Select Poetry. BEAUTIFUL BALLAD.

The following exquisite ballad, says the Johnstown Tribune, was written by Joseph Brennan an Irish Exile who died in New Orleans several years ago.

Smile coming seldom, but child-like and simple, Opening their eyes from the heart of a dimple.

Mr. Webster and John Mumma. The Rev. Mr. Milburn relates the following anecdote of the late Daniel Webster.

A Young Wife Dies Broken Hearted. In the Obituary department of the Journal, published at Palmer, Mass., we find the following announcement:

In the editorial column there is a sad and touching story, relating to the announcement which we annex below.

After supper was over the landlord came in and announced a vehicle was ready at the door.

Mr. Webster used to say it was evident he felt the load of obliquity under which he labored, and desired to relieve himself of it.

A Model Dan. An editor out west thus talks to his nonpaying subscribers and patrons.

"Friends, Patrons, Subscribers and Advertisers—Hear us for our debts, and get ready that you may pay; trust us we are in need—and have regard for our need, for you have long been trusted; acknowledge your indebtedness, and dive into your pockets that you may promptly fork over."

How a Dog Reasons. The Utica Herald relates the following story of the almost human intelligence of a dog:

A farmer living in New Hampshire had a dog which had grown old in the service of the family.

Power of the Human Eye.—Here Driesbach, the famous lion tamer, was at the hotel; and one night, a very powerful and savage drunken man was terrifying every person in the bar-room.

At a festival of pic-nics of the "Foresters," a London friendly society, held at the Crystal Palace, Swedenborg 63,181 persons were present on one day.

The following advertisement of a Constable's sale was taken from the wall of a public room in a tavern in the State of Indiana:

Notice.—For sale a cow with calf by the subscriber. JOHN BROOKS.

Mrs. Parrington says that nothing depises her so much as to see people who profess to expect salvation, go to church without their purses, when a recollection is to be taken.

A CALIFORNIA APPLE TREE.—In Mr. Medina's garden, at the Bay State Branch, California, is an apple tree four years old, about seven and one-half feet high, and not more than two inches in diameter at the thickest part of the trunk, which has one thousand and fifty apples upon its branches—not pigmies at that.

I plow, I sow, I reap, I mow, I get up wood for winter, I dig, I hoe, and taters grows, and, for what I know, I'm indebted to the printer. I do suppose all knowledge flows, right from the printing press; so off I goes in these clothes, and settles up—I guess.
