Keep at Work

If you stand and thumb its base,

Does a mountain on you frown Keep at work ; You may undermine it yet;

Sorry bruises you may get, Keep at work Does Miss Fortune's face look sour Keep at work , Shamay smile again some day ; If you pull your hair and fret, Rest assured she'll have her way,

Keep at work. Are you censured by your friends

Keep at work Whether they are wrong or right, May be you must bide your time If for victory you fight,

If the devil growls at you, Keen at work . That's the best way to resist, If you held an argument,

You may feel his iron fist,

Keep at work Are your talents vilified? Keep at work. Greater men than you are hated, It you're right, then go ahead-

Grit will be appreciated. Keep at work Everything is done by labor

Miscellaneons. The Red and White Mothers

BY BUCK HOEN

During the spring of 1846 on a beautiful afternoon in March, in the well wooded re gion which borders the Winnebago Lake on the North, a rustic pioneer, in a merry mood in the sunshing of life, might have been seen tripping from tree to tree gathering the saccharine sap from the luxurian maples which abound in that locality, and carrying it in pails, to a large iron kettle, sespended over a cheerful log fire, where it vas undergoing the process of evaporation. to be reduced finally to molasses and sugar This young man had congrated from the State of Maine, the year previous to this, in company with his wife and an infant boy, and being fascinated by the incomparable attractions of the country surrounding the lake, resolved to settle there, which he did and in the course of a year had succeeded in collecting about his farm many of the indispensables of life.

The little log cottage stood on the edge of dense forest, fronting the Winnebago Lake whose placid waters might be seen through a cluster of maple trees, which hard its settlers, in consequence of which the young and relieve them from the harassing associcouple were deprived of many of the com- ations which clung around them ther: forts of life, and sought within their family In their journey in search of a new home. #### Woman's Love.

Much has been written about woman' love, but we doubt if that "glory of a woman" was ever so forcibly expressed in a few words as in the following stanzas, which we take from an English paper .-

Come from your long, long roving, v. On the sea so wild and rough, Come to me tender and loving, And I shall be blest enough

Of men though you be unforgiven, Though priest be unable to shr I'll pray till I weary all Heaven, If only you come back alrve

The Value of a Wit.

A wit is a priceless man for a communi ty : not scandal-monger, a heel biter, a de tractor, a cyme, whose own happiness in life being spoilt is bent upon making others miserable, but a gental, benevolent reformer, a wholesome and winning though caustic surveyor of events. People breathe more freely when they know there is such a man in the ascendant : for wicked men will be afraid of him, weak men will strive to be
