HALF SHEET.-No paper was issued from this office last week, owing to the non-arrival of our printing paper at the of our legislators. There were a numproper time. The heavy rains having ber of good men in that legislature, of tawissa and Williamsport, our paper oaths of office, the interests of their man writes us that it is probable he will constituents, and the general welfare; Philadelphia for paper. In the meantime we have borrowed a couple of bundles from our good brother of the Lock-Havon Democrat, which will last us until we are able to get a supply. We had sheet this week, but circumstances have this may be the last time that we shall the whole, a tolerable good legislature have to crave their indulgence.

Richmond Captured !

The great seige is ended. Richmond, has fallen. The great prize is now in possession of the Federal troops. The Capital City, before whose gates so many thousand lives have been sacrificed, is at last in the hands of its enemy, while its defenders have been compelled to retreat into North Carolina.

General Lee having evacuated both Petersburg and Richmond. the latter city was taken possession of by General Weitzel on the morning of the 4th instant at eight e'clock and fifteen minutes. Lee drew off his army in good order and without panie, and it is supposed he will join General Johnston'in North Carolina. towards whose camp he was supposed to be retreating. Thus after a mighty struggle of four long years, and the loss of hundreds of thousands of men, the Federal power is again established in the proud old city of Richmond. That this event will create a profound sensation throughout the world, morally unfavorable to the confederate cause, is undeniable; but our people must not yet flatter themselves that the war is over. We fear there is much hard fighting yet to be done before the struggle will be finally decided, and we therefore caution them not to be over sanguine, or to expect too great results from the "fall of Richmond." Generals Lee and Johnston are yet in the field with powerful semies, and may still contend, with some show of success, against the power of the government. We say, then, be patient, for the end is not yet.

-The post-office arrangement, by which Mr. Montgomery succeeded to the position left vacant by Mr. Cook, has raised the greatest rumpuss ever known among the republicans of this place. Judge Hale is called all sorts of dirty names by his own party friends, and even Mr. Montgomery himself, although a highly respectable and honorable gen-tleman, is scarcely secure from the bitter reproaches which are expressed in the republican camp. They couldn't have raised a bigger dust if Judge Hale had appointed a democrat to the position, the Girard Mutual Oil Company, in tothreats have even been made tha Mr. Montgomery would not be allowed to hold the office. However, we can asbeen so hungry after that nice little company in this place is Mr. A. B. berth, with its appurtenances, ($1,200 a Hutchison, who can be found at Mr W. year,) that Judge Hale knows the ropes, P. Wilsons law office. grundling! There is probably some truth in the intimation that Stephen F. Will so will not be disposed to intermed dle with Judge Hale's appointments here and at Lock Haven, and we fear our republican friends will not be able to derive much comfort from that source. This fight in the ranks of the "loyal leaguers" is, of course, a family quarrel, and no business of ours; but we may express our honest conviction and say that while we very greatly regret the removal of Captain Cook, we couldn't have been better suited in his successor than by Mr. Montgomery. "Win" has the ability to make a good and contained and more and at Lock I and no business of ours; but we may express our honest conviction and say that while we very greatly regret the removal of Captain Cook, we couldn't have been better suited in his successor than by Mr. Montgomery. #### Our Legislature.

Having, in our last issue, indulged in ome strictures upon the legislature, which adjourned on the 24th ultimo, and being willing, and even anxious that it shall have the benefit of all the good that may be said about it, we cheerfully give place to an article from a recent number of the Patriot & Union, some what commendatory of that body and its doings. Although there has, no doubt, been a great deal of unnecessary, if not unwise legislation, during the winter, it is, nevertheless, unfair to condemn in wholesale terms the entire proceedings washed the bridges away between Cat- both parties, who had regard to their not be able to get here for some time yet. and although they may have been in the We are consequently obliged to send to minority, still their influence was sufficient to make itself felt in the defeat and suppression of many wild schemes, and in the passage of some good and beneficial acts. As a body, some of our exchanges pronounce the two Houses asthought to have been able to issue a full. sembled at Harrisburg during the winter to have been a tolerably fair average placed it out of our power. None of for talent and integrity, rising somewhat our subscribers can regret this inconve-labove some legislatures that our State nience more than we do, and we hope has had, and falling below others. On

We are glad to know that competent judges have so pronounced; and no one is more willing than ourselves to give our legislators credit for their good deeds while at the same time we exercise our privilege of condemning them for their bad ones. It is a sad fact that legislation in these days has become very corrupt, so that the people, when called on to choose representatives in our State and national councils, scarcely know whom to trust. We say this is a sad fact, but it is one which no sane man will, for moment, venture to dispute.-It is, therefore, the more gratifying when we can conscientiously commend our repre entatives for their good deeds.

In this connexion we will venture to say a word of our own representative, Mr. Alexander. For two years he has represented Centre county, and we will cave it to his most bitter opponents on the republican side to say whether he has not done his duty faithfully and well. We do not believe there is a man in that party who can conscientiously deny that fact. Young, energetic, talented, upright, hónorable, and with an eye ever open to the interests of this county and people, Mr. Alexander has suffered no opportunity to pass unheeded whereby they could be benefitted, or their local interests advanced. With an eloquent tongue, a clear head, a logical mind, and keen peception of the wants and interests of his constituents, Mr. Alexander has made the ablest and best representtive Centre county has had on the floor of the House for years. His uniform ourtesy towards his fellow members, and his kind and obliging social disposition, made him many warm friends even on the republican side and he enjoys today, over the members of that body, a greater influence, perhaps, than any other centleman in it of the same experience We hope our county may always be fortunate in having so good a member. The article from the Patriot & Union o which we have made reference, will be found in another column. It will be observed that Mr. Alexander is mentioned as among the able and working members of the session.

GIRARD MUTUAL OIL COMPANY.-We call attention to the advertisement of days, paper. This Company offers great inducements to subscribers, and speak confidently of expecting soon to realize sure our republican friends, who have a heavy strike of oil. The agent of the "Win' has the ability to make a good postmaster; and he is a most courteous and-obliging gentleman, with a morabeharacter without spot or blemish. He has been a consistent and honorable members of the republican party, and is much better-fit ted for the position than the majority of the hungry cormorants who have been sooking after it with so much avidity. Mr. Montgomery will make an excellent postmaster, gentlemen, much better than many of you would have made, and we hope gre don't hurt any one's feelings when we say that his afjointment is embonity satisfactory to everybody except those who failed to secure the berth for themselves. Having entered upon the duties of his office, all hope of having Mr. Montgomery "ousted" is now out of the questions. So, gentlemen, if you have yet left any expand for tecoming our exchanges bring us accounts of great rejoicings in the different cities and towns of the country over the even-fit transfer of the company in the cities and towns of the country over the even-fit transfer of the conditions of the condition of the theory of the conditions of the conditions of the conditions of the conditions of the condition of lain of the Connectiout 10th, thus writes of.

A VERY SAD CASE.

But the saddest case was the latest. A boy not yet sixteen, born and brought up in the upper part of New York city, was met in the street by a helhely broker, and enticed away to Connecticut, to be sold as a substitute. He was far from being a bright boy, seemingly not full witted, but his childish ways were touchingly attractive. He said—and probably with truth—that until the broker led him off he had never passed a night away from his paronts. Like a tired, homesick school boy determined to play truant, he started to run home. Being arrested, he again slipped off, but was once more caught, as he exercised no shrewdness in hig flight. Being tried and sentenced to death, he was put into the condemued cell in the evening, to be shot the following morning. His boy's is grief, when hold he was to die, was heart rending.

ng. With upaffected naturalness he sobbed With unaffected naturalness he sobbert out his lament over his own hard lot, and for the dear ones at home "Me, sowyoung, to go out side the breastworks and see the coffin and graye there, and then be shot? I don't wan't to be killed. Won't the general parole me?" On being assured that his execution was a certainty, he truged the chaplain not to let his friends know how he died, "for they'd feel so bad about it," he said. "I suppose it would kill myfather" (for some reason his father seemed closer to his heart that his mother, "I suppose it would kill 'em all. They'd be thinking of it at nights. Don't tell 'em

He could not read, but he had been taught in one of the blessed mission schools of New York, and seemed to have a simple, childlike faith in God. Probably he had not been addicted to victous habits. He said, when asked about the way he spent his ovenings that he valways worked in the his, evenings that he "always worked in the factory daytimes, and when evening came was tired, and went to bed early." His father and mother prayed with him, and taught him to do right. "If your life should be spored," asked the chaplain, "would you love God and try to serve him?" "Why yes," he answered, "I always did love Him," as though, intischild-like trust, he had no cause of empike with the Father. he had no cause of camits with the Father to whom he had been drawn in grateful confidence. After his first hard cry the thought of death did not seem to occupy

He was too much of a child to fully realizoit. Just before he went out to be shot he turned to the chaplain and asked, as in he'turned to the chapian and asked, as in boyish curiosity. "If I die to-day, will my soul go to heaven to-day?" Arriving at the field of execution he was not at all disturbed by the terrific preparations. To walked up to his open grave and locked in quiringly into it without a shudder and then he turned to gaze at the firing party as though he saw kindhearfed comrades there. He kneeded again to pray as culmly as it he He kneeled again to pray as calmly as if he were to lie down in his own little crib at home. Just as his arms were being bound a bird flew by, and he twisted his head around to follow with his gaze the bird in its flight as though he should like to chase its flight as though he should like to chase it; then he looked back again at the bright muskets with soft and steady eye as before.

"Let me kneel on the ground and rest on the codin," he said, he they fixed him in position. "No, kneel on the coffin," mas the order. Bo kneeling there he rectited himself down into a weary, crouching posture as though he were to wait thus a long and tiresome time. He had hardly taken this place before he fell back dead, with eyery bullet of the firing platon directly through his chest—three through his heart.

The last Legislature.

The adjournment of the Legislature, which took place, on Friday last, offers a favorable opportunity for remarks which we could not have made during the session could not have made during the session without subjecting ourselves to the suspicion of selfish motives.

There was a vast amount of work submitted to the last Legislature in the shape of public and private bills—some of them important of the country of the cou portant, some otherwise; some of then portant, some otherwise; some of them aiming to promote the general welfare, but by far the greater number got up to benefit speculators and swindle the public; and it is creditable to the members, as a body, that they wound up the business of the sestion with so little detriment to the interests of the Commonwealth and their own honor. In paint of shilly the Lagislature of this

In point of ability the Legislature of th year will compare favorably with most of those which preceded it—falling, perhaps, a little below some of them in the scale, but those which preceded it—falling, perhaps, a little below some of them in the scale, but rising above the average. If we cannot point out for popular worship one or more members pre-eminently distinguished above the rest for eloquence in debate, or the display of great qualities of statesmanship, we may at least, with the utmost sincerity, refer to the whole body as worthy of public respect for its general ability and industry. In its moral constitution, too, it was sound enough to resist, in a great measure, the ehough to resist, in a great measure, the culside pressure brought to bear upon it by the agents of the corruptionists who coagregate here every winter to seduce the weaker members from the path of duty and honesty. Some may have fallen this win-ter, but the cases of individual corruption, if any, were tod rare to bring in question the integrity of the body of which they were the integrity of the body of which they were unworthy members.

But our object is not so much to criticise the general merits of the Legislature, as to point to some members, Democrats and in the minority, who distinguished themselves by faithful labor and the influence they exerted over the fate of the various measures which were carried through by defeatsures which were carried through or defeat ed. Numerically weak, the Democratic minority were morally strong. They were not able, it is true, to pass bills ambodying Once convinced that it was too late to obtain a reprieve—no official short of the department commander having the power to grant it, and there being no time to obtain it from him, and having cried his cry outhe quieted like a weary child, and listened to all the chaplain could say to nid in preparing him for the eternal future. Kneeling on the sosked, swampy ground, under the dripping roof of that gloomy cabin, in the dark and stormy night, he folded his fettered hands, and meekly said his little evening prayer, and committed himself in seeming confidence to his Heavenly Fathers care. He could not read, but he had been with the assistance of the incommitted himself in seeming confidence to his Heavenly Fathers care. He could not read, but he had been with the assistance of their more conservative opponents, to defeat their passage. though in the minority, the preponderance of ability was on the side of the Democrats—in proof of which we need only mention the names of Hopkins, Clymer, Wallace Randell, Beardstee, Montgomery, Stark, M'Sherry, Schall, Bucher, Latta, &c., of the Senate; and Pershing, Purdy, Sharp, Hakes, Boyer, Alexander, Markley, Sca-right, Wiser, Cameron, Ac, of the House; several of them gentlemen of much legistative experience and rare ability, and all of them men of sound judgment and enlarged and liberal views. We point to these gentlemen with pride as jewels of the Democratic party; men whose in the coe is not felt alone in the Legislature, but wer the whole State. They had arduors duties to perform during the past winter, and they performed them well. They were faithful servants, who watched with mecasing vigilance over the interests entrusted to them, performing at all times and in all things, great and small, their duty to their constitusers and to the people of the Common-wealth, by whom they will be remembered and, we trust, rewarded. We parted with these gentlemen with regret which would be still deeper than it is, were it not for the confidence with which we anticipate the return of most of them next winter. What-ever may be their lot hereafter, whether they continue in public life or retire from its responsibilities and turmoil to quieter and more pleasant pursuits, they have equally our best wishes for their individual welfare.

It is but just to the dominant party in the
