J S BARNHART, EDITOR

BELLEFONTE, PENN'A

THURSDAY, MARCH 7, 1861

A Parting Word. With the last number of the Democratic Watchman, my connection with it ceased having disposed of my interest to my partner, J. S. BARNHART, Lsq., by whom it will be conducted In retiring, the relation in which I have been associated with the public diffing the past four years, is dissolved; and it may be dug to state, that the period since I first exlended salutations to the patrons of the Watchman bas closely united us as friends. and that I shall ever bear in full rem in-Trance those with whom I have hid weekly converse. In my retirement I will oberish a grateful recollection for KACH and ALL' and recurs to the period of that relation with bleasure and satisfaction

In parting with Mr. BARNRAUT I do se with regret. It would have been more agree able to me if our business had just hed us as remaining together in the publication of the Watchman, but when I inform the read or that we have sexural thousand dollars on our books unmaid, the readsory will at once be seen for a dissolution.

In conclusion, permit in to state, that the Hatchman will not be suffered to flyg man terest, but that the present praprietor, from his experience in the business, and having ample ability, and knowing his attachment to Democratic principles, will labor zealous . ly to promote the interest of his readers.
