THE DEMOCRATIC WATCHMAN.

BELLEFONTE, JUNE 4, 1857.

LOCAL AND PERSONAL.

TERRIFIC HAIL STORM.—On S iday last, the upper end of our county was visited by one of the most violent and disastrous storms of hail and rain ever witnessed in this region of country. We are informed by persons who traveled over the road since the storm, that the beautiful farms and private dwellings, from the residence of P. B. Waddle, on Buffalo Run, to Centre Line, is devastated beyond anything that the most credulous would believe. The roof is blown off the barn of Peter Murray, the barn of Samuel Litzel is entirely destroyed, and the fine new barn of Isaac Gray, Jr., moved one foot off the foundation. The splendid cherry, and other fruit trees, that grew along the road, as beautiful and useful ornaments, are prostrated, while the forest trees are stripped of their leaves and many of them twisted from their roots. The young fruit is knocked from the trees, and the crops of wheat, corn, rye and clover are entirely destroyed for a distance of eleven miles. The corn but lately planted is washed out by the heavy rain, and every furrow is changed into a ditch. All window glass exposed to the storm is broken out, and we are told that there are one hundred and twelve pains of glass broken out of the house of our worthy friend, Jacob Pottsgrove, Esq Without further specifying, we may say that it is truly lamentable to behold the destruction with which that locality has been visited, but the ways of Providence are inscrutable and all must be borne with resignation.

LITTLE ARMS.—Nothing gives us such desire to suddenly cry out "stop that!" as to see a grown person dragging a little child, scarcely able to walk, along the street by the arm. This very common practice may be witnessed any day in our borough, and it is one of which parents should constantly think until they learn to abandon it wholly. We have seen, with pity and regret, men and women walking out with an infant, just learning to walk such steps, on life's journey, beside them raising it by one tender arm, carrying it clear across streets and for half a block beyond You never thought that you were acting cruelly, doing lasting harm to your cherished little friend, distorting its limbs and creating precishness These who are fond of young Doves manifest affection too intensely when they catch their favorites by the tip of a wing and carry them about the borough, occasionally allowing them to touch the sidewalk with the ends of their toes

COURT HOUSE YARD Workmen are now engaged in leveling up the square in front of the Court House which is soon to be enclosed with iron railing This is a good improvement, and one we desire to see consummated. We hope, gentlemen, you will plant trees in the yard The fact that we have other pleasant retreats in and about town is no reason why the Court House Yard should be left to stand without a shade, no more than it would be to say that because A had a very handsome dwelling, B. need'nt build another along side of it. A half hour could be spent very profitably there in the long summer days if there was sufficient shade to shelter us from the heat of the sun. Ornament the yard.

Our streets were somewhat enlivened, on Saturday last, by an organ grinder and a little girl, with a tambourine. After parading the streets for some time, to the amusement of the boys and children of a larger growth, they brought up on the Southwest corner of the diamond, where they were joined by the celebrated Joseph Tell Thomas, the champion bone player. They discoursed, most melliflently, the discordant sounds which usually emanate from a well trained cata-thumpian band

A FIRE ALMOST. An old red house, on High street, owned by Mr H Brokerhoff, was discovered to be on fire on Friday last It caught from the chimney, but was checked before anything but a portion of the roof was destroyed. Had the fire got fairly under way, from the direction of the wind, it is fair to presume the whole square would have been destroyed Persons ought to keep their chimneys clean, and we think they should be compelled, by a borough ordinance, to do so

The sun smiled upon us in its cheering beams this morning, and woke up the birds to singing sweet anthems of praise to the Creator and the creature. What is more pleasing than a concert from nature's warblers? Their notes are sweetest because simplest, and always in tune because nature never errs with them. Girls get up early in the morning, if you want a serenade that has some music in it. Boys do likewise.

AH, 'TWAS SWEET.—We have just regaled ourselves with some very fine large oranges —they were sweet oranges, —we feel somewhat better now, and, of course, are prepared to inquire, when shall the wagons, carts, wheel-barrows, store boxes, wood and dirt piles, &c., be removed from our streets? Remove them, gentlemen of the Town Council, for they are neither useful nor ornamental in their present positions.

We regret to learn that Mr. John Eckenroth, of Harris township, was recently injured by being caught in the saw of his Mill, which he had stopped for the purpose of filing. His weight upon the file caused the saw to descend, and cut him severely about the left ear, cheek and upper lip. The wounds are not considered dangerous.

GRADING.—We see that the work of grading in the rear of the Court House is nearly completed, and, instead of viewing a ragged stone quarry, as heretofore, we have now a very pleasant sight of a well McAdamized piece of ground.

All communications recommending persons for office will be charged at our regular advertising rates, and no such communication will be inserted, unless accompanied by the cash.

Persons who suppose there is no enterprise about Bellefonte are sadly mistaken. Several fine buildings are now being erected, prominent among which are, a law office, for Messrs. Curtin & Blanchard, on Allegany street, and a splendid brick residence for Samuel Linn, Esq., on the hill at the lower end of town.

WAS IT CONSCIENCE?—On last Sabbath morning, we saw an intoxicated individual lying on the steps of one of our churches, but could not say whether he wished to be sobered by the "drippings from the sanctuary" or merely sought the place to get a quiet nap.

Several fights occurred in town, during last week, which, we think, for the sake of the participants' faces, might have been left alone.

VERY BAD.—The board-walks on High, Allegany, and Bishop streets. Ought to be repaired instanter.
