A LAWYER'S ADVENTURE. We presume our Illinois readers will readily expand the town of C mentioned in the following sketch into Carlyle: About three or four years ago, more or less, I was practising law in Illinois in a pretty large circuit. I was called on one day in my office, in the town of C——, by a very pretty woman. who, not without tears, told me her husband had been arrested for horse-stealing. She wished to retain me on the defense. I asked her why she did not go to Judge B., an ex-Senator of the United States, whose office was in the same town. suspected of belonging to an extensive band of They were:

The trial came on. I worked hard to get a jury of ignorant men, who had more heart than brain; who, if they could not fathom the depths of argument, or follow the labyrinthine mazes of the law, could feel for a fellow in a bad fix, weeping and pretty wife nearly broken hearted, and quite distracted. Knowing the use of "effect," I told her to dress in deep mourning, and bring her little cherub of a boy only three years old, into court, and sit as near her husband as the officer would let her. I tried that game once in a murder case, and a weeping wife and sister made a jury render a verdict against law, evidence and the judge's charge, and saved a fel-low that ought to have been hung as high as Haman.

their actions. I had a brace of revolvers and a nice knife; my money was not in my valise or my sulky, but in my belt around my body. I drove slow, in hopes that they would drive on, and I should see them no more. It was nearly dark when I saw a tavern sign ahead. At the same time I saw their wagon stood at the door. I would have pressed on, but my horse needed rest. I hauled up, and a woman came to the door. She turned as pale as death when she saw me-she did not speak-but with a meaning ing look she put her finger to her lips and beckoned me in; she was the wife of my late client. When I entered the party recognized me, and hailed me as an old traveling friend, and asked me to drink. I respectfully declined to do so. "By God, you shall drink or fight!" said the
