If a mer chant would have around him substantial customers, let him, by every means in his power, support and foster the mechanics of his vicinity, and, as they become more wealthy, their custome will increase, especially in those articles on which he makes the greatest profit. The habit of importing large quantities of cheap and half-made arti cles, to compete with our own mechanics, is short-sighted and wrong both as regards the mechanic and consumer, and if the merchant would look further into the operation of things, he would find that he crossed the path of his own interest by doing so Let the merchant bring the case to his own door, and he, perhaps, may better understand it. Suppose that every individual who possesses the means, and who uses in his family four or five hundred dollars worth of goods per annum, chould, instead of buying of him at retail, go to some wholesale establishment, and purchase his year's supply would be not in bitterness, coale no such an illiberal course, and would be not say to him, with truth, that he was warring equiest his own interest, by destroying the business of the vicinity and giving it to an other and that his littleness would react man him is doublefuld by the decrease of the same to the mercha it. Teachers' Institute. On last Saturday morning, 22nd inst., ful sceneries, which present themselves gle trial of these flitters will satisfy the sufferer along the rustling stream that glides through your town. After having slowly stepped along for several miles, I came to a country school-house, where I noticed some people had gathered. Anxious to know who they were, and what the object of their meeting was, I entered the door, and to my joy, J & J Harris Bellefonto, Foster J Gephart Mil found a number of teachers from Spring and beam Gross & Yearisk, Aarousburg, Shem Spigel-Benner townships, assembled to hold a light from the property of the state of Teachers' Institute. When the appointed hour for business arrived, the President of the association took his chair, and the exercises of the meeting commenced. The first topic for discussion was Orthog-raphy. One of the teachers read a very worthy esaay on the subject, and was folworthy essay on the subject, and was followed by further discussion from others, present, all evincing by their elucidations, both of Liberty two this County. that, they were not only masters of the art, On the 28th ult, in Milesburg, by Rev.
