The Draft and General Fry.

We are daily in receipt of, letters in miring particulars as to the draft, which we are unable to answer, for it is impossuble for any human being to keep pace place, the Conscription laws passed by ibiurdities, that it is impossible to arrive at the meaning of those who framed them. This leaves many questions to be decided by General Fry. and the Reports from the eret of war see dult and made have enveloped the whole affair in prosy, and with the exception of an actuality of labyrinsh which none can understand aftempt of Butler to the the responsibility of Of all the inefficient officials with whom the shoulders of Porter, there is little to Lincoln has surrounded himself, the understand the main features of all write about. A glance at the map will show, that a line of the line of the bend of it, below the mouth of the Clarion, will beset the Oil regions biths 'Clarion River. During the present season, experienced Oil in nand goologists have made a thorough exploration of this river, and have made large investments.

Already the whole river from its mouth to almost its source, has been leased and purchised by Oil men, and wells are being sunk along its whole length with great polity and with finitering prospects of success.

Above and opposite De Witt and Mill Creek Oil Composites, some iten other Companies are horing with engines, one of which struck the first vein of Oil at sixty feet, and another sumedually adjoining struck it at fity-eight feat in the rock.

A short distance above is the colobrated Blysm fun Oil spring, said by all who have seen it to the largest Oil Spring, said by all who have seen it is to be the largest Oil Spring known in the Oil percolates at many places, and in such quantities, and the Oil on the Clarion is of the dark.
