To Messis, Shoemaker, Pircainns, Lowther and other The supper was served up at the Logan House, on Thursday evening last, at half past 9 c'clock. About fifty persons were present and partook of a repast which, for richness and variety, would have done honor to the "Continental" or "St. fish, flesh and fowl, vegetables in season and out of season, substantials and luxuries, with a wind up of desserts "too numerous to mention." We are pleased to note that there was no wine or other spirituous liquors at the banquet, but the absence of these did not in the least detract from the "feast of reason and the flow of soul." The repast elicited the universal praise of the guests, and fully sustained the high reputation of the proprietors of the Logan House as caterers for the most cultivated tastes. A vote of thanks unanimously tendered them.

the object of the meeting and supper, and tendered to Mr. Hall the compliments of those present, assuring him of their high regard for him course as a public officer, and more particularly as the representative of this Senatorial District. Hall arose and responded in an address occupying some ten or fifteen minutes. He thanked those present, in very courteous terms, for the evidence they had thus given him of their approval of his public acts as their representative in State Senate, and also of their kind feelings toward him. He referred to the fact of his having settled in Altoona a briefless barrister, some six years since, with but little expectation that he would now occupy the position of Speaker of sylvania—also to the fact that this district and for speeches from others who were present, but date you. all delined, except Dr. Gemmill. What say our citizens to having a celebration in Altoona? We hope they will talk the matter over, immediately, and that by next week we may be able to report a programme.

MIDDLEBURG, Carroll Co., Md.,

May 24, 1861. KIND PATRONS:-I left the "Mountain City" being indispensable to the instruction of a company. of Altoona, at 1.25 on the morning of the 21st | Bound in one volume, 12mo, 62 pages, Paper cover, price and arrived at Harrisburg at 6 A. M. After looking around for a short time I strolled out to Camp Curtin, and was admitted by one of the guards with whom I happened to be acquainted. After showing me the "sights" about the camp, he invited me to take breakfast with him, but as the repast did not look very inviting I declined. The camp-ground was very muddy-in some places ancle deep. I soon came to the canclusion that a soldier's life is a hard one in every respect. The most comical and ferocious looking fellows in the camp were a company of raftsmen who muster under the name of "The Buck Tails"-each man having the tail of a buck fastened to his cap. I left Harrisburg at 1.15 P. M., on the Northern Central Railroad, destined for Baltimore. Observed nothing of importance until I reached Fork, where I met a number of the Altoona boys who were waiting at the depot, as nearly every train brings some of their friends to pay them a flying visit. They all look hearty, and seem to enjoy the hardships of camp life remarkably well. The train made but a short halt at this station. I had not proceeded far beyond York ere I could see the effects of the Baltimore mob, on the bridges along the route. Some of the bridges, which were built of iron, were pitched wholesale into the river below -Now, however, they are all replaced and the trains move along as if there had never been any obstruction. Nearly every bridge along the road is guarded by soldiers, who have log cabins built for their accommodation. As the train passed along, the passengers cheered the troops and threw out daily papers to them, over which there would be quite a scramble. While passing one point I saw a number of soldiers coming in from a farm-house, each one having a loaf of bread which he was swinging over his head.

I reached Baltimore at 6 o'clock, P. M., and found it to be as quiet as Altoona, and secessionists almost as hard to find as there. Everybody seems to regret the unfortunate affair which occurred here on the 19th ult., but at the same time they appear to be thankful that I remained in Baltimore over night, and on

There are a number of persons here who preach up the secession doctrine, but they dare not show their colors. I have not seen an out-and-out live secessionist vet. Tomorrow there is to be a beautiful pole raised a short distance from here, at a place called Key's School-House, on the farm formerly occupied by Francis S. Key, author of that beautiful national air. "The Star Spangled Banner." The people of this part of old Maryland are sound on the Union question, and go in for the Union and the Constitution unimpaired, and the enforcement of the laws at all hazards.
