Paradise Explained.

A Persian's heaven is easily made, 'Tis but black eyes and lemonade.

An Englishman's heaven would be in chafey, A rosy cheek, and a roast of beef.

A Frenchman's heaven is good enough, With a handsome filly and pinch of snuff.

A Mormon's Paradise, He wants—"his quater, A different Eve each night in the quater."

A Paradise in Beverly, means, A Yankee's place of heaven and rest, Is found a little further west.

A Miser's heaven, scordid and cold, Is a little more land, a little more gold.

A Printer's heaven, by night and day, Is patrons who always promptly pay.

A Modern Lady's heaven is nothing less, Than everybody's praise, and, "another new dress."
