

The Watchman.

The Government and the Negroes.

The questions of the largely increasing numbers of the contrabands now entirely dependent upon the United States government for support is becoming a rather perplexing one. In New Orleans alone, and along the borders of the Mississippi now in the hands of the federal government, there are probably as many negroes as Union soldiers—mounting necessarily to several thousand.

This is the more anomalous from the fact that, while we are spending such large sums of money to support the slaves who escape from their masters, our infantry soldiers, who are fighting our battles, are left unpaid month after month. The government is largely in arrears with the army, and the pay of the soldiers, long due, cannot be less than from fifty to sixty millions of dollars.

Now, what will the voting population of the free States think of? We think that if we were to have general elections all through the loyal States—like the elections of last November—the radicals who sanction these proceedings would be thoroughly overthrown.

A HAPPY WOMAN.—Is she not the very sparkle and sunshine of life? A woman who is happy because she can't help it—whose smiles even the coldest sprinkle of misfortune cannot dampen.—Men make a terrible mistake when they marry for beauty, for talents or style.

Take care of your neighbors; don't let them stir without watching—they may do wrong if you do. To be sure, you never knew them to be anything very bad, but it may be on your account they have not—perhaps if it had not been for your kind of care, they might have disgraced themselves a long time ago.

Young ladies are like arrows—they are all in a quiver till they bea come, and can't go off without them. What do sailors do with the notes the ship makes in the day. Find out?

General Banks, it is said, finding the conciliatory policy producing bad results, is now enforcing all the hitherto considered obnoxious orders of General Butler.

Wanted, by an attorney, a clerk to engross others people's attention. If sleep flies from your face and features, loves not her true self, but her soul's old clothes.

MISTAKES.

The editor of the Star of the West furnishes the following modest attempt at correcting rather wide spread mistakes. It is a mistake to suppose that the subscription price of a paper is clear gain to the publisher.

It is a mistake to suppose that he gets his white paper for nothing. It is a mistake to suppose that he can live bodily by faith. It is a mistake to suppose that it is easy to please everybody.

It is a mistake to suppose that money due for the paper would be just as good to us in a year as it would be now. It is a mistake to suppose that he would not be thankful for what is due him and for new subscribers.

HAZEL-EYED GIRLS.—Maj. Noah said a hazel eye inspires at first sight a Platonic sentiment, as securely founded as the rock of Gibraltar. A woman with a hazel eye never elopes from her husband, never chafes scandal, never sacrifices her husband's comfort to her own, never talks too much or too little—always is an intellectual, agreeable and lovely creature.

We never knew, says a brother editor, of but one hazel-eyed woman who was uninteresting and unamiable, and she had a nose that looked, as you Yankees say, like the little end of nothing whittled down to a point. The gray is a sign of shrewdness and talent. Great thinkers and captains have it. It indicates a better head than heart.

A RIDE OVER THE BATTLE FIELD.—A letter from Murfreesboro says: "Last night I rode over the battlefield. It was my first experience—would that I could say it will be my last.—Here our party came to the first dead rebel upon the margin of the field. His face was covered with the flap of his overcoat.

It is raining now, and has rained nearly all night. Dead horses, scattered harness, broken wagons, the ground strewn in places with cartridge-boxes and soldiers' clothing, on every hand. It seemed strange, indeed, to see our soldiers camped upon these very fields of strife, their fires burning and their rude break fasts being discussed within a few yards of where lay a dead rebel, his eyes open and glaring, his features white and ghastly, and his feet bare and shrivelled, his hair matted with mud and a pool of blood and water beneath him around him.

He who openly tells his friends all that he thinks of them, may expect that they will secretly tell his enemies much they don't think of them. The editor of the Alta California has been presented with a sack of potatoes containing three only, each weighing twenty pounds. Life is a racket not precious in itself but valuable in portion to what fortune, or industry, or virtue has placed within it. He who loves a lady's complexion from dust and features, loves not her true self, but her soul's old clothes.

A Bully Fellow.

By PUMP BUNKINS, ESQ. I've just come out to sing a song, A song which is all truth, sir; And should I make a slight mistake, You must know I'm but a youth, sir; Sternberg's a bully fellow!

He keeps a clothing store up town, Who loves to please the folks, sir; Who's always in a happy mood, And gets a bully fellow, Sternberg's a bully fellow!

He scrapes and bows and bows and scrapes, And smiles all over his face, sir; I vote I think I never saw A man of so much grace, sir; Sternberg's a bully fellow!

You ask to see some of the goods That on his shelves do shine, sir; I hope you'll see a better lot Than any you can find to choose, Sternberg's a bully fellow!

He shows you all his coats and vests, And pants of every style, sir; So neat and trim, so fair to view, You can't leave him a bully fellow! Sternberg's a bully fellow!

And then he takes you round his store, And puts upon your hand, sir; A bully hat, and makes you look Like one about to wed, sir; Sternberg's a bully fellow!

In short, you're bound to be pleased With all his goods and things, sir; You'll buy at once a brand new suit, Cost what it will, by jing, sir; Sternberg's a bully fellow!

In fact, so well I know the man, I venture for to say, sir; A better fellow you've not seen This many a long day, sir; Sternberg's a bully fellow!

And now to see this famous man, I hope you all will go, sir; And if you're questioned why—just say "Pump Bunkins told you so, sir; Sternberg's a bully fellow!"

I fear and glad and splendid assortment of Fall and Winter Clothing just received and for sale by BELLEFONTE, Oct. 31st, 1862.
