

McCRUM & DERN,

[INDEPENDENT IN EVERYTHING.]

EDITORS AND PROPRIETORS.

VOL. G.

ALTOONA, PA., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1861.

NO. 36.

MEDICAL AND CHEMICAL REFORM.

New-York Benevolent Infirmary.

ESTABLISHED 1856. And devoted to the Cause of Medical Reform...

THE ALTOONA TRIBUNE.

E. D. McCRUM, PUBLISHER AND PROPRIETOR.

Per Annum, payable in advance, $1.00.

All papers discontinued at the expiration of the time paid for.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Table with columns for advertising rates: Four lines or less, One square, Two squares, Three squares, Over three weeks and less than three months, Six months, One year.

Original Poetry.

For the Altoona Tribune.

LINES ON THE DEATH OF COLONEL ELLSWORTH.

That son whose noble breast was filled With Freedom's generous flame...

THE FAMILY PHYSICIAN.

Containing simple remedies with full explanations of the cases, symptoms, diet, bathing and exercise.

THE LADIES' MEDICAL FRIEND.

A work for the ladies, containing full accounts of all complaints peculiar to the sex, on marriage, its duties, and the prevention of conception.

THE GENTLEMAN'S MEDICAL COMPANION.

A book for the gentleman, containing the pathology, prevention and cure of all diseases of the urinary and sexual organs.

THE GUIDE AND GUARD.

It exposes all the humbugs, and the various tricks to which the unwary are subjected.

THE HOUSEHOLD AND FARM, PLANTATION AND SHOP.

For every family, having over 1000 receipts on Cooking, Dressing, Dyeing, etc.

THE CONSUMPTIVES BOOK.

For those who wish to get well from that awful disease, consumption, or phthisis.

THE JOURNAL OF MEDICAL REFORM.

A large and beautiful journal, containing the most valuable information on Sanitary, Hygienic, and Medical Reform.

THE ROOT & HERB DOCTOR.

WHO HAS HAD 30 YEARS' CON- STANT PRACTICE, can be consulted at 77-79, the 3rd of July, and the 7th of August.

CONFECTIONERY & ICE CREAM SALOON.

THE SUBSCRIBER WOULD IN- FORM the citizens of Altoona and vicinity that his CONFECTIONERY, NUT and FRUIT STORE, is always supplied with the very best articles to be had.

DENTISTRY.

J. IRVIN STEEL, D. D. S., HAY- OFFERS his services in the different departments of Surgical and Mechanical Dentistry.

to convert me. I have shuddered as I caught, unawares, his eye upon me.

"It is a fearful thing, my young friend, to live under a disguise one's life-time."

"But there are those who do it. It may be the first you meet in the street. It may be the father, the counsellor, the elder, the preacher, the merchant in high esteem, your friend. Did you ever think of it?"

Select Miscellany.

SIR ROGER INKLEBY'S STORY.

"There is a special providence in the fall of a sparrow. If it be not now, 'tis not to come, it will be now: if it be not now, yet it will come."—HAM- LET.

THE GREAT QUESTION WHICH is always asked in the mind of every person who is engaged in the pursuit of knowledge.

BOOTS OR SHOES.

It is an examination of his stock and work, to be made by the customer.

THE SUBSCRIBER CONTINUES TO

keep constantly on hand the following literary papers and periodicals.

THE SUBSCRIBER KEEPS CON- STANTLY ON HAND

FRESH BREAD, CAKES, &c. FEED, GROIN FLOUR, GROCERIES.

NATIONAL POLICE GAZETTE.

This Great Journal of Crime and Criminals is published in the Twelfth Year, and is widely read throughout the country.

BOOTS AND SHOES.—THE UNderstanding of the shoe is the first and most important step in the selection of a pair.

GREAT WESTERN INSURANCE

AND TRUST COMPANY.—Insurance of Real Estate, Personal Property, and other interests.

LEWIS' PREPARATION FOR KEeping RATS, MICE, ROACHES, AND ALL other vermin.

PINE AND LARD OILS, &c.

Best quality of Pine Oil, Lard Oil, and other household necessities.

ON HAND AT McCORMICK'S

Hardware, Groceries, and other goods.

that which belongs to the Creator. He has assured us the sinner shall not go unpunished.

"I have lived solitary long enough; I want somebody to talk to, quarrel with, then kiss and make up again."

"As near as I can judge of myself, I am not over eighty or under twenty-five years of age."

DRAWING RATIONS.

There are some episodes in the life of a soldier, provocative of laughter, and that serve to disperse, in a measure, the ennui of camp life.

MATRIMONIAL.

"You have some fine potatoes here, I see."

"Spend it!" was the reply.

"Where do you get them?"

"Draw 'em."

"Does Government furnish potatoes in your rations?"

"Nary potato!"

"I thought you said you drew them."

"So we do."

"But how, if they are not included in your rations?"

"Easiest thing in the world! Won't you take some with us?"

"Thank you! But will you oblige me by telling how you draw your potatoes, as they are furnished you by the commissary?"

"Nothing easier! Draw 'em by the tops mostly! Sometimes with a hoe, if one is left in the field."

"Hum!—yes—I understand! Well, see here! Friends, if you don't 'draw' any more of mine, I will 'draw' them myself, and bring you a basketfull every morning!"

"Bully for you, old fellow!" was the cry, and three cheers and a tiger were given for farmer Lee.

"What is your name?" asked the man.

"Jonathan Gilman."

"The same that lived near here when a boy."

"I will not employ you, then."

"Poor Jonathan, surprised at such a reply, passed on to the next farmer."

"Ah!" said he, "I understand it now. I was a school-boy there once, but what kind of a school-boy? Lazy and disobedient."

"Although I am now in a measure reformed, they all think me the same kind of a man as I was a boy."

"The melancholy case stunned the world. Public conscience was staggered. Capitalists were dumb."

"Mutual reliance lost one trusted pillar of its base; temptation has proved a Sampson, and pulled it down amid the tangled pile of expectation, hope, and dependence."

"Let existence be guarded by principle, and life, with all its phases of sunbeam and night, will gather honey from every petal, that will sweeten and nourish the 'slipped pantaloon' eye."

"Read ye the lesson—heed it well."

"Beautiful rain, this, sir; fetch things out of the ground," said one friend to another.

"Hope not, sir," said the other, "got two wives there."

"The moon changes every thirty days. If a fact were wanting to determine the sex of this planet, the above is sufficient. Like most ladies, she is never a day older than thirty."

"If you and your sweetheart vote upon the marriage question, you for it and she against it, don't flatter yourself as to it's being a tie."

There are some episodes in the life of a soldier, provocative of laughter, and that serve to disperse, in a measure, the ennui of camp life.

"I have lived solitary long enough; I want somebody to talk to, quarrel with, then kiss and make up again."

"As near as I can judge of myself, I am not over eighty or under twenty-five years of age."

DRAWING RATIONS.

There are some episodes in the life of a soldier, provocative of laughter, and that serve to disperse, in a measure, the ennui of camp life.

MATRIMONIAL.

"You have some fine potatoes here, I see."

"Spend it!" was the reply.

"Where do you get them?"

"Draw 'em."

"Does Government furnish potatoes in your rations?"

"Nary potato!"

"I thought you said you drew them."

"So we do."

"But how, if they are not included in your rations?"

"Easiest thing in the world! Won't you take some with us?"

"Thank you! But will you oblige me by telling how you draw your potatoes, as they are furnished you by the commissary?"

"Nothing easier! Draw 'em by the tops mostly! Sometimes with a hoe, if one is left in the field."

"Hum!—yes—I understand! Well, see here! Friends, if you don't 'draw' any more of mine, I will 'draw' them myself, and bring you a basketfull every morning!"

"Bully for you, old fellow!" was the cry, and three cheers and a tiger were given for farmer Lee.

"What is your name?" asked the man.

"Jonathan Gilman."

"The same that lived near here when a boy."

"I will not employ you, then."

"Poor Jonathan, surprised at such a reply, passed on to the next farmer."

"Ah!" said he, "I understand it now. I was a school-boy there once, but what kind of a school-boy? Lazy and disobedient."

"Although I am now in a measure reformed, they all think me the same kind of a man as I was a boy."

"The melancholy case stunned the world. Public conscience was staggered. Capitalists were dumb."

"Mutual reliance lost one trusted pillar of its base; temptation has proved a Sampson, and pulled it down amid the tangled pile of expectation, hope, and dependence."

"Let existence be guarded by principle, and life, with all its phases of sunbeam and night, will gather honey from every petal, that will sweeten and nourish the 'slipped pantaloon' eye."

"Read ye the lesson—heed it well."

"Beautiful rain, this, sir; fetch things out of the ground," said one friend to another.

"Hope not, sir," said the other, "got two wives there."

"The moon changes every thirty days. If a fact were wanting to determine the sex of this planet, the above is sufficient. Like most ladies, she is never a day older than thirty."

"If you and your sweetheart vote upon the marriage question, you for it and she against it, don't flatter yourself as to it's being a tie."

I have lived solitary long enough; I want somebody to talk to, quarrel with, then kiss and make up again.

"As near as I can judge of myself, I am not over eighty or under twenty-five years of age."

"I have lived solitary long enough; I want somebody to talk to, quarrel with, then kiss and make up again."

DRAWING RATIONS.

There are some episodes in the life of a soldier, provocative of laughter, and that serve to disperse, in a measure, the ennui of camp life.

MATRIMONIAL.

"You have some fine potatoes here, I see."

"Spend it!" was the reply.

"Where do you get them?"

"Draw 'em."

"Does Government furnish potatoes in your rations?"

"Nary potato!"

"I thought you said you drew them."

"So we do."

"But how, if they are not included in your rations?"

"Easiest thing in the world! Won't you take some with us?"

"Thank you! But will you oblige me by telling how you draw your potatoes, as they are furnished you by the commissary?"

"Nothing easier! Draw 'em by the tops mostly! Sometimes with a hoe, if one is left in the field."

"Hum!—yes—I understand! Well, see here! Friends, if you don't 'draw' any more of mine, I will 'draw' them myself, and bring you a basketfull every morning!"

"Bully for you, old fellow!" was the cry, and three cheers and a tiger were given for farmer Lee.

"What is your name?" asked the man.

"Jonathan Gilman."

"The same that lived near here when a boy."

"I will not employ you, then."

"Poor Jonathan, surprised at such a reply, passed on to the next farmer."

"Ah!" said he, "I understand it now. I was a school-boy there once, but what kind of a school-boy? Lazy and disobedient."

"Although I am now in a measure reformed, they all think me the same kind of a man as I was a boy."

"The melancholy case stunned the world. Public conscience was staggered. Capitalists were dumb."

"Mutual reliance lost one trusted pillar of its base; temptation has proved a Sampson, and pulled it down amid the tangled pile of expectation, hope, and dependence."

"Let existence be guarded by principle, and life, with all its phases of sunbeam and night, will gather honey from every petal, that will sweeten and nourish the 'slipped pantaloon' eye."

"Read ye the lesson—heed it well."

"Beautiful rain, this, sir; fetch things out of the ground," said one friend to another.

"Hope not, sir," said the other, "got two wives there."

"The moon changes every thirty days. If a fact were wanting to determine the sex of this planet, the above is sufficient. Like most ladies, she is never a day older than thirty."

"If you and your sweetheart vote upon the marriage question, you for it and she against it, don't flatter yourself as to it's being a tie."

"The following is extracted from one of the letters picked up by our soldiers in the lately evacuated camp of the rebels at Laurel Hill:

"I say upon dear Melinda wear skin fur our liberts to dew get as we please, and we will fit fur them so long as goddennity gives us breath."

"The blood of man should never be shed but to redeem the blood of man. It is well shed for our families, for our friends, for our God, for our Country, and for our kind. The rest is vanity; the rest is crime."

"A dentist is not always mad when he shows his teeth."