The subscriber would take this opportunity of returning his grateful acknowledgement to his friends and the public for past favors. He would also say that in view of the financial difficulties pervading every branch of trade, he has been under the necessity of commencing a fewer-rangement, which he hopes will be satisfactory to his customers. From the first of Jandary he has entered upon a system of making all accounts contracted due after a credit of four motifus. Those knowing themselves indebted to him, in the Boot and Shue bisiness, will call and make immediate sattlement, as his cid books up to the first inst have boen closed for this repectal purpose, and he is desirous to have them settled without delay.
