Select Poetry. Ten Yeals Ago. BT GLORGE D PRENTICE 1. -

Ten years sgo my heart beat high With noble aims and manly pride And hope and love, and youthful joy, Bright seeming 'round my path did glide, But now that heart to sorrow's bound.

Its pride is humbled to the ground And all its hopes and loves are riven Like flowers before the tempest drive 11

Ten years ago yon queenly girl Was but a child, a prattling thing, With sunshine in each golden curl. As blithely she did romp and sing Now she possesses overy grace -The rounded form, the faultless face

With every charm the eye to bless, A creature all of loveliness 111 Ten years ago I knew a flower. A maiden pure as angels bright, And proudly owned her winning power To wake my soul to love and light

But now, alas ' I may not see That flower that was so dear to me But I must languish still, in pain, Nor hope we e'er may moet again Till freed from earth our souls shall rise To worlds of rest beyond the skies
