Peace.

We all desire peace-for to none are the notes of war pleasant music. Even the war-worn hero, blackened by the smoke of battle, when the sound of the clash of arms has died away, reposing upon the field of the victor, sighs for the returning dawn of peace. He looks back to his own pleasant home, the enjoyments of which he has exchanged for the hardships and perils of the field, and breaths a prayer to God for the speedy coming of that bour, when he may again drop the sword and grasp the plough--when he may lay down his musket and take up his hammer-when he may part from his comrades, though endeared to them by long months of companionship, and the common dangers they have escaped, and embrace again the loved ones that cluster around his own hearth stone. And the wife and children, the parents, sisters and brothers of the loved ones. Oh how they expensive silence.' look forward to the time, when the clouds that now over-spread our national sky and ever cast their sombre shadow o'er every home, may roll back and the sunlight of peace fall upon them again. For then with joy upon the mountain tops, the wife, the mother, the sister would stand and await the coming of the sturdy mountaineer. In the valley praparations would be made to welcome back soldier friends to avocations of peace-to welcome them back from war to husbundry. And in the city archways of laurel intertwined with beauteous flowers would span the streets with smiles and welcomes would greet those returning ones who passed along. Yes, peace would be hailed with joy and crowned with blessi.gs. But with all this glowing picture Lefore us, we are yet led to feel that "peace" is not "so sweet, as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery." Yet there seem to be those in our midst who would pay the price, and secure perhaps for party ends alone, the coveted boon .---

PATRIOTIC LETTER FROM D. S. DICK-INSON.-Hon. D. S. Dickinson has written a letter tosthe New York Union State Convention to be held this week, declining a renomination to the office of Atturney General, which contains some very pertinent, very strong and patriotic remarks. We quote the following :-

"I entertain the same opinion of the rebellion o-day that I did on its outbreak, that it must be ut down absolutely and unconditionally, by force. we would preserve the government of our fathers and save our name from becoming a synonym for cowardice and baseness wherever the history of the American Revolution has traveled or its fruits been realized. From the commencement of the rebellion I have arged the union of all true men, irrespective of political organizations, to aid the Administration in crushing it. I have labored aithfully to that end, and such shall be my effort gardless of whence they come or what have been

"The rebellion has received its death blow .-It has now little power for mischief save in its spasmodic struggles as it gasps out its ignoble existence. It may, by galvanic applications from its friends in the loyal States, once or twice raise to its feet and stagger on a little further, but this will rather hasten than postpone the hour of its dissolution. As it passes away, and the law is preparing its hallers, and dangeons and hanishments for conspiring leaders, let us pray for the forgiveenss of the deluded masses who have been cheated or driven into this wholesale murder, to minister to the unholv ambition of some of the most fiendish mousters who have ever dese-rated the earth. As for the mole-eyed politicians amongst us whose poverty of inteilect has not enabled them to comprehend the magnitude of the crisis, when they shall cease to encourage the murderers of our sons and brothers, let us endure their exhibitions and the ebullitions of their spite without murmur, and in sheer pity measure out to them, as an antidote for their ineffectual tage, and that would be all virus, that scorn which is made most emphatic by

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, August 26, 1863 -Hon. JANES C. CONKLING :- My Dear Si -Your letter invising me to attend a mass meeting of unconditional Union men, to be held at the capital of Illinois on the 3d day of September, has been received. It would be very agreeable to me thus to meet my old friends at my own home, but I cannot just now be absent from this city so long as a vi-it there would require. The meeting is to be of all the Union, and I am suce that my old political friends will thank me for tendering, as I do, the nation's gratitude to those other noble men whom no partisan malice or partisan hope can make false to the mation's life. There are those who are dissatisfied with me.

To such I would say, "You desire peace, and you blame me that we do not have it. But how can in the future. I propose to act, and will act to this end, with all whose views are the same, re-ways :--First. To suppress the Rebellion by force of arms. This I am trying to do. Are you for it? If you are, so for we are agreed. If you are not for it, we are not agreed. A second way is to give up the Union. I am against this. If you are you should say so plainly. If you are not for force, nor yet for dissolution, there only remains some imaginary compromise. I do not believe > ance of the Union is now possible. All that I learn leads to a directly opposite belief. The strength of the Rebellion is tary, its a my. That army dominates all the country and all the people within is range. Any offer of terms made by any man or men that range, in opposition to that army, is simply nothing for the present, because such man or men have no power whatever to enforce their side of a compromise, if one were made with them,-To illustrate-suppose a refugee from the South and the peace men of the North get together in convention and frame and proclaim a compromise embracing a restoration of the Union, what way can that compromise be used to keep Gen. Lee's army out of Pennsylvania ? General Meade's army can keep Lee's army out of Pennsylvania, and I think can ul imately drive it out of existence; but no paper compromise to which the controllers of General Lee's army are not agreed can at all affect that armys. In an effort o such compromise we would waste the time, which the enemy would improve to our disadvan-

A compromise, to be effective, must be made either with those who control the Rebel army, or with the people, first liberated from the domination of that army by the success of ou. army,

Now allow me to insure you that no word or intimation from the Rebel army or from any of the men controlling it, in relation to any peace comromise, has ever come to my knowledge or belief. All charges and intimations to the contrary are deceptive and groundless, and I promise you, that if any such propositions shall hereafter come, it shall not be rejected and kept secret from you. I freely acknowledge myself to be the servant of the people, according to the bond of service, the United States Constitution, and that as such I am re-

But, to be plain, you are dissatisfied with r about the negro. Quite likely there is a difference of opinion between you and myself upon that ubject. I certainly wish that all men could be ree, while you, I suppose, do not. Yet I have nei her adopted nor proposed any measure which s not consistent with even your views, provided on are for the Union. I suggested con pensated mancipation, to which you replied that you wished not to be taxed to buy negroes. But had not asked you to be taxed to buy negroes, except in such a way as to save you from greater taxa-tion to save the Union exclusively by the other means. You dislike the Emancipation Proclamation, and perhaps you want to have it retracted. You say it is unconstitutional. I think differently,

I think that the Constitution invests its Commander-in-Chief with the law of war in time of war. The most that can be said, if so much, is, that slavery is property. Is there, has there ever been any question that

Of these we manufacture a great sariety, ranging price from 50 cents to $50 each. Our ALBUM have the reputation of being superior Gen. What the evacuation of Knoxville, and the surrender, without a struggle, or even the sign of resistance, of the Tennessee and Virginia railroad-a line of incalculable importance to the rebels, mean, it is hard, in the absence of details of the latest movements, to say. Any troops which Lee may have detached and sent forward cannot now get beyond Knoxville, nor, if they have already passed Knoxville and gone to Chattanooga, can they get back to the Rapidan, except by the roundabout way of Charleston and Richmond. This is important as indicating that secrans and Burnside are in close communion, and effectively co-operating together for the more complete defeat of the enemy. Resectant has been closing in on Chattanooga from all sides, but chiefly South of the Tennessee, and was expected to have reached it on the 5th. Burnside doubtless by this time advanced southward below London, and will be either in position to below London, and will be either in position to prevent a rebel flank movement northward around Rosecran's lines, or to directly aid in the assault on Chattanooga. That will depend upon the position of Bragg's and Johnston's army, which at last ac-counts was centered at Chattanooga. We have no doubt but that the rebel kaders will soon un-fold their strategy; but we think G-n. Rosecrans will prove a match for them. WATCH PRESENTATION .- On Monday evening Angust 31st, the employees of the P. R. R. i foundry in this place, and other personal frier of C. R. McCrea, late foreman of the found assembled together for the purpose of presenti to that gentleman a beautiful gold chronomer American lever watch, which was purchased them for that purpose. It was selected by h Henry Van Tries, of Hollidaysburg, who pr nounced it to be a most excellent time-piec Engraved upon it is the following inscription ;-"Presented to Chas. R. McCrea by the Employe of the Altoona Iron Foundry, and his person friends, in token of our regard." After the Chai man, Jas. Mundew, had stated the object of th meeting, B. F. Custer, Esq., on behalf of th donors, presented the watch to Mr. McCrea, the following appropriate remarks :

FELLOW EMPLOYEES-Ours is a world of change and the muta ions of time bring many surprisit and most unexpected turns in the wheel of fortune One of the numerous inexplicable frenks of the proverbially fickle goddess into whose especial ear the material destiny of man has been given, has caused us to assemble here.

On such occasions our emotions are of a two fold character. We feel pain at the approachin eparrtion, and gratification in the opportunit sented of giving expression to our sentimer f friendship and esteem. Pleasing as the latte buty may be, it is, in the present instance, almo made a task by the reflection that a few days muwitness the disruption of that daily intercour which, during a long course of years has taugh to know and respect one whose many excelle qualities have endeared him to all who have en oved a familiar acquaintance. Some of us have wen intimate with him since his first adven among us, and can testify to the sincerity of I riendship and the generosity of his disposition whilst all can evidence his integrity and mora worth. In him the Company loses one whose ervices have been invaluable. The founder the first foundry, the construction of which he su perintended, he has been identified with its inter sts here from the beginning, and faithfully has h ischarged his trust. His experience and judgment have enabled him to corduct the affairs o his department so prudently and economically to convince all that he was eminently qualified for the position he now vacates, after filling it, with aonor to himself and profit to the corporation, even years. During that time, i large number of those employed in the Altoon ron foundry have found cause to complain arshness or injustice from their foreman, by many have expressed their gratitude for such acts of sympathy and kindness as exhibited the good ness of his heart. There is no stain upon the record of Charles R. McCrea, and it is therefor proper that we, appreciating his high characte hall carry out the design of giving him a substan ial testimonial of our regard, for which purpos we have now met. MR. MCCREA-To me has been delegated the very agreeable duty of presenting the you this testi-monial—the inscription upon which will tell its history. I will not multiply words, but simply suy: Take this gift, as a free will offering from old friends, who know—and knowing, esteem and love you. Wear it for their sakes, and as the yours it notes pass rapidly away, let each day reew in you pleasant remembrances of those around ou. They feel that such a monitor will not be necessary to remind you of "Auld Lang Syne." nt desire you to keep it as a memento of an ac maintance which they hope is but temporarily isturbed. Should it be renewed, old friends will, on your return, welcome you with open heartsshould we never meet again the benisons of such and all will follow you in your journeyings, through life, and even beyond the gates of the 'Valley of the Shadow of Death." To which Mr. McCrea responded as follows: GONTLEMEN .- As you all know I am more a man of action than of words and can do more in he foundry than on the platform. I feel myself utterly incompetent to do justice to the eloquent remarks accompanying this beautiful gift. I shall wear it constantly and proudly, and never forget the generosity of the friends around me. As has just been said, I have been connected with this oundry for eleven years, and during that time I have always endeavored, to the best of my ability; to do equal and exact justice, both to the workmen and the company. I am now about to leave you-not from any desire for change, but because t is my duty, in common with all men, to benefit myself and family, pect niarily, whenever I can, and I may say that I believe the change I am abou making will result much to my advantage. To he workmen who have been so long associated with me I wish to say that I desire them to render 'o my successor the ever ready and able service they have given me and which has con ributed so largely to the prosperity of the foundry, and further, I exmestly desire each and all to place firm faith in the justice of the Pennsylvania Railroad company, for I do not believe, as has been asserted, hat the longer a man is in its employ the less he is respected. I also wish to make a public denial of the charge that I have endeavored to persuade any of the workmen to go with me to Philadelphia, and if there be any here whom I have approached on this subject I wish him to proclaim the fact I am no orator and feel that I fall far short of making such a response as this beautiful gift and accompanying demonstration deserve. I would gladly say more, but feel myself unable to give utterance to the many ideas which pass through my mind. For this elegant testimonial I tender my beartfelt and sincere thanks, and whenever I look at it I shall reiterate the wish, that prosperity may follow you and yours forever.

Those that cry compromise, compromise, compromise, would buy peace for a song, then shed oceans of blood in its enjoymenta(?) and have no peace, but continued bickerings, and jealousies and untold miseries at last.

While if now they give their whole support to the government, if each one lars his shoulder to the wheel, the indications are that soon we may have a peace which we can depend upon-a peace which we can prize-a peace of which we can be proud—a peace that will be a blessing to us and our posterity forever. Who in this hour, then, is willing to sacrifice the future happiness and glory of our country, for a present and only temporary lull in the storm of war-who so Lise as to cry pcace, pcace, when there can as yet be no peace.

THE PARTING OF TWO HEROES .- A COTTES pondent relates the following incident of the battle at Gottysburg: At the close of the bloody hattles, while themsands of the soldiers were lying side by side, and before even the officers could seek and speak to their bleeding and dving friends the com-mand came to pursue the flying considerates. Major General Howard, in command of the Elevanth Army on ps, hastened to the bedside of Capt. Griffith, of his staff, between whom and the General a strong personal attachment existed, to take his last farewelk. He closed the door, and after a brief interchange of sympathies, the General took his New Testament and read to him the fourteenth chapter of John. He then knelt in prayer and commended his wounded friend to his venant keeping God; and rising from his knees, classed him in one long, tond, weeping embrace Thus the heroes parted. One went to seek the rebels against his Government; the other died in a few days in perfect place, cordially acquiescing in God's will, and firmly relying on the merits of his Saviour.
