Sullivan. Such results are flattering to the Democracy Susquehanna because they renay our indebtedness to other counties in the State for what we have of Democratic principles and rule in Pennsylvania. It is flattering, when it is taken into consideration, than in no other Presidential contest have the national issues been more fully understood by the people, than in the one through which we have passed, nor have the questions been more decisively settled, or Democratic principles more glorionaly maintained in any other Presidential contest. But such successes and results should not full us into a fancied scenity and Buchanan over Fremont and Filla consequent inactivity.

All proper and honorable means should still be used for the harmony and advancement of the principles advocated by the Democratic party. Personal differences and prejudices should be laid aside for the ben-efit of the common cause. A fair expression of the opinions of the Democracy should be had at all primary meetings. .

In conclusion, we trust that all who have aided in the achievement of the brilliant triumph that crowns our recent labors, will continue to uphold the Democratic Republican banner, and to adhere constantly to those eternal principles that have given to us our freedom and made our country what it is presenting to the opposition a bold, unbroken phalanx of honest, hard working, virtuops men, who
