BELLEFONTE, FEBRUARY 10, 1859. LOCAL AND PERSONAL

ENCOURAGE YOUR OWN MECHANICS. - The disposition cannot be too much rebuked let it exist in any town it may, to send to distant places for products, which could be equally well furnished by the mechanics in their own town. No one thing can be more positively injurious to the real interests of any town, than to go over the heads of its mechanics, and buy elsewhere.

It takes out of the place money which justly belongs at home. It discourages and drives away mechanics. It prevents them from advancing in prosperity, so as to add to the success'of their own town.

There are people who think that no artidiscourage its citizens. Every real friend to Boal, Esq. the place in which he lives should do all he it renders him a man of the ton, by such an act of injustice to his fellow citizens.

The next thing is to pay the mechanic. The rich man who employs a mechanic does not always know how much inconvenience, loss of time and expense he exposes them er, he was kind and affectionate - bis attachto by neglecting to pay an undisputing bill on presentation Without going to odeep into the subject, let us propose a very sunple example of constant occurrence. A mechanic undertakes a job, for which his honest charge is fifty dollars. It is done to the satisfactson of his employer. He expects should be not receive it ? He has no bank credit, he pays cash for labor. He has the Court and ther. been employed a week on that job with two iourneymen, besides furnishing the material, paying shop rent and other expensive contingencies. Why should be be asked to wait six months or a year for his money ! -He must pay his hands when called on, proside for his family pay for his stock, and pay up something against rent days. Is it reasonable -is it just, that his ready em- they have sustained. ployer should ask him to wait for his pay until his convenient time? We ask is it righteous, is it just that a man of supposed wealth should do this, and leave the honest and hard working mechanic to the mercy of small creditors, the importunities of journeymen, and the rapacity of usurious extormoners ! Certainly not EXCELLENT ADVICE The Rev Daniel Waldo, late Chaplain to Congress, says: "I am now an old man. I have seen nearly grow old slowly and happily ! Let me tell you Always eat slowly - masticate well Go to your food, to your rest, to your occupations similing. Keep'a good nature and only the degant and becoming styles of clothing got up by Wm McGellan.

The weather is as fickle and coquetish as the "fairer sex" themselves. One day we have the "gemal balmy breeze of spring," and the next comes the "howling blast of winter." It is impossible to predict " with any kind of certainty "one day what the weather will be the next.
