TO-DAY AND TO-MORROW.

A rosebud blossomed in my bower A bird sang in my garden; The rosebud was its fairest flower, The bird its gentlest warden. And a child beside the linden tree Sang "Think no more of sorrow; But let us smile and sing to-day, For we must weep to-morrow."

I asked the bird, "Oh didst thou hear The song that she would sing thee! And can it be that thou shouldst fear, What the next morn may bring thee ?" He answered with triumphant strain,

Saying, "I know not sorrow; But I must sing my best to-day, For I may die to-morrow!"

I asked the rose, "Oh, tell me, sweet, Thou canst not fear, from this fetreat, The coming of the morning?" She flung her fragrant leaves apart.

The lovelier for her sorrow, Saying, "Yet I must bloom to-day, For I may droop to-morrow." I said, "The bloom upon my cheek Is fleeting as the roses:

My voice no more shall sing nor speak When dust in dust reposes; And from these soulless monitors One lesson I may borrow-That we should smile and sing to-day, For we may weep to-morrow."

On recovering sufficient strength she related that he had been traveling on horseback from her father's house in Montreal, to visit an uncle that resided in Kentucky, in charge of a young man named Benjamin Connett who was sent expressly to attend her. But having a large amount of gold in her possession, an evil spirit prompted him to rob her; and in a lonelyspot near Pine Creek, he presented a pistol to her breast, compelling her to dismount and deliver up what money she possessed; when he immediately stripped her, tied her in this shameful condition, to starve with hunger or be devoured by wild beasts. She had remained in that condition nearly all night, when after the most desperate struggles, she had released herself and made her way to the cabin. After being refreshed, she willingly went with the family to the spot, and pointed out the place where she had been tied, and the path she had beaten round the tree

The intelligence having spread far and near, strangers flocked in great numbers to see her, and load her with presents.-Being at the hotel kept by Duffies, at Larry's Creek, a gentleman named Hutchison, from Milton, called to see her. She eyed him closely, and seemed to keep shy of him, which attracted his attention, and he thought he detected something familiar in her countenance. At length she confessed that such was the fact—that she had been playing the impostor; being of a romantic turn of mind, she had actually passed herself off as a young man, and worked as a journeyman tailor.

It was now remembered that a young man, answering her description, had crossed the White Deer Mountains into Nippenose Valley, and staid over night with the family of a farmer. BEAUTIFUL ANSWERS: A pupil of the Abbe Sicord gave the following extraordinary answers:

"What is gratitude?" "Gratitude is the memory of the heart. "What is hope?"

"Hope is the blossom of happiness." "What is the difference between hope ind desire?".

"Desire is a tree in leaf, hope is a tree in flower, and enjoyment is a tree in fruit." "What is eternity?"

"A day without yesterday or to-morrow—a line that has no end. "What is time?"

"A line that has two ends is path which begins, in the cradle and ends in the grave."

"What is God?" "The necessary being, the sun of cternity, the machinist of nature, the eye of justice, the watchmaker of the Universe, the soul of the world." Does-God reason?"

I gave it to my friends and thereby induced them to try it, many were skep-tical until after trial, and then purchased and used it with ited until after trial, and then purchased and used it with universal success. I will ask as a favor, that you send me a test by which I can discover and in the Restorative, sold by many, I fear, without authority from you. A pure article will insure success, and I believe where good effects do not follow, the failure is caused by the impure article, which curses the inventor of the good. I deem it my duty as heartafare to kind you unwriged of the continued effect. as heretofore, to keep you apprised of the continued effection my hair, as I assure all who enquire of me of my un shaken opinion of its valuable results. I remain, dear sir A. C. RAYMOND.

AARONS RUN, Ky., Nov. 30, 1858.

PROF. O. J. WOOD: Dear Str.—I would certainly be doing you a great injustice not to make known to the world, the wonderful, as well as unexpected result I have experienced from using one bottle of your Hair Restorative. After using every kind of Restoratives extant, but without success, and finding my head nearly destitute of hair, I was finally induced to try a bottle of your Hair Restorative. Now, canyour Pectoral Syrup. As a medicine it is well worthy the attention of any person who may in any manner be affected with coughs, colds and hoarseness of any kind, and for the peculiar qualifications for removing all that disagreeable sensation attending a cold.

I have been more color to the property of the property o this invaluable remedy to ALL who may feel the necessity of it. Respy you s. REV. S. ALLEN BROCK.

P. S.—This testimonial of my approbation for your valyou think it worthy a place among the rest, insert if you wish; if not destroy and say nothing.
Yours, &c., Rev S A B.
The Restorative is put up in bottles of three sizes, viz: large, medium and small; the small holds 1/2 a pint and retails for one dollar per bottle; the mediums hold at least twenty per cent more in proportion than the small, retails for two dollars per bottle; the large holds a quart, 40 per cent, more in proportion and retails for $3 a bottle. PRACTICAL CALCULATOR PRACTICAL CALCULATOR. OHRER'S PRACTICAL CALCU-A Book of Plain Rules and Calculations for Business Operations, by Martin M. Rohrer, Practical Surveyor and Conveyancer. New Edition, published by J. B. Lippincett & Co., Philodelphia,

This work contains 204 pages, and upwards of 500 Rules and Examples, entirely and thoroughly practical, such as arise every day in the common pursuits of Business. It has already passed through a number of editions in rapid succession, and is pronounced by all classes of business men to be the handlest book of reference, pertaining to cal-rulations, that has ever been published.

Every example in the book is worked out in full and stated in a plain manner, so that when a parallel case arises, those referring to the work will find no difficulty in solving it; in a word, the goneral arrangement of the CAICULA-TOR is simple, that any one who knows how to add, subtract, multiply and divide, can early solve any ordinary example that arises in business, or arrive at the true result f any estimate required. The chief aim of the author has been to eschew theory nd philosophy in figures, aiming only at facts and simpli ity, believing that business men care little about spending city, believing that business men care intre about spending time in discussing the philosophy of rules, or the science of figures, deeming it sufficient for their purpose to be able at a manient, by reference, to arrive at the true result. The CALCULATOR differs in this respect from all other Arithmetics of the day and kindred works—it is a key to practical business calculations—it is, in the hands of the business man, what the key to mathematical works is in the hands of the teacher in the school room—it facilitates time

THE WORK TREATS OF THE Measurement of Land, of Lumber, of Brick and Brick Work, of stone and stone work, of grain and grain bins, of coal and coal bins, of wood, of solids, of liquids, of circular, square or irregular vessels of cisterns and vats, of roo ing, of plasterer's, painter's, glazier's, paver's, plumber's, paper hanger's and upholsterers' work. It treats of currency and of foreign and domestic exchange, of the decimal system, of reduction and its extended application to business; of simple and compound interest, and their entire application to business transactions, with the laws and usages governing and regulating the same, together with numerous commercial forms—of legal tender, of partial payment on notest of banking and bank discount, of equaion of payment and of partnership accounts, of asses of taxes, of weights and measures, of square and cubic measure, of the square root and its application to business of surfaces, of excavation, and of many other important
