Execution of Ward, the Wife Murderer. Dying Scene, Speeches and Conduct.

We find the following account of the exe cution of Return J. Ward, the wife murder er, in the Toledo Blade, of the 12th inst. Precisely at 11 o'clock, Ward issued from his cell, attended by Father O' Connor and Sheriff Springer. Two chairs were placed on the platform of the gallows, in one of which he took his seat, the priest and an attendant occupying places at his side. The house was perfectly still as he took his place. The prisoner, previously to being brought out of the cell, was dreadfully excited, his pulse running as high as 120 to 130 per minute : and for a half hour before leaving it, he was occupied with the priest say ing his prayers, and bidding good bye to a few friends who visited him.

As they appeared and took places on the gal lows, one could have heard a pin drop. His limbs were secured by Col. Lathrop, of Sylvama. Ward was dressed in a white robe white pants and white slippers, with a cross around his neck, which he held in his hands. He were white kid gloves, and trembled nolently; but seemed more composed as the priest whispered a few words to him. Sher ff Springer then read the death warrant for Ward's execution, and the certified copy of the case from the court, to which the prisoner listened with great attention.

Ward's dying speech was simply the raying of an over-excited and broken-down hand. He was so thoroughly unstrung that his words were more like the workings of insanity than intelligence. He occupied the ford Conn., for burial in the Hebrew fashion platform in a sitting position for nearly an The Haitford Times says: hour, with the two priests by his side, and spoke and prayed at intervals. Before he said to those present that Wards wished to fested this city. He confessed great conspeak about a confession which he was re-

I'm not going out of the world with a lie in my mouth, but I have confessed all that I can remember, and I would'nt be likely to forget it if I had killed two men. I don't want anybody here ever to take up or look at one of those books. I don't call, myself a bad man, for I have always kept genteel company, and never stole any money at all. I never stole ten dollars, nor five ; nor one or fifty cents, in my life. It's all just as l tell you. It's true-all true."

He continued to repeat these and similar expressions for some-time, and then referred to his wife thug:

"I hope that this will be a warning to many men. I hope that there will never be any more crime in the world. Oh, I killed my wife! That's enough! As he said these words, and at precisely five minutes before twelve o'clock, the bolt was drawn and Ward dropped straight down and hung motionless conly one slight was dead. We immediately left the place and the incoherent rayings, the nervous and excited appearance of the murderer on the gallows, and the still, white form of the slowly swinging body -- none of those who were present will ever forget.

A Maiden's First Love. Human nature has no essence more pure

-the world knows nothing more chasterocate kindness and affection; and if this nower be rendered dormant, it is by not fection of a young virgin's soul. The warm-Cultivate a kind and pleasing manner, est language of the sunny south is too cold to shadow forth even a feint outline of that enthusiastic sentiment. And God has made mon contemplation. The musical voice of Love stirs the source of the sweetest thoughts within the human breast, and steals into the most profound recesses of the soul touching chords which never vibrated before, and call ing into gentle companionship delicious hopes till then unknown.
