A Visit to the Lunatic Asylum—A True Story.
We were a merry party who started, one pleasant morning last Summer, to investigate (if permitted) some of the mysteries of the Insane Asylum of... Fortunately we could claim friendship with Dr. B., the head of the establishment, and he was willing to give us all the information in his power. At first I was surprised at being introduced to a number of ladies, who, neatly dressed and apparently perfectly sane, were seated in the parlor, sewing or reading. A few moments' conversation unobtrusively as to their insanity. One of them, however, completely puzzled me. She was young, apparently about twenty-five years of age, and very lovely. Her hair was clustered in very short curls round a broad, white forehead; her features were delicate and regular, and her eyes large, and of a deep blue. There was a shadow of melancholy over all, that marred the beauty of the face while it increased the interest one involuntarily felt to know her history. She arose as Dr. B. introduced me, and then made room for me beside her on the sofa. We soon became interested in talking; the subjects were varied, music and literature being the favorites. Though her face was so sad, she conversed with ease and intelligence, and I was soon wondering how she came to be in an insane hospital.

Walking Indicative of Character.
Towler says:—A short and quick step indicates a brisk and active, but rather contracted mind, whereas those who take long steps generally have long heads. Those who shuffle or draw their heels, drag and draw in every thing; while those who walk a spring, bounding step, abound in a mental snap and spring. Those whose feet are muffled, affected and artificial, rarely, if ever, accomplish much; whereas those who walk carefully, that is naturally, are just what they appear to be, and put on nothing for outside show. Those who in walking, roll from side to side, lack directness of character, and side every way according to circumstances. In short, every individual has his own peculiar mode of moving, which exactly corresponds with his mental character; so that so far as you can see modes, you can decipher such outline of character.

CONVENTION OF GIRLS.
A convention of some four hundred or five hundred girls was assembled at Dayton, Ohio, during the holidays. The Journal, noticing the presence of a large number, then already on the ground, says:—These girls do curious things besides telling fortunes and painting horses. Some twenty or thirty of both sexes were at the Metropolitan the other day, and the women of the party invited the men to drink, which invitation was accepted and the whole party gathered at the counter and drank together. The women paid for the liquor. A short time afterwards the men returned the compliment, and treated the women, and they continued thus doing the polite to each other, till the whole party had drunk a half a dozen each.

W. F. PACKER.
We learn from the Kingston (Vt.) News that a woman in man's attire committed suicide by poisoning herself at M. Hays' Hotel, St. Mary's, Tuesday evening last. She had been arrested for horse-stealing. Soon after her arrest she was observed to put a handkerchief to her face—for the purpose, it was thought at the time, of hiding her emotion, but really for the purpose of swallowing a portion of her well-kept and doctored forth which she had prepared, and concealed for that or some other purpose in a vial in the house. She was instantly seized with spasms and a physician was immediately sent for. He arrived in half an hour but the woman soon expired. Her name was Margaret Cook, and she is said to have been respectfully connected in the town of Woodstock, where some of her friends reside.

WELL, BOB, HOW ARE YOU?
"Why, I've been troubled a great deal with the rheumatism lately."
"And how is your wife?"
"She's very rheumatic, too."
"And how is little Dickie?"
"I think he got a touch of the family complaint; I think he is a little rheumatic, too."
"Dear me, well I will call upon you in a day or two, and see how you are; where do you lodge?"
"I am almost ashamed to ask you to our lodgings; for that reason, I am not at home."
"Mostly a most interesting lady, desiring a leg of chicken, at the table, said:—'I'll take the part that ought to be dressed in drawers.'"
A young gentleman opposite, immediately said:—'I'll take that part which ought to wear the bustle!'
