I also make known, that all appointments of Policemen, who may be proprietors of, or in anywise interested in, drinking saloons, the same be and are hereby revoked and annulled.

I further make known that I will inflict the severest penalty the laws prescribe upon any citizen who shall refuse, when called upon, to assist any officer in the prompt arrest of offenders of the laws of this Borough.

Given under my hand this fourth day of June A. D. 1862. J. G. KURTZ, Chief Burgess of Bellefonte.

Confession of a Republican. I voted for Lincoln. That's so. I carried a lamp sixteen nights, and wore out as many as two capes.

I voted for Lincoln to make times good. The leaders told us that times would be better than ever if Lincoln were elected.

I am not a rich man; I was not able to give land to my sons; but I wanted each to have a farm.

After Lincoln was elected, and the fuss fairly begun, I wanted the Crittenden compromise adopted.

Then they told me that the South was on the "gassing," and that we could not kick her out of the Union.

That all the secession there was only a paper secession, and would come to nothing.

Thus I was deceived, and led from one terrible mistake to another.

Things have turned out just as I thought. I would have been much better for me and for the country if I, and all of us, had been Democrats.

THE GREAT BATTLE OF ARMAGEDDON. The Southern journals seem to think the end of the world, the end of the world, the end of the world.

ARMAGEDDON. The Mobile Register devotes nearly a column to the "discovery" made several years ago, by Prof Baldwin, of the South Female College.

The "discovery" was to take place between '62 and '65, in the Valley of the Mississippi.

The lapse of six years' between the promulgation of the prophecy and the prospective fulfillment of the prophecy is regarded by the Register as a significant circumstance.

It may be, but we are sure of one thing, and that is, that we are sure of one thing, and that is, that we are sure of one thing.

The attention of our readers is directed to an advertisement in another column, headed "Timber Leave for Sale."

The ASSASSINATION OF GEN. BUTLER. A "Southern heart" of the editor of the Jackson Mississippi has been fired by the order of Gen. Butler.

From Gen. McClellan's Army. ADDRESS OF GEN. McCLELLAN TO HIS TROOPS. Headquarters Gen. McClellan's Army, Tuesday Evening, June 3.

The following address was read to the army this evening at dress parade, and received with an outburst of vociferous cheering from every regiment.

Camp Near New Bridge, June 3, 1862. Soldiers of the Army of the Potomac:

I have fulfilled at least part of my promise to you. You are now face to face with the rebels who are held at bay in front of the capital.

The final and decisive battle is at hand. Unless you believe your past history, the result will be a momentary doubt.

The events of every day prove your superiority. Wherever you have met the enemy you have beaten him.

From Gen. Halleck's Army. CORINTH, June 5. Gen. Halleck moved his headquarters 'to this place to-day, occupying the house formerly occupied by Gen. Bragg.

Gen. Thomas occupies the house formerly in possession of Beauregard. The enemy are reported to be 80,000 strong between Baldwin and Okolona.

At the last accounts, Gen. Pope's advance was this side of Twenty Mile creek, and the enemy's rear guard on the south side, still retreating.

An Englishman, who was an officer in the rebel army, and has deserted, says that a Confederate officer, high in position, told him that they left here 120,000 strong, but when they arrived at Booneville 50,000 had deserted.

The Journal of Commerce notices the proceedings of a meeting of Abolitionists held in the State of New York in 1859, at which the following of a series of fierce, anti-slavery and anti-American resolutions were adopted unanimously.
