Effects of Radical Policy. There is a homely, but most forcible saying, which exactly applies to the course of the Mongrel towards the South. It is 'cutting off one's nose to spite the face.'

Since the endorsement of the Radical programme in the elections of last fall, we are forced to the conclusion that the Northern people are really blood thirsty and revengeful to do anything to annoy and injure the South. No argument based upon the Constitution and upon the principles of natural justice and humanity can reach them.

The interests of the whole country demand an immediate and complete restoration of the Union leaving out of consideration entirely what is Constitutional and just, the interests of the Northern people call for the representation of the South in Congress and the establishment of the Federal Government, as nearly as may be, upon the old basis.

No one will presume to deny that if the Union stood as the Democracy desired to have it, we could at once, if desirable, successfully maintain the Monroe doctrine, and eject Maximilian's monarchy from the soil of Mexico.

Let him cease to agitate, and the water become pure to the bottom of the sea. Let them stand out of the way, and the Union is at once restored, with the mere operation of existing laws, with nothing to prevent the most complete harmony throughout the whole country.

Thus, in a mean attempt to inflict injury upon the South, we are humiliated before the world, and the pettiest tyrant of Europe may spit upon our flag with impunity.

In an effort to govern the South through unnatural and unlawful channels, we vastly increase our expenditures, and fail utterly to attain the objects of government. The Federal Government was never intended for any such purpose, and it is altogether inadequate.

By these means we employ to prevent the South from producing the proportion of the wealth of the country annually amounting to millions of dollars. The Southern States are blessed by nature beyond any others on the Continent. With the government as it should be, they would in a few years become the most wealthy in the Union, and thus be able to relieve us of a great proportion of our vast debt.

'Old Moan' Tracks.

On Tuesday, the 15th inst. the Legislature of this State, in pursuance of the Constitution and laws, proceeded to elect a United States Senator to succeed Hon. EDGAR COWAN, who has, in part, represented Pennsylvania for the last six years.

The Abolitionists having a large majority in each house of our State Legislature, the choice for Senator was actually made in their party caucus on Thursday evening, the 10th inst. As our readers are doubtless aware this choice fell upon SIMON CAMERON, generally known as 'Old Moan' Tracks, the 'Windwagon Chief.'

SIMON CAMERON has been a prominent man in Pennsylvania politics for more than a quarter of a century, and yet has never been elected to any office by the people. He started out in life a professed Democrat, and having been appointed an agent to pay large sums of Government money to the tribes of Indians known as the 'Winningoags.'

At one stage in the history of this government, Congress was respected, and its recommendations and provisions cheerfully and willingly adopted by the people. At that time no act on the part of Congress was repulsive, because it proceeded to exercise no authority, but what it derived from the power created in it.

In 1845 CAMERON was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator. In consequence of his bad reputation he was defeated by Wm. W. WOODRUFF, who was nominated in the Legislature, succeeded in effecting a bargain with the Whigs to give him their votes if he could carry off enough Democrats to elect WOODRUFF.

The following terrible yet truthful picture of the condition to which fanaticism has brought the laboring masses of our country, we get from the Philadelphia, a moderate abolition paper. The picture drawn and the facts given, are but one of the results of the success of a fiction that has ever labored to benefit the few at the expense of the many.

Those who have voted for abolition for the past five years can now see what they have done - can now reap the harvest that they have sown. Let them ponder over the following and console themselves with the reflection that it was their acts that brought this state of affairs about.

Whilst members of Congress are living in luxurious ease, excited by the inspiration of rice, wine and the influence of the influence of stronger beverages, and rushing headlong through the mass of radical and abolitionist agitators, who are the parents and children of a quietly arising various parts of the country, whilst every eye in the land is nightly yielding up hundreds of victims to blood, whose ranks have been formed by the embrace of the ice king of the north.

Those who have voted for abolition for the past five years can now see what they have done - can now reap the harvest that they have sown. Let them ponder over the following and console themselves with the reflection that it was their acts that brought this state of affairs about.
