[From the Crisis.] Freemen, arise, if still one drop Of patriotic blood flows in your veins

If still one spark of freedom's fire, Upon your altars yet remain. Will ye stand tamely by and see Your brothers wear a tyrant's chain ? If such things in our land may be Then have our fathers died in vaim ?

Ales ! for freedom, if her sons, Must linger in a felon's cell, For daring to assert the rights, For which our fathers fought and fell. And have they taught out Eagle's wings To sweep thro heavn's hoad arch in vain Before some mighty power to bring Those heroes from their graves again ?

How would each traitor's spirit grieve, How would each coward's eye grow din It echoing on the sudden gale, There came the living voice of him Whose banner waved o'er Bunker's height Whose voice rang free on Monmouths plain O ! that his spirit, power and might, Might guide our nation's belm again.

Is this the noble Old's reward. Is this the garden of the free, Long months of weary silent toil, A:life of hopeless slavery ? Beneath our country's flag of light. It such must be the patriot's doom, Blot out each star of glory bright, And chain her Esgle to the tomb.

If from the Democrat's fair ranks. Her noblest sons must thus be torn Soon shall the last despairing crv. Of freedom on the winds be borne. And we shall see a despot's flag, Waving above our father's bones And need a revolution's fire, To purify our fallen thrones.
