Col. J. L. Piper having declined to serve as Chief Marshall, on account of indisposition and absence from town, Geo. W. Patton was unanimously selected to fill his place. A. A. Smythe reported that the boiler-makers in the shops in this place contemplated turning out in a body in the procession, and having a two or four horse wagon rigged up with a boil-

After reading the above attractive programme, it would appear almost unnecessary for us to add anything in order to convey an idea of the never been seen in the country, and in very few if any, of the citles; in addition to which we will have the music of eight Brass Bands and a number of martial bands; sufficient in themtelves to form a large procession, and certainly an attractive feature in the programme to those who love music—and who does not?

The arrangement gotten up by the boiler-ma-iers will add very materially to the interest of the occasion, and we should like to see their example followed by other branches of mechanics, who can conveniently get up such arrangements. The issuing of excursion tickets, good from the 14th to the 16th, will afford all persons on the line of the Pa. R. R. a fine opportunity to tait our mountain city, which many desire to Prettiest sights they could wish to look upon.

Our readers will remember that some Fostoria, and asked to see the child known as bearing the anthor's signature; the "Fostoria Foundling," and that upon taking it up became so much affected that she was charged with being the mother of it. THE FOSTORIA FOUNDLING .- A few days ago we picked up a Hollidaysburg paper, in which it was stated that Miss Sarah Alcott, daughter of a Methodist minister of Allegheny, was the mother of the famous Fostoria foundling. We published the statement as a sequel to what had already found its way into the public prints, in reference to this mysterious affair. The lady alluded to (now Mrs. Kearns) denies the statement in the following "pathetic" manner:

Editor Daily True Press-Sir: You have done me a desperate wrong, and have either ignorantly, or willfully lied about my father. I am not the mother of the Fostoria child, neither am ! the mother of more than one child, and that one I did say belonged to a doctor in Allegheny. I never admitted that the one in Fostoria was mine, for, according to Mr. Miller's statement. it was found on the third of February, when was at home in my mother's house, and to prove this fact I can get twenty witnesses. This is more than I will bear, and I have seen misery enough without you adding to my unhappiness. Misery is only a word to some, but to me it has been a terrible truth that I have had to learn day by day for the last three years; it will not make itself a place; I cannot wear it as a garment: I have mutinied against it wildly, desperately, with a passionate, fiery strength that you could not realize. I have dashed myself against my prison walls-yes, and yet love the knife that wounded me. Oh! why was I made strong enough to live through it all, and give life to one who must always bear the reproach of her unfortunate mother? Why should I be tossed agreeably to adjournment, on Tuesday evening upon a boiling sea till it stupefies into a calm and leaves me a wrecked being upon the barren desolate shore? Is there never any more sunshine to fall upon my pathway? Am I still to grope my way onward without one cheering word of consolation, with no star to guide menot even my daughter left me, but cruelly torn from my arms and given to strangers, and whilst my heart was bleeding from the wounds of that cruelty, reproach and shame is pointed in anoheart, and that you have some sympathy for the unfortunate, I then solicit your favor in correcting this scandalous report, and save me the trouble of prosecuting you and others for using my name in so scandalous a manner.

He has received the reward of merit; -and his sucon the part of all boys in all places that you should never forget it. ARM BROKEN.—On Thursday last, a young man named George Eisenberg, in the employ of Dr. Good & Gemmill, of this place, had his arm severely fractured immediately above the wrist, and his head somewhat bruised, by being thrown from a horse and the horse afterwards falling upon him, while riding through the farm of Mr. Hutchison, a short distance below town.grand sights to be seen on the day and evening It appears that while riding past Mr. Hutchiof the 15th, or to induce everybody to come to son's house, a dog ran out at the horse and con-Altoona at that time. Our students express the greatest satisfaction with their rapid improvement. I am entirely convinced that an equal degree of proficiency can never be attained by students who are taugh by the Manuscript System. In fact that system is now recognized as an exploded humbug by most business men throughout the West. The public have lost confidence in it, and the rival College in this city will soon have to adopt Duff's Book-keeping, if they desire to keep up with modern improvements.

H. Fettinger begs leave to announce to his numerous patrons and the public generally. that he is now closing out the balance of his stock of fancy and staple articles below cost, in order to make room for his immense new stock of tovs, notions and fancy articles which he will have on hand for the Holidays. He now offers

N. B. Also, a large stock of school books selling at cost. Call and be convinced.

We copy the following article, (which we publish by request,) from the Democratic Standard of Nov. 9th, and would call the attention of the School Directors to it. It is a fact that school books are accumulating very fast. and those who send children to school know how expensive it is to supply them with the necessary (?) school books. The Directors too, should think of the teachers of how arduous their task must be of classing their schools when so many different kinds of books are introduced, and should try to relieve them of this unnecessarv trouble :--Money Expended for Schools.

ME. RAMEY-SIR:-I desire to call your attention to the fact, (and I have no doubt but what you have already noticed it,) of the useless expenditure of money annually for school books. There is certainly a great deal of money unnecessarily spent for this purpose, and it should not be so. It is a well known fact that the country is flooded with school books, and thereis no end to the number of authors. Almost every year a new series of spelling and reading books, and Arithmetic, Grammar, or Geography is published. Then it is the policy of the author to have them introduced into the schools. It is a new book, and having "the advantage of It is a new book, and having "the advantage of all the late improvements of the day," must necessarily supercede all others of the kind. In order, therefore, to give a place to this superior (?) article, books that have been bought six or eight months ago must be laid on the shelf. No one will doubt the propriety of renewing a Geography once in five years: because in this and at the same time witness one of the derstand that the Presbyterian, Lutheran, Methiest sights they could wish to look many desire to derstand that the Presbyterian, Lutheran, Methiest sights they could wish to look many desire to odist, Baptist and United Brethren Churches are existence, and in our own country new States Come along, one and all, and our word for it to be lighted with gas. All these churches are are being almost annually admitted into the out that the congregations will be much better out that the people of Altoona do nothing by gine that the congregations will he much better where the necessity of three or four different satisfied with the improvement which the gas kinds of Geographies in one school, as I know kinds of Geographies in one school, as I know be the case in many schools in this county?

BLANKS OF ALL DESCRIPTIONS to be the case in many schools in this county?

Besides, it takes the time of the teacher—three or four scholars in each class, whereas, if all had the same kind of books there need be but one class.

But how many different English Grammars have we-and reading and spelling beoks ! I fear this question is hard to answer. I am glad to say, however, that Greenleaf's arithmetic is rapidly gaining favor in the country, and is being adopted every where by the School Directors. I wish to see the day when as much can be said of somebody's Grammar. We have now an English grammar for almost every part of speech, and they all have their admirers. You hear some who allege that Brown's grammar is the best ever written, and should be in every school; others again will give all praise to Kirkham's; others to Bullion's, Covell's, Smith's, Murray's, and a host of others. The Directors should make a choice of one of these and use it exclusively for at least five years—and a wellbound grammar will last a much longer time, with proper care. The same policy should be pursued in regard to all the other books. By this means a great deal of money that is now laid out for books can be saved and used in paying taxes.

Again: if this method were adopted and strictly adhered to, some books would answer for several children. A reading book for instance, when A. has finished it and is about to get one higher, can be laid aside for B. and C., and so on. But where the books change every year, this can not be done, for "the book A. had at school will not do now—it is not the right kind—the teacher says we must get Osgood's now, McGuffey's are no longer in use." Then, if it happens to be a new teacher, the old saying among parents, (and they are right too) is ipplicable-"a new teacher must have new

Directors should reflect upon this matter, and the sooner they adopt a plan to stop this system of new books being introduced annually in their schools, the sooner will the people cease to grumble, and the common school system will receive the praise instead of the curses of the people. Our colleges, and all the higher seminaries of learning adopt their own books, and cvery, "Tom, Dick and Harry" is not permitted to come with their new and improved books; the Professors or those who have charge of the institution will not countenance or encourage
