Bellefonte January 8th, 1864-tf. A DIALOGUÉ. John .- Hello! Billy, how are you this morn

Billy.—Fine thank you, how are times with you?

J.—Just tollerable: money's plenty, or rathe the paper that is called money now-a-days is plenty, but everything is so intolerably high,— goods of all kinds and overything excepting grain or what things we farners have to sell. grain or what things we farmers have to self, that a bunch of greenbacks go but a little ways in supplying ones wants. But how is it Dilly, that, you always go so nearly dressed, with dothers of such good-quality and such excellent fit, when I know that you do not expend one half as much in the year for clothing as I do, and yet I look like a ragamuffiin, most of the time?

B.-Well John I cant' exactly tell, I'll admit B.—Well John I can't exactly tell, I'l armit that you look bretty rough sometimes, and I know you get a great many cloths, but jethalis you go to the wrong establishment to make your pyrchases—some place where the mortant is light acquainted with the business, and has nothing on band but some "slop shop" stuff, stack on to him by the share or in the city. Now if the Rev. J. Newton Brown, D. D., Edicadmill that me addition on to Stornhere. on to firm by the shart or in the city. Now it you will take my advice and go to Sternbergs, when you want your next-suit, you will know why it is that my clothes fit neatly and are always of a good quality.

J.—But how is it that he can sell clothing
