The Cry of Fraud. Were a person in some distant land, un acquainted with the conduct of the Repubpublican Know-Nothing party of Pennsylva nia during the late contest, to read the papers emanating from their numerous presses, he would no doubt form quite a favorable impression of their political ethics, and conclude, that the protensions put forth by that some extent descring of public censure, for party, to all the honesty and decency, had some foundation in truth. The same individually faults (which after all may not exceed our land) and that the Bank, the Cashier information in truth. Packer, that the Democratic party of Penn- | individual deserves public odium, his neighsylvania was composed of unprincipled bors will soon know it, and as a pebble scoundiels men devoid of moral honesty thrown into the bosom of a calm and quiet and integrity, who would prostitute their dake, starts were after wave until they wash conscience at the shrine of party politics in the shore, so the condemnation that his a word, that the triends of Gen. Packer neighbors justly pronounce will extend thro' were the rabble of creation, fit for nothing, his entire circle of acquaintances. Our evil but "treason, stratagem and spoils". This acts need no trumpet tongue to proclaim we have no doubt would be the conclusion. I them-they travel with the speed of the wind, at which such a person would arrive.

But the people of Pennsylvania have observed the conduct of the Republicans during the recent political campaign, and who nity are not desirous of having their menhave stood amazed at the perfidy of a set of men, who profess to be the exclusive monopolists all that is good and virtuous. will form quite a different conclusion. They will discover, upon a close examination that Black Republican Know-Nothingism is not so pure and unsophisticated as it might be and that some of its advocates are not just so honest as they would wish them to beheve they are.

To see a set of meb. destitute of every thing like political honesty who have relied upon low, paltry tricks and underhand ed work, to elect their candidates, suddenly transform themselves into beings spotless with having committed acts of fraud and willany, which it is notorious they themselves committed, can only be equalled in the extent of its hypocrasy by the sooty occupant of the realins of Pluto appearing a with vituperation and slang is a disgrace mong men, as the advocate of godliness and the sworn enemy of sin and unrightcousness.

Based on the eternal principles of justice Democracy resorts not to fraud and corruption to secure her triumph over her enemies she relies implicitly on the virtue and intelli gence of the people-they are the arbiters of her fate. TRUTH is inscribed upon, her ry strife, we hope every good man will cease glorious banner, and underneath, "by that to be our patron, and we trust we have sign shall you conquer."

The acts of fraud and villany, practised by the leaders of their own party, when ex posed to public view, will make the bluxh of shame mantle on their cheeks, and strike terror into their guilty consciences.

What the Election has Decided.

Upon reflecting on the result of the late election, the query, what has been decided built! presented itself to our minds as worthy of an answer at this time. We will give that answer according to the best of our

During the campaign that has just termisated with such glorious results to the riends of the Union, we have been deeply mpressed with the impropriety of personalties in the columns of a public Journal. While a fair, calm and candid discussion of he principles that divide political parties is he legitimate duty of partizan papers, and tain it, but disgusting to every man of intelligence and propriety, highly derogatory to the character of its editors. He then offered to take a than to convince the electors of this Commonwealth that under their admirable Government machinery, men can rob and plunder without being detected, or that as angels, and charge the Democratic party legal punishment will not follow the crimes of the high as well as the low, under our equal system of Laws.

An honorable high toned namer is a benefit to young and old, while one that teems and a curse to any community. To preserve the dignity, integrity and purity of our public press is for the people to perform, by directing their patronage in a channel that recting their patronage in a channel that and transact his business without hindrance, will accomplish the desired result. The result of the Ohio election is yet undecided. The returns in the Black-Repubhean papers give ('hase 1,900 majority for Jovernor while the Democratic figures make Payne 800 shead. Dorrespondence.

Рицарицина, Ост. 24, 1867. · Massau Kortos :- Having a few leisure momenta I address you a short letter from the "City of Brotherly Love," a name more honored in the breach than in the observance, particularly, in these panic times .-In the test place, the result of the election is so much one-sided that people do not think it worth talking about-indeed, the result in the old "city proper" astonished the Democrate themselves as much as anybody else. Never was a greater triumph achieved by any political party. Unly think of the "City of Penn" endorsing the Democracy and honesty of old Lycoming's respected son with 17,000 majority. In a previous letter did not your correspondent Typo," pledge the city for 15.000 majori. ty, and has that pledge not been redeemed ? You certainly will not call him a bad prophet now, will you? "Typo" being the first Philadelphian to urge the nomination of the General, must assure you that he feels considerable gratification at the result. The General, should Providence spare his valuable life, will have a hard time to surmount the many difficulties which will attend him, owing to the embarrassments all around us; but I trust that a kind Providence will guide him and nerve his arm so that he may be enabled to steer the ship of State clear of the breakers which are now threatening on all sides, and render his administration one which may be looked back to years hence, with feelings of gratification and honor by those who placed him in his seat of power.

The panic caused by the stoppage of all our Bunks and a large majority of those throughout the several States, still continues. The gloom seems to thicken day by day, and confidence appears to be pretty well used up. It is about the worst " panic" this country has ever experienced. The Relief" granted by the Legislature has postponed the final crash for a few months longer. It seems to be a foolish act to logalize the suspension of specie without giving us something to take the place of the ' hard stuff'' The consequence of the act will be to flood our State with the trashy small notes of other States. Now had we not better have been cursed with the "small notes" of our own State, than be the recipibors ? I for one think we had. There does not seem to be any prospect of a better state of affairs until our Banking system is thoroughly remodeled. No Bank should be chartered unless the President, Directors and Stockholders are made individually respionsible, and good stocky and real estate deposited at Harrisburg, dollar for dollar, for the redemption of their notes. This would make the Banks keep to their legitimato business, and not lend nearly their whole capital to one or two " net" speculators. who perchance may be related to the President, for the purpose of running up proxisions to almost famine prices. So long as this

Our city has had the usual number of fires, robberies, and other kindred " complaints" meident to a large "village." The most curious case of robbery has but come to light, the particulars of which are as follows

It seems that Mr. Ashmead, druggist, Market street, aboye Sixth, yesterday morn ing missed from the fourth story of his store a barrel of crushed sugar from which the hend had been removed, and a small portion of the contents had been used. The sugar was gone, but where it wept to was a mystory which no person in the store could fathom. In this dilemma, Special Officer, George D. Callanan was sent for, and upon making a careful examinati ni he discovered indications that a plank had been laid across from the window, and the angle of these scratches proved that the other and of the plank had ested upon a window or stairway of a house on Sixth atreet, above Market. , Mr. Callanan, accompanied by Mr Ashmead, proceeded to the building on Sixth

It seems that Kloenily, who is a single man, slept and sat at his workshop with the two boys.
