The Message.

The message of President Johnson, which we publish this week...

Just at this time President Johnson occupies a position the most important and responsible of any in all the world.

In consequence of these things, a feeling of bitterness has arisen which permeates all classes of society.

In this state of affairs the position of President Johnson becomes peculiarly trying and difficult.

President Johnson has solemnly sworn to discharge the duties of his high office faithfully...

A great people, who, though now sorely distressed and weighed down by a burden of anxiety...

For our part, taken as a whole, we think the message is commendable. It is dignified, calm and statesmanlike.

On the subject of the currency we think his remarks are sound, and therefore commend them.

Our foreign relations, the President says, are satisfactory, though we have some accounts to settle with England.

We think, on the whole, the message may be commended. It is certainly an improvement on those of President Johnson's predecessor.

The concluding paragraphs of the message are really eloquent, and the handsomely rounded periods of the President will please even his stougest opponents.

But yesterday, as it were, "he might have stood against the world—none so poor to do him reverence."

THE SCIENTIFIC AMERICAN FOR 1866.—This best paper in the United States for Mechanics, Inventors, and Manufacturers...

Also, reports of scientific societies, at home and abroad, patent-law decisions, and discussions, practical recipes, etc.

The publishers also act as agents for procuring patents for new inventions.

We insist that the best course and indeed the only proper or rational course to be taken toward the South...

The admission of Southern Congressmen.—There are some slight signs returning reason even among the radicals in Congress.

Grant Showing Up Butler.—The pricking of a bubble shows its utter hollowness at once. Human bubbles sometimes manage to float for a long time before they are pierced.

And now the quaking air Boars with repeated thunder, And the fiery sobe of the cannon fear Their brazen lips assunder.

And "brazen lips" they are which repeat, as does Mr. Stanton, the exploded calumny that the murder of Mr. Lincoln was the work of authorized Confederate agents...

Complete Official Vote of the State—1865.

Table with columns: County, Total, A. Gen., S. Gen., and other sub-columns for each county.

The total vote polled was 454,147. The vote polled in 1864 was—Lincoln, 296,391; McClellan, 276,316—total 572,707.

The Republican Senators have agreed to pass, in an amended form, the resolution of the House for a joint committee to examine into the condition of the late so-called Confederate States...

Grant seeing the advantage, sent the Sixth corps to enable Butler to hold what he had taken, and Butler kept the Sixth corps in idleness...

The condition of Jefferson Davis, at Fortress Monroe, is reported to be as comfortable as a captive can be.

General Logan has declined the Mexican mission.
