The Same Old Story.

Come sit by me Katy, and tell me Of what he was talking last night, When you stood at the gate 'till the mod Had quenched all the stars with their light

You came back with checks glowing crimson. And eyelashes glittering with tears, And a smile which, half sad, half triumphan Still over your sweet mouth appears

Did he talk of the beauty of summer; Or praise the wi'd rose's perfume Or speak of our arbors so rustic. Where woodhine and jessamine bloom

"He told you a story !" Oh ' did he? Well Katy dear, tell it to me How very much flattered he'd be'

You say that you "affink I may guess it " Yes, Katy, the story I know Tis an old tale yet always a sweet one; I'm certain that you found it so

Twas now in the first days of Adam? When, wandering through Eden's fair bower In Ere's little ear it was whispered.
While, blushing, she played with the flowers

You are blushing too, what is the matter? Why, what are you crying about Your grandfather told your grandmother The very same story, no doubt Just three little words tell the story -

What thousands of hearts they have thrilled How many with joy they have gladdened ' How many with sorrow have filled ' The little words are that ' I Love you

Beneath the bright moon's silvery voil Don't say I know nothing about it -You know very well it is true But Katy, my dear did you tell him The same story that he told you
