SONG. There is a spot to me more dear Than native vale or mountain A spot for which affection's tear Springs grateful from its fountain. Tis not where kindred souls abound. Though that is almost Heaven,

But where I first my Saviour found, And felt my sins forgiven. Mard was my toil to reach the shore; Long tossed upon the ocean: Above me was the thunder's roar, Beneath the wave's commotion. Darkly the pall of night was thrown Around me, faint with terror,

In that dark hour how did my groans Ascend for years of error. Sinking and panting, as for breath, I knew not help was nigh me. And cried, "O, save me, Lord, from death!" Immortal Jesus save me. Then, quick as thought, I felt, him mine: My Saviour stood before me:

I saw his brightness round me shine, And shouted, "Glory! glory!" O! sacred hour! O! hallowed spot! Where love divine first found me-Wherever falls my distant lot, My heart shall linger round thee, And as from earth I rise to soar Up to my home in Heaven, Down will I cast my eyes once more

Where I was first forgiven.

Miscellany.

A Slave Sells his Own Master. Matthew Hobson, (generally called Black Matt," on account of the darkness of his complexion,) was well known by the inhabitants of the seaboard of Virginia, some years ago, as a slave dealer, and an accomplished "breaker in" of bad flesh. He once purchashed a bright mulatto by the name of Sam, at a very low price, on account of his numerous bad qualities, such as thieving, lying and drunkenness. Sam was intelligent with all his faultscould read and write, and ape the airs of a most polished gentleman. He was so far removed, too, from the pure African, he could scarcely be distinguished from a white man. On his becoming the property of the slave dealer, he received several severe admonitions, in order that he $2773 25 might have a foretaste of the temper of his master. Secretly he vowed vengeance $2 00 for these striking proofs of Matt's affection, and in a short time an opportunity offered to gratify that vengeance. Matt made up his gang, and shipped them at Norfolk. The barque arrived sufely at New Orleans, and was brought to the wharf. In order that Sam might 9 50 bring a good price, he was togged off in fine clothes—calf-skin boots, a silk hat, and kid gloves. Matt thought by this external show to realize at least $1,500 for the mulatto, as the body servant of some 152 50 rich planter. Sam was consequently allowed to go on shore in order to show himself off. He proceeded to the Alhambra and there strutted about among the best of them. Hearing a portly gentleman remark that he wished to purchase a good body servant, he went up to him $2771 25 and with an independent swagger, said:

"My dear sir, I have got just the boy that will suit you." "Ha!" rejoined the planter, "I am glad to hear you say so, for I have been looking for one for several days. What do you ask for him?" "Nine hundred dollars," replied Sam, and cheap enough at that. He has every quality, he can shave, dress hair, brush buot, and is, besides, polished in his manners. I could have got fifteen hundred These words happened to be written in is killed dollars for him, but for one fault."

"Ha!" eiaculated the planter, "and pray what kind of fault is that?" Why, sir, a ridiculous one. He imagines himself a white man."

"A white man!" exclaimed the planter, laughing; "that's a funny conceit indeed; but I can soon cure him of that-I've had considerable experience in training and managing gentlemen of color." "Oh! sir," continued Sam, "there is but little doubt that he can be curedthough you may find some trouble at

"Are you Black Matt, my fine fellow?" asked the planter, addressing the slave merchant. "Folks call me so to hum," was the reply, "but here my name's Matthew Hobson. What do you want?" "I'll tell you, Matt, what I want. I want you. You're a likely looking fellow and will just suit me."

"Look'ye here stranger," said Matt, firing up, "maybe you don't know who you're speaking to." "Yes I do, though—you're my proper

What a Lady Thinks of Hair Faces.

A female writier in Xenia, Ohio, is making a crusade against hairy faced men.-Hear her - What expression of kindness and mild humanity can be observed in a face covered with hair from the nose down? Not any. As well might a poor rat look in the grizzly muzzle of a Scotch terrier for mercy, when about to be caught in his crushing jaws, as to look for an expression of human kindness and sympathy in the face of a hirsute man. We can appreciate the value of a smile. It lightens up the countenance with adorning sweetness, indicates a kind heart, and radiates gladness to the hearts of others, encourages the desponding, soothes the afflicted, cheers the sorrowing, disarms wrath and kindles up genial sympathy and reciprocal regard. But a smile cannot drop out from the face of a man " bearded and moustached like the pard." You suppose from the agitation of tall grass, that some animal was crawling through it. So you may infer from the whisker of hair that a smile was burrowing along there some-where out of sight. The smile of such a man carnot be distinguished from the grin of a ribbed nose baboon, which had

They can express kindness, good-humor, sweetness of disposition, sorrow, firmness and decision of character, or they manifest and decision of character, or they manifest scorn, contempt, disdain, loathing, anger, and threatened like loaded revolvers.
