A Convention of Editors.

We are glad to observe that our suggestion for holding an Editorial Convention in Bellefonte, where a union of those attached to the craft, will be effectively accomplished, is gaining favor among the editors of the interior. This is a movement of more importdiscover at first sight-and it is therefore necessary that, some effort should be made, and that speedily, to bring the subject properly before our friends and associates. There are older members of the craft than ourselves; but, while they approve of the movement, there seems to be an apathy in proposing some plan, or publishing some chart, setting forth reakons justifying the assembling of such a convention.

We, therefore, offer the following reasons for holding a convention : 1st. The country press have to contend. not only with the cheap literature of the he (Mr. Millward) should be made Chairman larger cities, but they have formidable rivals of the Engraving, or Lithographing, or Principles iii what are called "manningth weeklics," ting Committee, and have a good thing of it which flood the country, corrupting the [Laughter, and cries of "who is he ?"] morals of the people, and monopolizing the patronage which legitimately belongs to the

RALLINGAD ESSAYS. No. 1 Circumstances beyond my orate pre-vented me from pursuing the plant I had laid down for discussing the cheuling marits of the Lock-Haven and Tyrote Railroa at the period I contemplated. The thin the peo-ple of the Counties through which it will pass have taken it in hand with comm ble zeal and liberality, and I doubt, whether any enterprise in this State has received more permanent friends and support than this one, unless they were driven to it by some rival project which would probably operate greatly to their prejudice. It is true that other routes through the county have been contemplated, and one of them (the Spruce Creek route) has had undisputed possession of the public mind for nearly three years but there are palpable grounds for determining that the Bald Eagle route is the most practicable and most beneficial one, and it requires no extraordinary effort to convince the people of this fact. First. its route is so natural that any one passing through the valley cannot fail to observe its remarkable fitness for such an improvement. A country often appears quite level and regular, but the instruments of the engineer detects material irregularities which are expensive to overcome, but a sluggish stream, direct in its general course, is an evidence of its grades and lines; its absence of bluffs, ridges, and lateral depressions and elevations determine the character of the work to be encountered This route equally divides the territory of the country between the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Sunbury and Erie Railroad-it passes in a line between the fertile valleys of the mountains and the inexhaustable deposits of the mineral wealth of the mountains themselves-it offers the most advantageous facilities to reach all parts of the country and to give employment to the best water powers in the districts. The, iron ores lie immediately on one side, the costs on the other; the farms on one side, the timber on the other; the valley along its route presents capacities for a denser population than any other part of the counties. Small valleys everywhere abound among the Bald Eagle State. ridges; and the mountains and hills almost everywhere jet forth the finest springs of saves three-quarters of the wood, while the pure and wholesome water. The Williamsport and Elmira Railroad of fors a nearer and better route for all passengers going to Cincinnati from any point cast of a line drawn between Albany and Elmira. and to any point east of Cincinnati, on the Ohio river or south of it this will be the route, New York is 123 miles nearer Cincinnati by this route than it is by any route north of it. and still nearer than any route south of it. in equated distance, and by this route New York is 15 miles nearer Cleveland by this ronte than it is by Emp, and consequently the Mississippi valley and the Lake country west of Cleaveland is nearer by this route to of Rome. New York, and the eastern coast from Portland to New York is thus brought nearer to the Mississippi valley. In estimating distances, curvature, gradients and distance should be taken into account. 360 deg. of over every one. 1000 radius is equal to an additional mile on straight line, 20 feet of elevation is equivalent to s mile, on the level and a transshipm nt is about equal to 50 miles, taking all these things into account, this route offers a line that is far superior to any other one

LIBEL SUIT .- David Wilmot has commenced a libel suit against E. B. Chase, Esq., senior editor of the Montrose Democrat, and laid his damages at $10,000. Mr. Chase had the independence to come out and expose the official corruption of Wilmot, and for doing this he has been prosecuted for libel! We presume the whole band of Know-Nothing Abolitionists who infest the counties of Susquehenna, Bradford and Tioga, will rejoice at the effort of Jessup, Wilmot & Co., to anminilate a bold and fearless Democratic editor.
