The hecessity of wise conservative measures on the part of the Federal Government been so imperative as the present. In my humble judgement all depends upon it, and without it the restoration of the Union is an utter impossibility. We have now reached a crisis when the policy and purposes of the warshould be distinctly avowed, and every disturbing influence completely removed. real difficulty in restoring the government and the Union is not the want of mere physical power; it is the want of enlightened and conservative statesmanship. I hesitate the plea of paramount military necessity is as and mistake. The great necessity in this war for the preservation of the government is the distinct, unqualified, and practical results that the remain on the Konstitution is the stinct, unqualified, and practical results and the remain on the States can be effected and the Constitution of the fact that the Constitution is the supreme law of the land.

The fault is pnot in the Constitution is the tentucky have already said that a venerable instrument was intended to control the policy of the Government in any and all emergencies. And in view of the only legitimate purpose of the war in which we are now engaged, it is the solemn duty of those in power to preserve it inviolate in letter and in spirit. The slightest infraction of tunder any pretext is the evidence of weakness and of cowardice. It is the deep and unalterable attachment of the people to the Constitution, and to the precious and inestimable rights secured by it, that alone gives viger and imparts dignity and value to the present struzelle.

The fault is pnot in the Constitution of the sword is not worth preserving. It all extreme and rand those having been granted to the subscriber, those knowing themselves and the bubscriber, those knowing themselves and the subscriber. The subjects to the Constitution of the sword is not worth preserving. It may judgment the fate of the Union depends upon the active counsels preval, it fall extreme and rand to see having been granted to the subscriber, the subscriber and in spirit. estimable rights secured by it, that alone gives viger and imparts dignity and value to the present struggle.

You are right, therefore, in holding the Administration to the wise and just policy as declared by the resolutions in Congress, to which I have referred. To abandon that policy now, or even to awaken a doubt upon the subject, is cruel injustice to the American people. It weakens the faith and unnerves the arm of the loyal citizen. It gives color to the vile pretexts resorted to by wicked traitors "to fire the Southern heart." I doubt not that the radical measures now pending in Congress, involving the confiscation and emancipation of the slawes of the South, with the tremendous and fearful consequences likely to result from their adoption, constitute the principle and the only formidable barriers to a returning sense of loyalty and of patrictism. This confiscation policy is as impolitio as it is unconstitutional. It finds no warrant in the spirit of the Constitution, and can have no other effect than to alieniate the two sections and to render a restoration of the Union forever impossible. Our public men must learn that there is another and higher object to attain that the mere punishment of traitors. Such a course may serve to gratify the spirit of vengeance, but it is unworthy of that holy cause which can only be subserved by the exercise of justice and magnanimity.

All this may be accomplished and yet the end not be attained. Whilst it is true the active hoatility of the rebels must be suppressed by military force, it is not the less true that a complete and final restoration of the Government can be effected, only by the exercise of patience and forbearance.

We invite attention to the wise and impressive letter we publish to-day over the signature of "W.F.B." Our home readers will at once recognise in this signature the initials of a gentleman who is not merely a citizen of the noblest repute, but one of the clearest patroits and one of the soundest statesmen in the Commonwealth. The letter is judicious, pertinent, loyal, high-toned and able. It is such a letter as benefits an American patriot and statesman in this solemn crisis of the nation. We trust nobody will omit to read it.
