BANK, " - The Auburn Placer county Herald relates that a Chinaman want into the banking house of Wells, Fargo & Co., at that place, one day last week, when the clerk in attendance had occasion to go into the vault, but kept an eye to the banking room at the same time. On looking round he saw a piece of money moving off of a tray, and heating a piece fall on the floor, he walked out, and going to the front of the counter ollared the Chinaman, who was carelessly looking arrend apparently unconscious that anything had occurred. On examining him it appeared that he carried a long cane pipe, upon the bowl of which he had stuck some wax, and standing at the counter with it, had no difficulty in reaching the waxed end to where the money lay, and applying it to the surface of a double cagle, was "snaking" it home, but the wax did not stick tightly enough, and the money fell to the floor, and the trick was exposed.
