The Kansas Election

The election ordered by Congress to take place in Kansas on the ordinance submitted by the English bill, says the Patriot and Union, has been fixed for the first Monday As to the abuse that is heaped upon Allif in August next. The question to be decided on White, we look for nothing better. He by the people is whether they will come insuccessful a supporter of the old fashioned tution, amendable at their pleasure, or rethe viliflers of the glorious old party that, much from the anarchy, confusion, outrages unquestionably be to assume the position of therefor the order, method and prosperity which characterizes the other young and cessful. growing western Commonwealths. And when, in addition to their own immediate of a State would remove a distracting subevery consideration, immediate and patriot:

> But the question belongs exclusively to the residents of Kansas. They should be allowed, without molestation or interference to decide it for themselves: If they prefer o come at once suto the Union, no fault can be found with that decision If they prefer postponing that event until a future The revolt bas deeper root than was imagtime, they are at liberty to do so. As far as the Democratic party is concerned, their action has been been as the median. English bill proposes a bribe to induce the that the Montgomery or the Crittenden substitutes which were supported by the Ops nearly adentical to all these measures. If a bribe is contained in the one adopted, it is equally contained in all flf the people of Kansas are uninfluenced by a patriotic de sire to bring order and peace out of confusion; if they do not wish the reign of anarchy to give place to the reign of law; if they renam obstinately wedded to assassination and plunder, as much to be preferred to the order which would follow the establishment of a competent State government, and if The Killing of Jenkins, of Lawrence, by the se manifold considerations are not enough nance is a consideration far more powerful, and by it and through its influence alone, they are induced to accept the Lecompton follows Constitution, in that case the people of Kansas would prove themselves a sorded band of knaves not fit to become American citiens.
