SHOULD MR. PEARCE RESIGN?—Our opponents committed a great error, says the Clinton Democrat, when, in secret caucus, they determined to send a clergyman to Congress—a clergyman who had put himself forth as the wisest man in the District, and who had done all in his power to secure the nomination for that office at the hands of the other parties. The fact of his having used foul means to attain that position which he has so much degraded, should have deterred his friends in their efforts to assist him in his designs.

We think, now, since Mr. Pearce has so signally failed in adding honor to distinction, that he is bound to resign, if he has any regard for the feelings of his constituents. Having endeavored to secure the nomination at the hands of the Democracy of the District, under false pretences, and then having obtained his heart's desire by leagueing with the secret foes of our Republican government, and by pledging himself to oppose those principles which he was as willing to bind himself to support and up hold in the first instance, he should have been content to sustain the honor conferred upon him, and not bring dishonor upon his constituency. His constituency desire his resignation that they may be enabled to send a man of honor, integrity and talent to fill the position he has so much disgraced.

WHAT NEXT.—The senseless and contradictory grounds furnished by the opposition for the war they have waged against the administration, are thus summed up by the People's (Massachusetts) Advocate:

"The course of the opposition towards the administration is marked with a most deplorable want of principle. They began by denouncing General Pierce as an abolitionist, then as a doughface and servant of the South, then as an agitator, then as a hunker whom any agitation would frighten into fits, then as a dictator to his party, then as a man of no influence, then as a perfect dictator; then they complain because he does not direct his party in Congress, and take the business of the majority into his own hands; and, lastly, they find fault because all their shiftings and turnings have not had the effect to injure the democratic chances for the presidency. Can anybody tell us what these fellows want next?"

THE WHITE MOUNTAINS IN WINTER.—The Portland Advertiser says:

"Seemingly to us these everlasting mountains of New Hampshire never presented more magnificent and glorious appearances than they have on every fair day for the last few weeks. We hardly know which view of them to admire the most, daily, kaleidoscopic, as they have been at sunrise, noon, and sunset; and we have viewed them at all these hours. They are glorious mountains."

Pennsylvania and the Presidency.

The tone of the Democratic press all over the Union, is what might be expected of a party conscious of its strength and determined upon victory. Pennsylvania is conceded to be the battle ground, and every effort will be made
