill, or in any way trap or destroy any blue-bird, swaltwo dollars.

Section second provides that no person shall shoot, kill or otherwise destroy any pheasant between the first day of January and the first day of September, or any woodcock between the first day of January | men killed and five wounded. and the first day of October, in the present year, and in each and every year thereaf ter, under the penalty of five dollars for each and every offence.

Section third provides that no person shall buy or cause to be bought, or carry out of this State, for the purpose of supplying any private house or market, any pheasant, partridge, woodcock or rabbit unless the same shall have been shot or taken in the proper season, as provided for in said act, under a penalty of five dollars for each and every offence.

Section fourth provides that no person shall, at any time, wilfully destroy the eggs or nests of birds, mentioned in the different sections of this act, within this Commonwealth, under a penalty of two dollars for each and every offence.

Section fifth provides that the possession of any person, in this Commonwealth, of any of the game and birds mentioned in the different section of said act, shot, killed or otherwise destroyed, shall be prima facia evidence to convict under the said

THE CROPS.—The accounts received from the West and Southwest of the damage to the crops by the heavy rains which have lately fallen all over the country, are quite discouraging. More especially is this true, says the New York Journal of Commerce, of the advices received by our merchants from their private correspondents, and we notice that there is a growing feeling of apprehension as to the result. The price of corn in our market is sensibly affected by the reports, and flour, too, begins to advance, owing to the same cause. The season, however, is much earlier this year than last, as many of our nected with the great event as may be handed readers will remember that on the 3d of July last, overcoats and fires were in request. Should the weather, therefore, for the remaining part of this season, be favorable, the damage which has accrued his grave, buried with him, alive, a little boy, so far, we do not doubt, will be overcome that he might accompany him to the spirit land. by an increased fertility of the soil under They wrapped the boy up alive in a blanket, the excessive irrigation which it has re- buried them together.

HAS THE PENN'A RAILROAD COMPANY SURPLUS OF FUNDS?—At the meeting of the Board of Trade and City Councils, held on Tuesday evening, the subject of discrimination in favor of western trade, by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, was argued by members of the Philadelphia Committee, and the assertion was made that the Company had not the means to do more than pay her liabilities, and if they discriminated in favor of western trade, it was from sheer necessity, and not a matter of choice. The idea was advanced that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company was barely paying expenses, and the failure to pay the four percent. semiannual dividend was alluded to.

The following, which is credited to Philadelphia paper, as a reply to the assertion of Mr. Moran, President of the Erie road, that "there is no profit accruing to any railroad in the United States, for any business they are now doing, seems to put quite a different face upon the matter. The article is as follows:

"The great Pennsylvania Railway, that connects this city with Pittsburg and the far west, was last year annoyed by large floating liabilities—probably a million or more. This Co. has now a surplus in Bank of over $400,000, and from its current receipts takes up every note as it falls due. With these evidences of prosperity, this great work should be especially exempted from the sweeping charge of bankruptcy and unproductiveness preferred against all Railway Companies, by its broken rival at New York."

VIOLENT HAIL STORM .- On Monday afternoon last one of the most furious storms of rain, wind, lightning, hail and thunder passed over New York city that has been known for many years. It was not more than twenty minutes in duration, low, martin, or other insectiverous bird, at but within that time a vast amount of any season of the year, under penalty of damage was done. A church was blown down, and several other buildings were unroofed, struck with lightning, and otherwise damaged. ## Terrific Tornado in Illinois.

We copy the following distressing account of a Tornado which recently passed over Ellison. Warren county, Ill., from correspondent of the Monmouth Atlas: DEAR SIR: - I have just returned from Ellison—or rather the place where Ellison was.— I have seen railroad disasters, and read of many more, but never have I seen or heard of such t terrible calamity as has fallen on the community in and around Ellison. No tongue can tell pen portray, or imagination picture the utter min of that place. I took some pains to ascertain the main features of the storm and the extent of the damage it had done to property, and were driven twenty miles in 66 minutes At of the number dead and wounded. And in order that the country may be as correctly as possible informed, I give you in brief such an count as I could gain from persons in the neighborhood, about which I presume there will

The storm came up about five o'clock, and was attended with a slight rain and some hail. As near as I could ascertain, a black tunnelshaped cloud arose near Pontoosac on the river. Those who saw it described it as being in appearance about the size of a man and moving rapidly towards the East. I could not hear of its doing any damage until within nine miles of Ellison. It there apparently struck the ground and entirely tore down the house of Mr. Franklin Foote and instantly killed his wife. The cloud then rose and moved directly East, and next struck at the house of David Thompson, njuring a young lady, Miss Rumsey, blowing her a mile into a slough and breaking some of ber limbs. Mr. Thompson, as I was informed by Mr. Erskine of Henderson Co., was on Tuesday dying and Mrs. Thompson dangerously wounded. A man unknown to my informant was lying at a Mr. Clark's in the same neighborhood with his head almost cut off, who must die. A boy of Mr. McDermitt was also dangerously hurt. Near here was also found in the road a man, apparently a traveller, with his head so badly bruised as to be insensible, and in all human probability is by this time dead .-There were no papers on him by which he could

I was also told by Mr. Erskine, who gave me all my information to this point, that two men had been out hunting in this neighborhood and were returning to avoid the storm, when they saw a woman just before them and saw the cloud strike her; it took her up out of sight and at ast accounts nothing could be heard of her, Ithough diligent search has been made.

The storm or whirlwind next struck at Wm. Thompson's some five miles west of Ellison, kiling Mr. Thompson instantly, and injuring Mrs. Thompson. The cloud then rose and passed over to the stone quarry about two miles west of Ellison, where it struck the house of Mr Johnson and entirely demolished it, killing Mr. Johnston and a child. Mrs. Johnson was thrown about a hundred yards into a creek; and while laying there with one leg broken twice and an arm broken, she saw one of her children floating by; she caught it but it was already dead. It was said by some that they lay out until next morning and by others until 12 ofclock at night. Either would be horrible. Mrs. Johnnot expected to live. Mr. Hurd had a horrible gash cut in his side, so that his lungs were progasa cut in his side, so that his lungs were protruding and the pulsations of his heart could be LADIES PLAIN AND FANCY DRESS distinctly seen. Physicians said he could not be saved, and no attempt was made to do any-thing to the wound until Tuesday. When I left Dr. Webster had dressed the wound and was watching with him, with faint hopes of saving

The cloud then rose and next struck Ellison, which was a nice little place of thirty buildings, of which but two remain standing. No one that has not been there can imagine what that little cloud accomplished in one minute. Buildings, timber, fences, trees, furniture, provisions, beds, bedding, store goods, hogs, cattle, wagons, are lying in one broken mass. Locust trees six inches in diameter are as completely striped of their bark as if peeled with a knife, not a leaf or a twig left on them. I saw a house on the north side of the street which was moved directly south from its foundation. and directly opposite was a large tavern which was thrown across and upon the north side of the street. I have no doubt that the reason there was no more killed outright was on account of the buildings being taken up and carried off, leaving the floors near where they stood

Here follows a list of some fifty names of the killed and wounded, and the correspondent says there are others of whom he could get no account. He then goes on to say:

Of property I heard no mention, all were engaged in taking care of the wounded and furnishing them with food and clothing. Too much praise cannot be awarded to the citizens of the country around, and of Young America and Monmouth for their prompt and efficient aid. Without any call for aid they went immediately to their assistance taking with them what food and clothing they thought would be of service. The condition of those living in the village before the tornado is beyond all description.— Their houses are levelled to the ground, their beds and bedding totally destroyed, and whole familes are without clothing enough for a cliange. saw several young men laying bruised, with that they could hardly be recognized, who told me that they had nothing to wear, not even a shirt to put on. Women and children are in the same circumstances.

In the midst of such desolation it was cheerng to see load after load of provision and clothing arrive at the platform arranged for that purpose, whence they were distributed and sent to where the wounded and destitude were.

Never did I see as much suffering, although everybody must have been comparatively comfortable on the day I was there, (Tuesday.) In one house, and that with only two rooms, were five, in another four and in another three.-Some had been carried away two or three miles. where they could be taken care of. I do not believe that there was hardly a whole piece of furniture left. Beds were hanging in the trees, and bedding lying in the streets torn to tatters.

Everything had been done for the suffering that could be done; but when the excitement is past and those that are now confined to their peds are able, if they ever are, to go out, what will be their feelings! Who can restore the dead-where will be their fathers, mothers, children, brothers, and sisters-perhaps all in the grave! Where will be their hard enrued nomes, with all their comforts? Forever gone -thoy left desolate and alone. I will not attempt to repeat the terrible things that were told me, many of which were no doubt exaggerated, and of many, alas, the evidences were
