THE DAISY.

BY MARY RANKIN. bordered with silver and centered with gold. Yet few in the daisy can beauty behold. Beneath the proud foot unthinkingly trod.

Tis crushed in its meekness upon the cold sward. Ah my not 'tis vile-Omnipotent power Hath shaded and formed this delicate flower. Tis then not in vain, that wisdom and skill,

Displayed in this flower hath a purpose to fill. When the day god takes up his march through the sky, He tenderly kisses the the tear from its eye; The unconscious beauty awakes from its dream; And basks the day long in his bright golden beam

Like a miniature sun, so dazzling and bright, Reflecting the rays of its corrowed light, It smilingly greets us on the hill or the green, Thus lending enchantment where'er it is seen.

Ah! well I remember, in the morning of youth, The zest it gave duty—the incentive to truth— And now this bright gem, when crushed to the sward, Throws back its bright blushes and looks up to God.

So meek and so mild, so patient and true, Its fidelity seemed my young heart to woo, As o'er it I bent-it seemed whispering kind,

And bade me look upward true pleasure to find Then say not 'tis vain, gold embossed flower, Oft hath it cheered in adversity's hour! And taught me celestial joys to admire, And ever and purely to Heaven aspire.

No Right to Indorse. 1. A man has no right to indorse, when the failure of the first party to meet his obligation will render the creditors of the indorser liable to loss in consequence of such indorsement. 2. He has no right to indorse for another man unless he make provision for meeting such obligation, independent of and after providing for all other obligations. 3. He has no right to indorse unless he fully intends to pay what he promises to.

It should be made a business transactionrarely a matter of friendship. It is equivalent to a loan of capital to the amount of the obligation, and the same precaution should be taken to secure it.

6. A man has no more right to expect another to indorse his note without recompense, than to expect an insurance company to insure his home or his life gratui-

7. It is not good business policy for one to ask another to indorse his note, promising to accommodate him in the same manner. The exchange of signatures may have. and usually does have, a very unequal value. It is better to secure him the amount, and exact a like security for the amount of responsibility incurred.

8. It is better to do a business that will involve no necessity for asking or granting such favors, or making such exchanges. -It is always safe and just to do so. - Plairie Farmer.

LUCK.—I may here, as well as anywhere, (said Henry Ward Beecher, in a recent lecture) impart the secret of what is called good and bad luck. There are men who, suppose Providence to have an implacable spite against them, bemoan in poverty of a wretched old age the misfortune or their lives. Luck forever ran against them and for others.
