

The Watchman

Dead Heading.

Speaking of "dead heads" the editor of the Louisville Journal says: "Railroads, steamboats, and stage coaches compaign of dead heading—that is, to say, of preachers, editors and brethren, of the craft, riding so much without pay. The newspaper press endures more of this dead heading than any three of those modes of conveyance combined. The pulpits of the bar and the theatre, societies, religious benevolent, agricultural, mercantile establishments, vendors of quick medicines, railroads, stage lines and every variety of individuals, including political parties, draw largely upon the liberality of the press. The press is expected to yield to all these interests; it is required to give strength to all weak institutions and enterprises, it is asked to puff small politicians and unprincipled demagogues into great men and patriots; to magnify the impotent railroad officers into railroad kings, it is expected to herald abroad the fame of quacks of all classes, bolster up dull authors, and immortalize weak Congressional speeches. It is required to give sight to the blind, bread to the hungry, talent to the fools, and honor to the thieves and robbers; it is asked to cover up the infirmities of the weak, to hide the faults of guilty men, and wink at the fraudulent schemes of scoundrels; it is expected to flatter the vain, and to describe nothing but the sordid and contempt of all good citizens; it is required, in a word, of the newspaper press, that it become all things to all men; and if it looks for pay, or sends out its bills for subscription or advertising it is denominated as mean and sordid, and its conductors as wanting in liberality. There is no interest on the face of this green earth that is expected to give as much to society without pay or thanks as the newspaper press of the country. The little souled man, who inserts in your columns a fifteen shilling advertisement expects you at least to write out five dollars, worth of editorial notices.—And the obscure niggardly man you have written into a position of importance, far beyond his merits, considers that his name adorns your columns, and gives circulation to your journal.

My Bretherin—We will send these scoundrel democrats to Fort Lafayette, confiscate their estates to pay our debts, a-h for the text says: "But it is easier to pay a large sum than it is a larger one, and it is easier to pay any sum when we are able, than it is to pay before we are able, a-h.

LOYAL LEAGUES.—A Loyal National League was formed lately at Orange, New Jersey, under two printed sections, one declaring who were members, and the other pledging them to an unconditional loyalty. To these the following section was added:

"It is hereby understood and agreed among the citizens signing this constitution that we do not in any manner pledge ourselves to any course of united political action, but that each member is left free to act, in all elections, in accordance with his political preferences—our only object in this organization being to unite to support the National Government in its efforts to suppress the rebellion now waged against its authority by a portion of the people of the Union, and not to organize or create a political party—it being the purpose of the members of the League to dissolve when the objects for which it was created have been accomplished.

This addition would seem to be entirely proper if these Leagues are to be used for patriotic rather than partisan purposes; but we observe that the New York Evening Post considers that the acute and conscientious gentleman who moved this amendment has sought to "neutralize the whole affair."

The Abolition organs fail to quote the following extract from JOHN VAN BURON'S war speech. He speaks thus of the Republican party:

"I agree they are unwise, I agree they are stupid. I agree they have united the South, and that they have divided the North. I agree to another thing, and you won't expect me as a Democrat to find fault with that—I agree that they prostrated the Republican party in every non-slaveholding State of this Confederacy and gave the Democrats the ascendancy, and nobody will expect me to find fault with them on that account. New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, became Democratic as the result of them and I am not the man to find fault with that.

They Won't Fight.

The negroes, like the Abolitionists, will not fight. They have no notion of throwing themselves in the way of rebel bullets. In Pittsburg, Harrisburg, and various other places, the Abolitionists have been making herculean efforts to enlist negro regiments in the present war, which dates from Jan. 1, 1863, but so far, have most signally failed. Mr. Lincoln ought to make them fight, by forthwith drafting them that is, if he could get anybody to do the drafting.—We know that some of the "Old Joker's" partisans are at all times ready to draft white men—especially if they can enrich themselves and friends by so doing—but they would not separate families, by drafting Sambo. Ah, no, that would not lacerate their tender and philanthropic hearts. This last Congress provided for negro soldiers, but made no provision to draft them. A negro may go to war or stay at home, just as it suits him; but the white man must be set free at whatever cost we must contribute our money, further this great cause, a-h, and while he is slowly gliding down the stream of time—while our days are fast lengthening out, and our lives are fast ebbing away, we will never see property stare us in the face for this noble act done in fellow citizens, a-h.

My Bretherin—You will find my text in the third epistle of father Abraham to the law makers, and when you find it, it shall read as follows, a-h: "that it is easier to pay a large sum than it is a larger one, and it is easier to pay any sum when we are able than it is to pay it before we are able, a-h."

My Bretherin—How true are the words of our text. Father Abraham knew they were true, a-h; he owes a large sum to the servants he has under him, and he finds it difficult to pay them, but not so difficult as if the sum was larger, a-h. The reason why it is so hard for him to pay is, because he is not able, a-h; for the text says, "but it is easier to pay a large sum than it is a larger one, and it is easier to pay any sum when we are able than it is to pay it before we are able, a-h."

My Bretherin—There is a great work before us; four millions of our race are under the galling bonds of slavery—under the lash of the cruel taskmaster a-h. These slaves, my bretherin must be set free at whatever cost we must contribute our money, further this great cause, a-h, and while he is slowly gliding down the stream of time—while our days are fast lengthening out, and our lives are fast ebbing away, we will never see property stare us in the face for this noble act done in fellow citizens, a-h.

My Bretherin—You will find that the buttrened Secesh Democracy will oppose this scheme of emancipation, for they are possessed of the devil, a-h. Their cry is the Union and the Constitution but my bretherin, we all know that the constitution is a coven-
