Select Poetry.

I Like an Open, Honest Heart.

I like an open, honest heart,
Where frankness lives to dwell,
Which has no place for base deceit,
Nor hollow words can tell.

A Monkey's Revenge.

When monkeys are in captivity, they always endeavor to be noticed by visitors, partly for their own sake, and partly because they hope for certain donations of nuts, apples and other delicacies.

Be Gentle to thy Husband!

Be gentle, there are hours when he
By anxious care is tossed;
And shadows deep lie on his brow,
By business trials crossed.

A YANKEE STORY,

OR, SISTER SAL'S COURTSHIP.

How are ye? How d'ye do? all of ye? Well I am here, I reckon, and no mistake. I'm all the way from Run Plat, where father carries on the Land and Sausage business, extra-size, I tell you, and in some demand in them parts, I do suppose; but I don't amount to no great deal here. I'm a live Yankee too, and by the great home sun, I'll put her through, I'll be darned to damnation if I don't, if it kills every corn in d's barn. You'll sarch one while, I'll tell you, afore you'll find a man that take him by and large, is equal to one of our free and enlightened citizens. The British can lick all the world and we can lick the British. We're clear grier—grier to the back bun, you may depend on it. I'm generally allowed there ain't no man in this county, as far as I know, that can't do it. I say it that shouldn't say it, we fairly take the shine of all creation. We are actually equal to cash.

An Old Maid in a Sleeping Car.

The Milwaukee News tells the following incident, which was witnessed by a friend in a sleeping car on the Detroit and Milwaukee road, and which is so amusingly and so comically true, that we cannot resist the temptation to publish it. It was witnessed by a friend in a sleeping car on the Detroit and Milwaukee road, and which is so amusingly and so comically true, that we cannot resist the temptation to publish it.

The following amusing anecdote comes to us as true:

A man having a large family found it rather hard to keep up the table, has adopted the following plan:
